George Diebold/Getty Images 578 Area Code is one of the 1000 subscribing codes for north American number plans, including the United States, Canada, certain Caribbean countries, and U.S. territories. If you use the phone number of area code 578, an attempt is made to impersonate the source of the call. NANP area numbers were first used in the early 1950s, with 86 of the 152 area numbers used. As the number of phone users increased over the decades, additional area numbers were over-displayed to compensate for the needs of high-density areas on the continent. For example, area code 917 overlaps area codes 212 and 718 in the New York City area to accommodate a significant increase in phone users. Area Number 543 is not currently used in North America. The closest to this area code is 541 for Eugene, Oregon, and 551 for Newark, New Jersey. Area codes are managed and processed by the North American Number Planning Association (NANPA). What people usually call area codes is officially known as the NPA code. A set of three digits (000 to 999) is theoretically an area code, but only 316 of these codes are currently available. In addition, some code is saved as some kind of special marker. For example, an area code of 800 is used for toll-free calls that the recipient pays for the call, not the caller. Ughulhan Bettin/Getty Images Area Area 668 is not a valid area number in the United States. However, it is a valid area number for Oujda, located in the northeast of Morocco. Calls received from area 668 can be made back to telemarketers, invoice collectors, and surveyors. The 668 area code is used to spoof valid phone numbers, making it impossible to identify calls or track the business you call. Calls and text messages received from this area code can be reported and added to the fake number list. Scammers are also known to use invalid phone numbers.
