Jr smith contract with lakers

Darron Cummings/Associated PressVeteran Slingshot JR Smith is expected to sign a deal with the Los Angeles Lakers by the end of the 2019/20 season. According to The New York Times' Mark Stein,Mark Stein @TheSteinLineThe The Lakers, league sources say, are expected to finally terminate a season-long contract with J.R. Smith before the NBA's 11:59 p.m. close on the NBA transfer window for an NBA restart at Wald Disney World, and the league's office on Wednesday should be contacted by ESPN's Adrian Wennerowski confirmed. The Cleveland Cavaliers waived Smith last July after spending most of the last five seasons with the team. That became a real possibility for the 34-year-old player to take his place on the team when the NBA announced the expansion of the roster from 15 players to 17 as part of a return-to-play program in Orlando, Florida, following a four-month league shutdown due to the coronavirus epidemic. In 2018/19, he averaged 6.7 points, 1.6 rebounds and 1.9 assists in just 11 games. He last appeared in the game on November 19, 2018, before being neutralized by the Cubs for the rest of the season. He averaged 8.3 points, 2.9 rebounds and 1.8 assists while shooting 40.3 percent from the field and 37.5 percent from three-point range. During his time in Cleveland, Smith played in four NBA finals and was part of the only championship-winning team in franchise history in 2016.While Smith has some deficiencies, he's a dangerous shooter who can take over games from beyond the arc when he gets to his own pace. He makes a three-pointer with 37.3 percent in his career and is eighth on the active career list with 1,929 three-point field goals. Smith no longer fits cubs team's plans to reassess For exploiting younger players, but it was clear that he would be of interest to many teams across the league. He best serves as an offensive catalyst off the bench, and that's a role he's thrived in at various points. If Smith can drop his shots, it goes a long way toward spreading the floor and opening up offensive opportunities for his teammates. In Los Angeles, Smith will be reunited with LeBron James, his teammate with the Cavaliers for four seasons. Together, they reached four NBA Finals and won championships. On a Lakers team led by James, Anthony Davis and Kyle Kuzma, Smith can carve out a niche, especially since Avery Bradley sits out of the league. Los Angeles needs players who can hit open throws created by LeBron, and Smith has shown he's capable of doing so. Smith also brings a lot of playoff experience to the table, which should help a team with Championship aspirations. Tony Dejak/Associated PressVeteran swingman JR Smith signed his contract with the Los Angeles Lakers, Smith's agent Rich Paul told ESPN's Adrian Woznerowski, Smith will receive $289,803 on top of the nearly $1.5 million the Cleveland Cavaliers are paying him. Paul also told Chris Haynes of Yahoo Sports that Smith would discuss the No.21 jersey. The 34-year-old fills the void created by Avery Bradley, who chose not to replace the NBA in Orlando, Florida.Smith has not appeared in an NBA game since the Cubs' 113-102 defeat to the Detroit Pistons on November 19, 2018. With LeBron James signing with the Lakers ahead of the 2018/19 season, Cleveland's championship window closed, making aging veterans like Smith surplus to requirements. His stock hasn't recovered since Game 1 of the 2018 NBA Finals. He dribbled the clock in regulation instead of trying what would have been a green basket. Replacing Bradley with a player of similar value was impossible for Los Angeles.Although he had a somewhat limited role on offense, his work on the other side of the floor helped the Lakers rank third in the defensive rankings (105.5), NBA.com. According to NBA.com, Bradley held off opponents with 24.6 percent throws on three-pointers and 30.1 percent on throws from 50 feet. Smith will be the opposite in that most of his positive contributions will probably come on offense. He scored 37.5 percent of his three-pointers in 2017/18, which is nearly equal to his career average (37.3 percent). Scattering the floor is important to the Lakers because it opens up the color for James and Anthony Davis. If the team can count on Smith to hit a couple of long-range jumpers in every game, then he served his goal. Guards Alex Caruso and Kentavious Caldwell-Pope heavily bear the brunt after Bradley's departure, with waiters expected to provide extra depth in the backfield. Rajon Rondo is another veteran guard on the Lakers' bench. Smith has played 15 seasons in the NBA since New Orleans drafted him in 2004 out of St. Benedict Prep in New Jersey. He also made stops in Denver and New York. He won the NBA title with LeBron James and the Cabaliers in 2016 and won the NBA's sixth man award in 2013 with the Knicks. July 1, 12:45 p.m.: Smith officially signed a contract with the team, ESPN's Adrian Woznerowski tweets. June 29, 11:10 a.m.: The Lakers are expected to finale a season-long contract with free agent shooter J.R. Smith this week, league sources tell The New York Times's Mark Stein (link to Twitter). According to ESPN's Adrian Woznerowski (via Twitter), Smith and the Lakers are working on the final stages of the deal today. Smith, 34, has not played in the NBA at all this season, but practiced for the Lakers in March before the league went on recess due to the coronavirus epidemic. When Nevers last week Avery Bradley voluntarily chose not to re-replace the NBA, Smith was immediately identified as a leading candidate to replace him on the Los Angeles summer roster. Smith last played in the NBA in 2018/19 and appeared on Just Games for the Cavaliers before constaking in November of that season. On 17/18, his last full season, he was a solid role player in Cleveland, averaging 8.3 PPG and 2.9 RPG with 3.375 pts in 80 games (28.1 MPG). As a replacement player, Smith will receive a contract for the rest of the season, at a minimum wage that won't count against the Lakers' cap. It will pay him just under $290K, which represents 20/177ths of the regular minimum wage and $2,564,753 for a player with 10+ years of NBA service. He will be an unrestricted free agent after the season and Los Angeles won't hold any form of bird rights in him this fall. Even with Bradley out, it's not clear that Smith is really going to see a lot of action this summer. However, he becomes the latest intriguing figure to join the Lakers' depth chart on the wing - the team signing veteran slingshot Dion Meltzer shortly before the game that was suspended in March. Assuming no other Lakers player willingly prefers not to return for the season, the club won't have the ability to make another addition without cutting someone. As of this time, all 17 roster spots are filled, with two-way players Devonte Cacok and Costas Antetokounmpo joining 15 players on standard contracts. Photo courtesy of USA Today Sports Images.
