Getty Images Phone scammers are getting harder than ever, a new column by Inc. reveals. After unsuspecting people pick up, thieves can make money from fees paid or even use their voice to authorize other accounts. However, a quick glance can reveal whether the call means real business or not. According to Joseph Steinberg, chief executive of SecureMySocial, some area codes can divert potential victims that something is in need of identification. In the past, criminals hid behind 900 numbers that squirming at high fees, but society quickly caught on. Then the scammers tried a new approach. Many schemes soon included the numbers 809, an international regional code from the Caribbean that appeared to originate in the United States. As knowledge of this Rousse has increased, crooks have since moved to other islands that still fall under the code of the state +1. Criminals are known for using the calling identifiers with code 473, which appears to be internal but is actually the district code for Grenada Island, he wrote. According to AARP, having calls from any of these foreign countries can cost $ 5 minute or more. Bot or the person behind it can also persuade listeners to spend money on sketching denominations or cruises. In other schemes, people pretend to need help or money because they are in danger. Steinberg advises never returning a missed call from an unknown number - if it's real, the person can send a message or leave a voicemail. Remember, it's unlikely that someone you don't know who's in trouble in a place you're not familiar with will dial a random number in another country and ask you to help them, he says. They'll call the police. To protect your wallet, look out for the numbers 473, 809 and 900. Nor does it harm missed calls to international zone codes starting with +1: International zone codes code +1 Country — Bahamas 246 — Barbados 268 — Antigua 284 — British Virgin Islands 345 — Cayman Islands 441 — Bermuda 473 —

Instead of flipping over through a big, big, phonebook, you can find and check postcodes and area codes on the Internet quite easily. If you have an address or partial address, you can find the zip code through the USPS Zip Code Reference, a tool on the U.S. Postal Service website. You can also search by city or country or find all cities that are part of a specific zip code. The international postcode site maintained by Columbia University has a rich index of internal and international zip codes, in addition to postcodes, policies and best practices. You can also use different search engines to find zip codes. For example, with Google, to search by zip code address, enter what you know about the address to see a location map with the zip code included. You can even enter something like the South Laurel MD zip code to see all of them for this area (and find links that show a complete list of zip codes for that region). You can also enter a zip code to see its geographic location, as well as a map and other related web results, such as cities that use the zip code. If you don't add a zip code at the end of the search, Google may display unrelated information. For example, searching 90210 reveals information about tv series, while the 90210 zip code displays zip code information. You can also find a zip code with DuckDuckGo. Enter a zip code and DuckDuckGo returns a map, postcode location, weather, real estate and other web results. Searching for bing's zip code returns what city/locale refers to, maps and local attractions such as grocery stores, hotels and movie sites. If you enter a partial address, Bing fills it out for you and displays the zip code. Like the zip code, you can use a search engine to find a area code by searching for the city. To do the opposite and find out which part of the country a region code is associated with, simply enter the area code in the search engine. To find a regional code with Google, enter the name of the city and country you're looking for, followed by the words area code. You'll usually find what you need. For international listings, look for a phrase like Kenya's call code, and you'll get an informative response with the numbers you'll need to call in this nation. Enter the city and country in a new Bing search, and in all likelihood you'll see more of these results that show you the area code at the top of the results. The same applies to international calling numbers. Another way to find code online is with Tungsten Alpha, which takes on self-looking computer intelligence. This data-based search engine does not show results like the others mentioned on this page, but with a little digging find some unique information about cities and states that you may not find in another search engine. Using Yahoo to find area code is much like using Google; Google, enter the name of the city and country followed by the area code, and you will get an immediate result. Finding international codes isn't as easy with Yahoo as it is with Google, but you can of course use Yahoo to find other sites that can give you that information. Many sites specialize in finding district codes that simply search for search engines may not reveal. You can use these free resources to find almost any regional code and/or country call code in the world: Zone codes: Area codes from predominantly the US, although other countries are scattered here as well. BT PhoneBook: Use this site to find area codes in UK country codes: This site asks you which country you're calling from and to assign the correct country code, area code or both. LincMad: A zip code map that offers a visual representation of U.S. and Canada.AllAreaCodes.com zone codes: Like LincMad, you get a map of the entire U.S. and Canadian area code, but also links to regional area code lists, area code details (e.g. wireless or landline, carrier when entered), search tools, and lists of regional printout codes. Thank you for informing us! Tell us why! George Dibold /Getty Images 578 regional code is one of the non-language codes for the North American numbering plan, which covers the United States, Canada, some Caribbean nations and territories in the United States. Using a phone number with a 578 area code is an attempt to conceal the call source. Nanp zone codes were first used in the early 1950s, with 86 of the possible 152 zone codes being used. As consumer phone numbers have increased over the decades, additional area codes have been resettled to supplement needs in higher-density regions on the continent. For example, area code 917 overlaps the 212 and 718 zone codes in the New York area to accommodate a significant increase in phone users there. The area code 543 is not currently used in North America. The closest to this code are 541 for Eugene, Oregon, and 551 for Newark, New Jersey. Zone codes are managed and processed by the North American Number Plan Association, or NANPA. What people usually call zone codes is officially known as PID codes. Each set of three digits (000-999) is theoretically a district code, but at this point only 316 of these codes are used. Additionally, some codes are saved as special markers of some kind. For example, 800 area code is used for a free call when the recipient pays for a call rather than the caller. Ugurhan Bettin/Getty Images The area code 668 is not a valid area code in However, it is a valid area code in Oujda, which is located northeast of Morocco. Calls received from code 668 can be traced to telemarketers, account collectors and inspectors. The 668th district code is to disguise the valid phone number, making it impossible to accurately determine the call or track the business you are calling. Phone calls and text messages received from this area code can be reported and added to the list of false numbers. Fraudsters are known to use invalid phone numbers. District codes 520 and 928 are usually (but not exclusively) intended for all cities and towns not in the Phoenix, Arizona area. The largest city in Arizona under code 520 is Tucson. The largest city in Arizona under code 928 is Flagstaff. See map of Arizona Area Codes. Note: These zone codes apply only to landlines. Cell phone codes are not limited by geography. A person who lives in a home in a city can get a wireless service with a different area code.
