2017-18 doe calendar

Like many Mesoamerican calendars, the Tzolk'in, or Holy Round, calendar operated in a 260-day cycle. One theory about the importance of the length of his cycle is that 260 days are associated with pregnancy [source: Maya Mystery School]. Another suggests that the calendar represented the amount of time for corn cultivation. However, it is more likely that it was based on Mayan reverence for numbers 13 and 20. In the Gregorian calendar, we have seven days of the week and, depending on the month, anywhere from 28 to 31 days. The Tzolk'in calendar consists of a set of 20-day names, symbolized by images called glyphs, and 13 numbers called tones. Days are numbered from one to 13 and names are also given in order. The beginning of the Tzolk'in calendar begins with the name of the first day, Imix', and number one. The days continue in succession, with the second day being a combination of ik' and number two. Day names and numbers are combined sequentially until all 13 tones are used. Once the calendar arrives on day 13, declared by b'en and number 13, the numbers start again with one, but the day names move forward with the 14th glyph, Ix. Rotating thus, the two sets form 260 unique combinations of a day name and a number. For example, once you reach the end of the cycle of day names with 7 Ajaw, the day names start again in Imix, and the numbers continue: 8 Imix', 9 Ik', 10 Ak'b'al and so on. This content is not compatible with this device. Consider two interlocking gears, with the 13 numbers distributed around a smaller circular tool that fits inside the larger tool of day names marked in hieroglyphics. If you lock these gears together at number one and Imix' day name, then rotate the gears until you get to one and Imix' again, you'll get 260 unique days. These gears rotate until the final combination clicks into place at 13 Ajaw, marking the end of the year. It's easy to see the importance the Mayans put in Jolk's diary. For example, they believed that your date of birth determines the characteristics you will show in your personality – as some people believe your astrological sign does today. Holy men also schedule some events throughout the year based on the Tzolk'in calendar. At the beginning of each ouinal (20-day period), a shaman would count forward to determine when religious and ritual events would occur. He will then choose the dates that would be the most prosperous or luckiest for the community. Despite its myriad functions, the calendar still could not measure a solar year, the time it takes for the sun to make a full cycle. Because of this, the Mayans needed a more accurate calendar to track the amount of time we consider a full year. To fix it, since then I've added a border to cover it, but if you're not looking for a mistake, it's not that noticeable. In the instructions for color it says to first the area of the table by covering it with a layer of chalk, and then wiping it off. I bypassed this step, and it worked fine, but it only takes a second to do. Looking for a unique and personalized gift every mother on the planet will appreciate? Give her the gift of time. Does that sound tacky? Well, with this personalized approach it's easy for you to get it just right for the special mom in your life. Whether your mom is rotten and emotional, humorous and witty, or all that plus all in between, Giving Calendar will surely be her favorite gift of all time. And the best part fits every budget! Warning, this can become so popular that people ask for deliveries or ask you to teach them more often! In my family we call it the calendar and it started a year when I was finishing my master's degree and had an extremely tight budget. I knew in about 6 months that I would have to change as I had already landed a better paying job and would be able to devote the hours I put into school back to work. Being from a family full of cunning women, I'm all for homemade gifts. However, my time was tight and I have a whole folder of Pinterest fails so I didn't want to end up rushing out for a last minute gift, over the cost of glue and glitter used creating a home. So the diary was born. It's just a promise, written on paper, to spend time together. It takes guesswork out of what to do and creates excitement to last all year! So go buy, or do, a calendar and keep reading to challenge ideas about what your unique program twist will take! Spa Day If your budget is bigger, go ahead schedule a day. Most spas have group packages. From scalp massages and facials to manicures and pedicures, everyone loves to be pampered. For a smaller budget, if you don't have product around your home to use, there's a multitude or do-it-yourself sugar scrubs, coconut oil skin masks, avocado hair treatments and name it available with a quick Google search. Many fruits, vegetables and oils are multipurpose and can be converted into spa worthy filters. You can ask people to bring their favorite supplies or provide a special pair of slippers for each guest. Diffuse some soothing oils, provide mimosas or fruit infused water, some healthy snacks and you have yourself a spa. TV Series NightPlan can rent or DVR a favorite series and watch it as a group. Sometimes the gift to give can feel high pressure, but instead of the subject being pressure let it be something simple that everyone wants to do anyway, then plan to do it together! Baking EventMany cooking classes are offered at colleges, wineries or local restaurants. Check out living social or group for offers near you or if baking is something you like, share your talent and recipes with others. If you have a larger group you could create a bake-off. Children love the opportunity to judge adults in their lives, so if you have children, get them involved, allowing them to judge dishes for taste and presentation. Make scorecards and count the results to award the best baker (or group). This could be the theme of the entire calendar, giving people a fun incentive as they explore new ideas before the scheduled rematch! It awards a golden spatula to the winning team, which will pass as the winner changes hands. If this is a popular pick for your family, you could mix it by letting rival teams choose the ingredients with which other teams need to work. Each dish may not come out perfect, but the time spent together will be priceless Ed Gregory Pallets ProjectPallets' Stokpic is free, or close, from many businesses. There are thousands of ideas out there online on how to re-purpose your palettes on everything from wall art to bed frames to outdoor paths. There are elegant to rustic ways to express your personality with palettes! Grab the person with the most power tools and reuse old paint for him around, or buy the sample can for $2.50 from Home Depot, and you're ready to have a creative day EventYou may find tons of local events your friends/family may not have heard or thought about. Sometimes it seems like everyone knows what's going on, or that you don't have new and unique ideas, but remember that not everyone can be everywhere. And having the idea is very different than actually taking the time to plan it out. Whatever comes on your daily travels that catches your eye and causes your interest is a good bet to share with the close close You. Local home and garden tours, plant exchanges, open microphone nights in local cafes, apple collection, community concerts, local author book readings, are usually low and there are no cost options offered by many communities. If you have a friend or family who would like to join, sign up to your team and try a new way to put yourself out there! Not so local EventPainting parties, glass blowing lessons, wine tastings and mystery dinners are just some of the events usually offered near you and you can spot by checking out venues like group or live social. You can also make knock-offs of such things at home with smaller investments. If you have any talent you have spent your time developing, those close to you will be interested to have you shared. Gardening DaySchedyle to have your team learn about your interest as an amateur farmer. You could buy or use recycled glass bottles to force tulip bulbs but adding bulbs (rocks if desired) and water. Or if it's the right time of year to start buying some container gardens, how much fun it would be to do with friends. Use recycled items such as popsicle sticks to mark seeds, old plastic jugs or egg cartons to start seedlings and create a greenhouse effect. Book ClubYou can give a book with your calendar, and plot a day when it will be completed and discussed. Your team can come in the costume of their favorite character or just come to something comfortable. Themes always help your event feel special and unique and give visitors something to plan and show their personalities away. Whatever you choose to include in your calendar, or as many times a year as you plan to respond, get on paper and giving the gift of time will be remembered long after the perfect gift has been forgotten. There is an event for everything and for everyone, and with a little thought you will find wonderful ways to spend time with those close to you! You!
