One of the most common questions guinea pig owners ask is; How do I know if my guinea pig loves me? If you're looking for signs that can tell you if your guinea pig likes you then you've come to the right place. In this post, I will share what I found by researching several huge posts on the subject. Well, how do you know if your guinea pig likes you? Look for the following characters to find out: 1. Your guinea pig allows you to hold it 2. Your guinea pig eats off your hand on October 3rd. It's comfortable with your presence on October 4th. He doesn't give you teeth five. He climbs over you happily on June 6th. Shows interest in you In this post, you will not only learn more in depth about these signs, but you will also learn how you can make your guinea pigs like you if he does not do it right now. What are the signs that say your guinea pigs like you? Your guinea pig allows you to keep it Your guinea pig eaten with your hand comfortable can imply a like your guinea pig does not give you teeth! Your guinea pig climbs on you happily Conscionably show interest in You Guinea pigs, unlike humans, make it obvious when they like someone. You don't have to be a mind reader, just a very attentive person, to understand that. While it may seem like they hate you, it's only because they're easily afraid. Nevertheless, you can search for the signs mentioned below to know if your guinea pig likes you. Your guinea pig allows you to hold it Easily get scared and run in search of safety even when they hear the most inflammatory noise. They are generally social in themselves, but when it comes to interacting with other species. do not mix significantly. So if a guinea pig lets you hold it, you can be 100% sure your guinea pig likes you. Your guinea pig eating off Hand Guinea pigs don't really get along with their owners right away. It takes patience and love if you have to connect with your pets. So, on the initial days, you can just leave the food in the cage. Let them choose their own meal times because obviously the menu is not their choice! Gradually try to feed them with food from your hands. Wait for a day that will gladly eat out of your hand, and that day my friend, is the day when you know that you have found the best love in the world - love from a pet! Comfortably can imply likened you do not feel different levels of comfort with different people? You don't necessarily have a reason to, but you can't feel comfortable with everyone. It's the same with guinea pigs. You can't force them to love you, but if they're comfortable with you, they sure like you. You can know that they are comfortable with you when they show any of the following characters. They follow you around, stay next to you, let you play with them, and every connected sign means they're comfortable with you. At the end of this post there are tips have the opportunity to make your guinea pigs more comfortable with you. Your guinea pig doesn't give you teeth! If you've ever seen a guinea pigs, you'd notice there's nothing to defend but teeth. If you get bitten, they're probably trying to defend themselves against you. When they get to the point where they no longer see the need to defend themselves against you, you can be sure they like you. Although, you may need to remember something more important. In the case of guinea pigs, according to their estrous cycle, females can deliver about five litters each year. If you do not mate these females with some males, you are more likely to experience their bites due to hormonal changes that occur in parallel with their estrous cycle. So this sign may not be entirely convincing that you like your guinea pig. But it makes a good enough definition of such a sign. Your guinea pig climbs on you Happily When you relax on the floor after just letting your guinea pigs loose, if it climbs over you and happily sits on your chest, you will be aching to know that they really love you! As already said, guinea pigs take the time before they interact comfortably with humans. They show interest in YouAs you get close to their cage, feed them or maybe just let them free themselves for a while, show interest in you. Like, they're trying to stick their noses through the bars on the cage. But if they don't show excitement in such a case, it doesn't mean they hate you. Sometimes this can mean that they are dehydrated or in some other cases can be loneliness. If you have just bought or adopted a guinea pigs into your home, you may have to wait a few more weeks with patience and faith. Don't worry, if you give unconditional love, so will they, (unlike humans!) What are the best ways to get your guinea pigs like you? There is no specific way that fits well for every guinea pigs, in which you can make them like you. But there are some ways you can experiment. First of all, don't raise your voice when you're in front of them, they get afraid. Don't repent of your villains to these innocent creatures. Give them a lot to play for. Small pieces of wood, ping pong balls, a cage where they can dig short burrows, a cave