See San Diego's most popular trusted service providers with a buyer's guide to important purchases. We have done research to give you specific recommendations and important information about the services you and your home need. With 70 miles of coastline and amazing year-round weather, it may not be immediately obvious because all of San Diego's best beaches look really fantastic. But since you are a traveler with limited time, there is a professionally curated list highlighting the city's most valuable surf and sand. San Diego's best beaches range from Moonlight State Beach south of San Diego Beach to Central Beach. [viator_tour Target=736 Type=3 Mode] As well as La Hoya Cove (Photo: Thinkstock/iStock), La Hoya Cove is not only one of San Diego's best beaches, but also one of the best in all of California. This small bay offers beautiful natural scenery, magnificent sunsets and every form of water play imaginable. See pelicans and sea lions from the cliffs above. Once in this calm water, there are many outfitters where you can kayak or snorkel fascinating sea caves or scuba dive through protected underwater searing forests of leopard sharks, boattrays, scallops and other native species. La Hoya Shores NHANNGUYEN91 / Shutterstock La Hoya Shores is a mile-long curve of sand and water with pretty tame summer waves. It is a popular spot for children, swimmers, boogi boarders, kayakers and beginner scuba divers. Those who stay dry enjoy jogging, biking, skating and walking along the boardwalk. After a beautiful sunset, the beach bonfire lit the sand. Scripps Oceanooogy Pier is the site of the San Diego La Hoya Aquatic Park Ecological Reserve, which is edicted over the water here, which also means that fishing is strictly prohibited. Amenities include toilets, showers and a lifesaving tower. Coronado Central Beach (photo: Hotel del Coronado via Shutterstock) Anchoring Coronado Central Beach to the south is Hotel del Coronado and all the wonderful amenities. Walk along the cement boardwalk of the north, parallel to upscale Ocean Boulevard, to find a place to enjoy the cleanest, softest and most sparkling sand on any San Diego beach. The waves here are tame and it's easy to surf, paddle and swim. If you want to stay on the sand, there are fantastic places and beach volleyball courts. The low tide offers a delightful tidal pool full of small sea animals, sand dollars and clams. Pacific Beach (Photo: Thinkstock/iStock) Pacific Beach, just south of Crystal Pier adjacent to Mission The definition of a Southern California party scene. Here are beautiful young people sunbathing, socializing, surfing, or sponsoring many crowded restaurants along the other sands, like the JRDN restaurant with heaps of Tower23. On land, beach people stroll the boardwalk, cycling, skating and jogging. In the water, surfers dominate the best, but swimmers, boogi boarders and paddlers and many lifeguards keep an eye on it all. Other services include bathrooms, showers and bicycle rental. After sunset, the party continued with a bonfire and a lively bar. The biggest attraction at Mission Beach mile-long Mission Beach is the stunning old amusement park with popular thrill rides like Belmont Park, giant dipper tree roller coaster, plus a lot of other arcade style fun. On the sand is a large crowd drenched in boardwalks, eternal sun, volleyball and picnic areas, surf schools, boat and jet ski rentals, showers, toilets and lifesaving cows. Mission Beach is located in the middle of the Golden Strand, between South Mission Beach and Pacific Beach. It sparkles with a bonfire after dark. Blacks Beach Madeline Garrett / Shutterstock Blacks Beach lies just below a 300-foot-high cliff on the top of america's busiest gliderport. Secondly, it seems that nude beaches, despite San Diego's law for nudity, are not enforced here. Third, winter waves make it a destination for experienced surfers, and surfing and swimming are at their own risk and there are fierce undertows, as you have to warn them that there is no reliable lifesaving presence, not the best wave in Southern California. This two-mile stretch of sand is a bit of a hike, but it's best to get through Torrey Pines State Park at low tide. For adventurous beachgoers, it's worth the trek. It has a bathroom and shower and is