If you're talking about looking at something like considering it, you might want to use considerar. And if you're going to tell me you're going to check it out or look at it, the best choice is revisar. Here are some examples of how opportunities are used in everyday conversation. I'm Mira la luna. And tan hermosa. = Look at the moon. It's so beautiful. Planeamos considerar tres opciones. = We plan to explore three options. El mecánico revisó el coche. = The mechanic looked at my car. Getting comfortable with the nuances of Spanish can take some time. But remember, you don't have to solve it all at once. As you move forward with your language journey, you'll learn to distinguish which option is best without having to do a lot of thinking. Rosetta Stone Dynamic Immersion® methodology teaches you to speak the language, not just memorize words. What makes it effective is to prepare you to use a new language in your daily life. So it's not just the features, but what you can do because of them. It helps you prepare to handle situations with confidence. You may want to focus on some basic building blocks when you start learning journey. These are basic Spanish words and phrases, such as who, what, when, where, why, yes, no, please, and so on. Learning these basics can get you on your way to having everyday conversations in Spanish. Here's a good list of basic words and phrases: Hola = Hello Adiós = Goodbye ¿Quién? = Who? Qué, what's wrong? = What? = Why? Dónde? = Where? Sí = Yes No = No Me gusta = I like no me gusta = I do not like Por favor = Please Gracias = Thank you Lo siento = Sorry Salud = Bless you Worth pointing out that if you already speak another great European language, spanish should be learned smoothly. Because English, as well as Italian and French, has deep roots in Latin, and these languages all share thousands of words in contemporary Spanish. These shared words are called cognates and have significant similarities in spelling and/or pronunciation. That's why you'll notice that many English words and phrases are like normal, which are almost identical to French (normale), Italian (normale), and Spanish (normal). To perfect you will need immediate feedback on your efforts. Rosetta Stone helps with the TruAccent™ recognition engine. TruAccent compares your voice to native and non-native speakers, giving you the feedback you need to pronounce it most accurate. It can also be adjusted, allowing you to tweak the accent if necessary. TruAccent is a powerful tool that helps you learn and speak Spanish. Once you conveniently pronounce basic words and short phrases, it's a natural transition to move from longer phrases you will use in everyday conversation. Rosetta Stone's short 10-minute lessons are built just like this — first teaching the basics and then managing longer terms. This approach will help you to master the skills to speak Spanish with confidence. Surround yourself in Spanish, anywhere with the Rosetta Stone app. Download a unit and knock him out on the train or the flight. Choose a 5-10 minute lesson and sneak in until you wait in line or the road will appear. And discover dynamic features like Seek and Speak, where you can point to an object in the real world and get a translation. The best part? You don't have to choose between the app or the desktop. Both come with subscription and sync, so you can seamlessly switch between devices. What people say about us. I love Rosetta Stone's software, and I think the approach to language learning works. With an excellent user interface, clear instructions, a wide variety of games and challenges ... Rosetta Stone has that effect. The golden scale of computer language learning.