inside a cage and many more entertainment subjects for your guinea pigs are needed to be happy. Let them roam freely in the house with you. Make them feel welcome in your home as members of your family, not just as caged pets. These signs show them that you really love them. And they will give you back twice as much love (or even more). You can read the full list of toys, groceries and types of smuds that guinea pigs love the most here. If you have selected all of the above in the checklist and read the entire article of the list, but you feel that your guinea pig does not love you, then you have no choice but to wait to be comfortable with you and the new environment you provide. In the time you're waiting, make sure you give a lot of love, if you ever want it back. Give love, take love! Related questions What does it mean when my guinea pig won't let me change his location? Guinea pigs have a great memory, and usually feel comfortable when things don't change. If you constantly change the location of their cage and the location where you keep their food or water, there is a greater chance that your guinea pigs are angry with you because you mess with their memory. How would you feel if I took you away from yours and smiled in the middle of the desert? While it's not the same to put your guinea pigs' cage from the living room in the kitchen, you might want to remember how confused you are if you mix two albums in your photo gallery. References 1 Feed him to earn trust. One of the best ways to earn the confidence of a guinea pigs is to feed with healthy food. In addition to hay and pellets, hand-feed vegetables, and fruits occasionally as well. This will cause your guinea pig to connect you and your scent to your favourite eating things at regular intervals. [1] Fruits and sweeter vegetables are an ideal snack to give to your guinea pig. Try to feed him once a day with a slice of banana or apple or a piece of paprika. Guinea pigs have different preferences in food, just like humans. Try different types of fruits and vegetables until you find the one that makes your pet happiest. Everything needs to be fed manually. This will cause the guinea pig to connect you with food and care at regular intervals. 2 Keep it right. You'll want to give your guinea pig a lot of attention, which means you should be very comfortable holding it. You'll want to give your guinea pig a lot of attention, which means you should be very comfortable holding it. It is best to support, but gentle posture. They pick him up with one hand under his belly, and one supports his bottom. Keep it close to your body, especially when you're moving. [2] The key to a successful wait is to make sure your guinea pig feels safe. It'll be harder for him to believe if he's afraid of falling. Keep him safe, but loose enough that he's still comfortable. This includes supporting his buttocks to get rid of this feeling of 'falling'. 3 Spend quality time with your guinea pig. It's not enough just to be in the same room as your guinea pig while they're in a cage. To effectively connect with your guinea pigs, make sure you spend time with them by removing them from their cramped area. Take some time day to pay attention to your guinea pigs while they have the freedom to move around. Guinea pigs like to play hide and seek. When playing with your pig from the cage, place a few empty paper bags around the room. Put treats in some of them and watch your pet have fun exploring! [3] Make sure you keep a close eye on your pet when they are on the move. We could easily search a few good hideouts, and you don't want to lose them. When approaching the guinea pig for the game, offer them a small treat. They will begin to associate positive incentives with spending time with you. 4 Have conversations. Talking to your guinea pig is a great way to get close to them. Guinea pigs are social beings and love attention. Put your pet's cage in a room where you spend a lot of time – maybe your living room or home office. Talk to your guinea pig throughout the day. It may seem strange at first, but you'll probably enjoy talking to someone who will never agree with your opinion. Guinea pigs make great listeners! [4] Use the guinea director's name frequently. Using their name, your pet will learn when you talk to them in particular. They will learn to look forward to special attention. 5 Understand the behavior of a guinea pigs. To earn the trust of a guinea pigs, you should spend some time learning to understand the characteristics of these pets. They're usually smart, sensitive and have a lot of energy. Pay attention to the habits of your pet, so you can learn their likes and not liking them. For example, learning certain places they like to scratch will go a long way toward gaining their trust. Guinea pigs are very sociable and love company. Consider getting a companion for your pet. It's not much harder to take care of two guinea pigs instead of one. And it can make it easier for them when you're not there all the time to give them the attention and socialization they need. Don't worry if your guinea pig doesn't respond immediately to your affections. As with any animal, it can take a while to earn the trust of a guinea pigs. Want more quizzes? Keep testing! 