a great place to sunbathe or play volleyball. Moonlight State Beach Transient Timeless / Shutterstock in Ensinitas, romantically named Moonlight State Beach is one of the best beaches in San Diego. It's not too crowded and it's a low key place to go for sandy family fun. This wide stretch is almost always elegant with perfect weather, with a variety of amenities including volleyball and tennis courts, a shady children's playground, water sports rentals, snack bars, hiking trails, picnic facilities, geocaching, showers with toilets and foot washing stations, many lifeguards, fire pits and decent sized parking lots. Guests can relax in the sun, swimming, surfing, snorkeling or scuba diving. Ocean Beach Mile Long Ocean Beach, north of Point Rome, is a spacious and charming place of sand and water where beach lovers sunbathe, surf, swim, play volleyball and light up. Amenities include toilets, showers and lifesaving stations, but the best amenities are dog beaches for off-leather dogs, the only one in San Diego 24 hours away. Ocean Beach has a vintage retro vibe with volkswagen vans and antique shops. Check out surf shops, taquerias and active nightlife on Newport Avenue and Voltaire Street. Ocean Beach is also the Ocean Beach Municipal Pier, the longest concrete pier on the west coast, and you can walk almost half a mile through the sea. Open 24 hours a day for its 50th anniversary in 2016, you can catch one of San Diego's legendary sunsets or take a starlight walk to see the seaweed and dolphins. Mission Bay Mission Bay is just one of San Diego's best beaches. It is also the world's largest recreational water park, offering more than 4,600 acres of water sports along its 27-mile coastline. From kayaking and paddleboarding to water skiing, sailing, surfing, buoyancy boarding, swimming, kayaking, jet skiing, and... Well, you get the idea. On land, mission bay visitors are cycling, jogging, skating, walking and picnicking and lit waterfront bonfires. These include volleyball courts, a nature reserve at Crown Point, seasonal lifesaving services, toilets with showers, fire garages and lots of free parking. Take a sunset cruise from Bahia Belle to bring your kids to the Panuel Park playground or fido to the off-less dog beach on The Fiesta Island. Del Mar City Beach by Jansson George / Shutterstock North San Diego, near the Del Mar Thoroughbred Club and Del Mar Fairgrounds, Del Mar City Beach includes two miles of easy coastline lined with scenic cliffs. It's family-friendly, dog-friendly and a great place to have a picnic, take a cold water swim or stroll the amazingly clean strands for a sand dollar. Jogging, biking, volleyball, sunbathing as well as surfing are good. Amenities include abundant free parking, showers and toilets. When you start to get hungry, go to Jake or Poseidon. Airfare $1662 + Patricia Magagna Hotel & Accommodation Deals Francesca Miele Hotel & Accommodation deals $229+ fun and San Diego are practically synonymous, which is why most relaxed, life-loving populations choose to live here. There are endless things to do in San Diego, but you won't want to miss out on 10 activities like this: With a variety of memorable and fun things to do in San Diego, add the following San Diego activities to your to-do list. [viator_tour=736 Type=3 Mode] Flavored Beer If you don't have a beer tasting on your list of things to do on TripAdvisor San Diego, add it. The beer-making scene exploded as San Diego now branches in Napa and Sonoma on American craft beers in American wine. With more than 100 breweries within the city limits, you can also themed your holiday around soapy sushi and hops. Carl Strauss, Ballast Point, Lost Abbey, especially escondido's quirky World Bistro & Visit the garden. San Diego's breweries gather around Highway 78 (Hobbs Highway), where a small, independent brewery runs a tasting room. On 30th Street (Beer Boulevard), it's a pub serving dozens of local beers, while the Mira Mesa district has great breweries such as Rough Draft and Green Flash. To best experience the city's thriving craft beer scene, book a tasting tour with Brew Hop, which gets you from a safe and style taproom to a taproom. IF YOU'RE A SCUBA DIVER DEDICATED TO DIVING NHANNGUYEN91/SHUTTERSTOCK, YOU PROBABLY ALREADY KNOW ABOUT SAN DIEGO'S