Project management tata mcgraw hill

The book approaches the subject of planning with a new perspective. It focuses on time planning, resource planning and control system planning. Living with many examples of projects handled by authors, this book explains how to plan construction projects and execute them efficiently with minimum variations in schedule. The book is divided into four sections: Introduction: It covers the nature of the construction industry, highlights the important features of construction project management and outlines the approach to planning construction projects; Time Planning: It explains the methodology for breaking project work into activities, developing workpackage networks, integrating these networks into project network plans and scheduling network plans to complete calendar-oriented construction programs; Resource Planning: This includes methodologies for labor planning, construction materials, factories and machinery, and costs. System Control Planning: This relates to setting up a control system; methodologies for controlling productivity, cost, and resource time; codify system planning and computerization of planning and control functions.
