By Daniel Westlake movie sound is one of the most important parts of the film, but few people know how or where to download them. You can buy tracks on iTunes or AmazonMP3. However, there are a number of online sites where you can download this amazing audio movie I heard in this movie the other day. All you have to do is select the movie and the composer and check out one of these sites. A vast database that goes beyond the opening of a theme song, a song on credits or the tune of all the characters dancing to - it features less obvious numbers than a movie that only real fans will recognize. With over 45,000 titles to choose from, SoundtrackCollector.com is a serious musician and enthusiastic soundtrack who is truly a fan of composers and often brilliant and efficient work they do for every film. However, most soundtracks that are easier to find are mainstream pop songs purchased for soundtracks, not necessarily from composers who have done dozens of films. Keep this in mind if you're looking for something reasonably mysterious. Last.fm seems to have most musical tracks in its database - the challenge comes with finding those tracks. If you intend to use Last.fm to track this free soundtrack, you have all the keyword information available to locate it. Some titles are listed by film, some are listed by the composer and others are listed only by the title. Don't be discouraged if you can't find it at first - or just use one of the other sites mentioned above. This image has lost some time after publication, but you can still view it here.
