Why do some disciles-makers reproduce while others fail? The driving force behind McNabb's work is the biblical principle of multiplication. In short, if those who are soached after Christ are equipped to reach others, the power of multiplication will spread the gospel all over the world, one by one. But McNabb suggests that when many church leaders hear this concept, they just can't believe it would ever work in the real world. So, McNabb set out to find out why it sometimes works and why it sometimes isn't in his book Spiritual Multiplication in the Real World. McNabb acknowledges that the Bible is the source of our discover creation theology and practice, but hopes the empirical data presented can help in our execution of christ's commission. One particular outworking of research is what doesn't affect one's ability to become a reproducer. As it turns out, according to the data, persons place, age, living conditions or even daily proximity to the infidel do not affect the likelihood of reproduction of a person. Here are a few basic things according to McNabb: the discipler needs to be focused on ever-focused multiplication of discipler models of vision multiplication by sharing faith with the other pupil and the discipler should be involved in a church aimed at equipping people at the ministry discipler gets ongoing coaching and encouragement from the community discipler church a small group plan centers around a pupil making a discipler church offering many evangelical events and opportunities for engaging faith with the lost discipler's life is characterized by a rich prayer Here are a few things , keep in mind when reading spiritual multiplication. First, McNabb defined spiritual multiplication quite narrowly. In many ways it's the only way we can measure 'success' empirically. So I commend him for that. He focuses mainly on winning games. So, for example, the number of people who win for losing is a big part of their empirical profile as a multiplier. It cannot be overrated that the Church has actually lost its focus on it, and should be encouraged to place victory lost at or near the top of its measurable goals. However, the life of a discipation (according to the Grand Commission) involves evangelisation and teaching to listen to them. This is by no means at odds with McNabb's claims, but I was hoping for a little more empirical details about those who help younger believers become multipliers. Second, pay attention to McNabb's multiplication cycle. It is a fantastic tool for considering a person's holistic growth in Christ. It's probably the simplest depiction of the balance between evangelist and discipation That I've seen. Finally, McNabb seems to have a finger on the pulse of Christian culture when he calls the equipment (and especially the export) lost aspects of disciles creation. Let me leave you with a question. What is the biggest deficiency between us in our pseudo-Christian culture? Is it that people don't share their faith? Is it that we win people for Christ, and yet we fail to root them in their faith? Is it that we win them and root them, but fail to prepare them to be disciples? Or maybe we're doing all these things, but we're not going to make the trip to the state department and actually send them there? These are all huge challenges. And yet I see a renewed focus on sharing faith and building young believers. Maybe we'd all do well to advise the board and remember to equip those around us to be disciples, and then actually commission them to do it in their homes, churches and the world. Why do some disciles-makers reproduce while others fail? I am grateful to God for His grace in Bob McNabb. I had the pure pleasure of watching him live off what he wrote here, both in Birmingham, Alabama, and around the world. Seeing Bob's life and reading this book, I'm excited when I think about what might happen if men and women not only read this book, but put it into practice. What if followers of Christ in local churches were actually making disciples of Jesus who made disciples of Jesus, all with the ultimate intention of reaching out to peoples and peoples who had not yet heard of Jesus? I pray that God, in His grace, will fall as appropriate to bless this book in his life and in the lives of countless others for this purpose. David Platt, President of the Council of International Missions, Southern Baptist Convention It is a pleasure to commend this volume. Bob McNabb has been trying to measure his life with the Grand Commission for over thirty years. More to the point, he has a passion to help other followers of Christ prolifeate laborers for harvesting. This led to a thorough scripture study and extensive research that asked why some workers are reproducing and others are failing. His findings presented here come from real world situations, and have been tested on the ground. While the author offers many new insights into the different aspects of the discipling process, one central theme of appear-discipling happens more naturally when doing it with others; it's a team sport. I also appreciated the observation that evangelisation and comedy flow together, and one may not achieve far-reaching consecration before you begin. Inspirational stories, practical worksheets and accompanying guides are provided to help readers on their own journey of spiritual reproduction. I hope that believers everywhere come together in the Name of Christ to apply the timeless principles taught in these pages, which will speed up the day when the knowledge of God's glory will cover the earth, when the waters cover the sea. This is the day we desire. Speeding up his coming through spiritual multiplication is our privilege. -Robert Coleman, acclaimed senior professor of evangelism and apprenticeship Our Lord Jesus Christ His church has a great commission to make disciples who will mature and reproduce their species. In this truly important book, Bob McNabb provides committed Christians with practical lessons on how we can meet our profession more effectively. To be sure, there are many practical books about pupil-making, but this volume is unique. McNabb employs