SHIPWRECK ALLEY, AN UNDERWATER TREASURE TROVE OF SINKING SHIPS TO EXPLORE. At 105 feet above sea, the HMCS Yukon is a Canadian destroyer that transformed into an artificial reef after sinking. Divers brave this depth to see the ship's old deck and gun turret up close and swim through the light-filled corridors. Protected La Jolla Cove is a world-class dive site, and the searing forest is filled with Scallopaldi, leopard sharks and bats. and clams. If you are interested in underwater but would rather stay at the top, La Hoya Cove is a great place to snorkel with seals. Think through what to do in San Diego when watching whales, and don't forget that about 20,000 gray whales travel through these waters during the annual migration from Alaska to Mexico from mid-December to April. If you're here between mid-June and September, you'll see blue whales with at least 2,000 of the 100-foot-long behemoths that frequent the San Diego coast during the summer months. It can be fantastic to see from the coast, but for a truly exhilarating experience, board one of the smaller boats operated by Hornbloher or flagship for a harbour trip where an experienced captain steers you towards an endangered giant. At SeaWorld, you can see Porooca and Beluggas up close, and at the Birch Aquarium in Scripps, you can take a whale watching tour with a marine biologist and then play in the aquarium to get to know other types of marine life. Go hiking (Photo: Thinkstock/iStock) When planning your San Diego activities, don't forget to spend some time on your itinerary to explore the stunning scenery of the city on foot. Most of San Diego is very spectacular, and outdoor gems are the most experienced with walking speed. The best place to hike in San Diego is the gorgeous Torrey Pines State Nature Reserve, where windy cliffs meet the blues of the sky and sea. Take a compass at dusk, put on your hiking boots towards the beautiful Sunset Cliffs National Park, and enjoy the wonderful way to sunbathe. Row 10 Madeline Garrett/Shutterstock San Diego is, of course, a surfer's paradise. Throughout your life, Esir has dozens of stellar beaches to ride the Pacific ocean waves, whether you're a beach or a beginner. Bring provocation to the waters at your leisure with your own surfboard. Rather, if you need a few pointers to borrow a board, book with a surf diva at La Hoya Shore - you'll get up and slip in time. I love riding my bike San Deigan to stay in shape and active, and cycling is one of my favorite ways to do it. Follow Mission Bay Park or Mission Beach with a tranced and solid crowd on the boardwalk. If you've traveled a long way to visit San Diego, you might want to travel a little farther so that you can say you've visited Mexico if you're on a trip to Mexico. The Blue Line on the San Diego trolley stretches 20 miles to the border for a memorable Tijuana day trip. Along the way, stop at Barrio Logan, a vibrant, artistic Mexican-American neighborhood with one of the newest national historical landmarks, chicano park murals. What to do in Culture Shutterstock San Diego? Immerse yourself in the culture at the beautiful Balboa Park. The 12 charming cultural institutions include the San Diego Museum of Art, the San Diego History Center, the Men's Museum and the Beautiful Botanical Coffin. May S. Marsh Sculpture Court & Sculpture Court & Outdoor Space with sculptures by important artists, as well as frequent multicultural festivals and performances at america's largest urban cultural park There is also a garden. Time Travel Art Boardman/Shutterstock You may not have a real time machine, but you have the Old Town San Diego State Historical Park, an attractive district that transports you back when San Diego was founded. It was the first Spanish settlement on the west coast of the United States, and most of the buildings in the mid-1800s are well preserved, including historic buildings and ranch houses depicting colonial life, old shops selling souvenirs and candy, whale house museums, and 19th-century houses and businesses, including the still-operating Cosmopolitan Hotel. Hillside Presidio Park in the Old Town is home to the Zuniferro Serra Museum, where Father Serra founded the first California Spanish Mission in 1769. Guests can dine at authentic Mexican restaurants in the
