What is time elapsed activity? This task allows the user to practice determining the time elapsed given a start time and an end time. Time elapsed is the time or difference between a start time and an end time. Finding time is an important skill in everyday life. Determining the time elapsed requires understanding how a clock is read and how we measure time, because we don't usually use our traditional decimal system (base ten) to measure time. For example, suppose you want to figure out how much time you spend at school day starts at 7:45 and your last class ends at 3:05 How long is that? It's a subtraction problem, but you can't use the same method for subtraction that you use if you've just been subtracting integers or decimal places: So it's typical with most you can think about the problem several ways. You can think about the problem by imagining the time on a clock and then moving the clock forward hour by hour. When you can't move forward a whole hour, start moving in fifteen, five, or one minute intervals and then add all the hours and minutes that pass: You can also think about it as a shrinking issue, but you need to be careful if you borrow or regroup from the time. Remember, an hour equals 60 minutes, so when you regroup, you need to add 60 to the total number of minutes, not 10 as you can be used to do. Also, if you're changing from am to PM or PM to am, you should add 12 hours at the later time. So in this issue 3:05 pm gets 15:05: Class Resources What does 2.5 mean in the time elapsed?