Scripture, original research and many years of personal experience to produce work that I think will emerge as a companion volume to Robert E. Coleman's classic Master Plan of Evangelisation. Indeed, I intend to make it necessary to read for all my students. -Lyle W. Dorsett, Billy Graham Professor of Evangelism, Beeson Deity School, Samford University Bob McNabb has done an excellent job in setting the keys to spiritual multiplication. His research on which procedures are effective and which are not eye-opening and very useful. Every pastor and Christian leader must study this book and implement the relevant functions. What a difference it can make in an organization or an individual's spiritual influence. -Dr. Frank Barker, Pastor Emeritus, Briarwood Presbyterian Church Bob McNabb gave disciples of Jessu a clear, practical guide to being faithful to the Great Commission and making more disciples of Jesus. Full of insightful research, clear thinking, and years of experience, pastors looking to create a artichy culture in their churches would benefit especially from McNabb's work. -Matt Carter, pastor of Sermon & Vision at Austin Stone Community Church and co-author of Real Win Experts in Persuasion are now learning that successful models are the most effective sources for influencing others. Thanks, Bob, for the face to the fact that some models are not successful and provides us with well-documented and researched successful models for every aspect of spiritual multiplication. You have given us a handbook, an encyclopedia, that will increase the dynamics of spiritual multiplication, not only in our generation, but also in future generations. Jim Downing, former vice-chairman and chairman of the Board, Navigators Bob McNabb writes about learning from decades of international experience. The lessons in the book were forged in the real world and indelibly shaped my own life and ministry. The harvest is plentiful, but the workers are few.' Bob directed us back to Jesus' model of multiplying harvest workers. If you are serious about making and multiplying disciples in the real world, spiritual multiplication in the real world needs to be read. -Tom Mullis, Director of Strategy & Leadership Development, United World Mission We have all heard grandiose theories about how discipling one person who discipules someone else will eventually fill the whole world with new disciples. But reality tells us, completely different, and we wonder why this is not happening. Bob McNabb reveals some of the disciples of multiplication myths while providing statistically supported research on what effectively discipules who discipules. For example, I was encouraged by McNabb's discovery that evangelisation training correlates with evangelical efficiency. Rather, joining a team that practises evangelism makes all the difference. He also found that group discipation is more effective than one-on-one type, and of course, Jesus uses the group method to prepare his own disciples. McNabb provides many other principles so you have to read the book to benefit from Bob McNabb's excellent research. -Joel Comiskey, Ph.D., Chairman of the Joel Comiskey Group Recovering Church responsibility for the Grand Commission is at the heart of everything Bob does and wrote here. Not only is it the responsibility of the Church as a whole, it is my responsibility and your responsibility as followers of Jesus. However, the gap often lies between what I know I should do and actually making it a part of my life. How do we bring people from infidelity into adulthood and even the leadership of the kingdom? Bob has helped many answer this question, and he can help you. For those who want to follow Jesus' command to be disciples, you will find his book both captivating and practical. Let it be used in your life to inspire and enable you to live and lead like Jesus. -Bryan Brown, Director of Leader Development, Perimeter Church/Campus Outreach Bob McNabb gave us an excellent study of what the Bible has to say about spiritual multiplication. His reflections are firmly rooted in the teachings of the Old and New Testaments and show that every follower of Christ should be devoted to making more and more disciples of Jesus. But more than that, Bob has given us practical advice that stems from the many years serving the cause of Christ. This is the work of a man who is so devoted to the spread of the gospel so that more and more people can worship and serve one true God. Richard Pratt, Ph.D., President, Third Millennium Ministries McNabb mastered the art of making disciples. In this book, he passes along what he learned as a caring, humble and gifted coach. Each chapter is full of wisdom. So I said, get started. Connect with others who have a go-for-it attitude. There will be failures. Don't give up. You can make disciples. You can create disciples-makers. You and your friends can change the world. -Bob Blincoe, Ph.D., U.S. Director, Frontiers Bob McNabb is an expert in life-on-life ministry. His practices grow from his study of scripture; especially the life and ministry of Jesus. His experience and the research contained in this book will help you Lifestyle God invites every Christian to be a participant for the multiplication of the disciples-makers of Christ. -Mike Hearon, Global Leadership Team, Campus Outreach Bob McNabb created a very practical, and easy to understand guide disciles. They show how each believer can be involved in spiritual multiplication. -Enoch Yuttasak Sirikul, President, Thailand Campus Crusade for Christ, Chairman, Executive Committee of Evangelisation and Church Growth in Thailand Foreword by Robert Coleman Foreword by David Platt PART 1: Visions and Challenges of Spiritual Multiplication Chapter 1: Stars and Sand Chapter 2: Maybe Someone Else Chapter 3: Problems in Multiplication paradise Part 2: EFFECTIVE DISCIPLE-MAKING CONTEXTS Chapter 4: Soil Chapter 5 : Essential Elements PART 3 : EFFECTIVE DISCIPLE-MAKING PRACTICES Chapter 6: Gone Fishing [Evangelism] Chapter 7: Parenting [Fixing] Chapter 8: Learning to Fly [Equipping] Chapter 9: The Lost Aspect of Pupil-Making [Export] Chapter 10: You Can!
