Who has a sad background? (I: MwaHaha!) Who deserves at least a little bit on consideration? What are your best features? Do you see others to have their place in society, or for who they are? You are Ruby! You come out and support. You try to be friends with people who cross your path. Usually you are underestimated by others, only to prove that you are more likely even better than them. If anything you just need to open up to others, I know you might be afraid to show the real you but please don't listen to others and stay true to yourself. You can feel like if you hang out with people on lower classes that it will change you as a person, and hey, it will.