1 Be ready to bring your pet home. Before you first bring a guinea pigs to your house, make sure you have everything you need. Make sure you have a comfortable home created for them. You should also have enough food on hand for your new companion. [5] A good bottle of water is one of the most important items you will need for your new pet. Ask the pet store to recommend a brand. A good bottle of water will provide your guinea pig with the fresh and clean water they need without leaking. [6] 2 Create a comfortable and safe space. Most cages that are marketed guinea pigs are too small. You should look for a larger cage that is at least 7.5 square meters. This could mean that you are buying a cage that is intended for another That's fine, don't worry about the name of the product. [7] If you can't find the right cage, you can make your own. A good suggestion could be a C&C cage, which is spacious and affordable. In addition, you can customize the cage! Make it interesting. Guinea pigs love to move, so try to find a cage that includes ramps and different levels. Turn on the bed linen. Guinea pigs love to nest and drill, so make sure they have the material for it. Pine and cedar shavings, although widely sold, are not good for small animals, due to chemicals. Instead, ask the pet store for a paper-based bedding product or use fleece with some kind of absorbent foil underneath. 3 Be aware that the best food for guinea pigs is grass or quality hay. Feed this as the number one ingredient in your diet. Also, you can offer a small amount (no more than they can eat in 20 minutes) of quality extruding food. The latter is a pellet that is milled so that each nugget looks identical which stops the guinea pigs from selectively eating tasty pieces and leaving healthier parts. Feeding the diet entirely of pellets leads to either obesity or overestimation of the teeth of the guinea pig. Your guinea pig should eat a few portions of vegetables and fruits every day. Guinea pigs can not produce vitamin C, so you need to supplement their diet, because pellets are not enough. Some pork vegetables include kale, romain salad, carrots, celery (wires removed) spinach, parsley and cilantro. Keep in mind that some different vegetables will have different limitations on how much you can feed them weekly. Fruits are sweet, but can be fed once a week. Apples (removed seeds), blueberries, raspberries, blackberries, bananas, oranges, peaches (removed pits) and cherry (removed pits) are fruits to try. You can look online for more safe vegetables and fruits. Do not forget to feed organically if you can, and always, always, always thoroughly wash vegetables and fruits with water before feeding. Remove food residues after 4 hours to prevent bacteria from accumulating. [8] 4 Keep it clean. In general, your guinea pig will be able to take a bath. But every three months (or if it gets particularly dirty), you can bathe it. Put it in the sink in the bathroom, on top of the sink. Gently clutter the room temperature water over the guinea pigs and rub it in. Use a small amount of shampoo and make it in the foam in your guinea dog's fur. Then gently but thoroughly rinse. Just bathe the body of a guinea pigs, not her head. You don't want to get water in her eyes. Gently pat your pet with a clean, soft towel. 5 Maintain his health. Your guinea pig should see a vet once a year. Your vet can be sure that he is at a healthy weight and shows no signs of illness. Be sure to use a veterinarian who answers all your questions thoroughly and patiently. [9] Take the guinea pigs to the vet whenever signs of illness or significant behavioural changes. 6 Know the costs. Before you bring home a guinea pigs (or two) make sure you factor the financial costs into your budget. You will need to buy food, a cage, bedding and a water bottle. Do not forget to add occasional trips to the vet. Annual guinea pigs care costs between $500-$800. [10] Want more quizzes? Keep testing! 1 Appreciate his company. Animals can read moods. So if you want your guinea pig to trust you and appreciate you, you should reciprocate. Be sure to think about the value that owning a pet contributes to your life. Isn't it nice to have company when no one's around? The more you value your guinea pigs, the more they'll show off. 2 Let your children help with guinea pigs. Pets are a great way to help your children learn responsibility. Guinea pigs are the ideal first pet for your children. For your kids to help you feed a guinea pigs and teach them how to clean a cage. You, your children and guinea pig will benefit from this arrangement. 3 Enjoy the health benefits. It is known that people who have pets are healthier than non-pet owners, in some respects. Guinea pigs provide the same benefits as a cat or dog. Owning a guinea pigs can help prevent symptoms of depression, and can also lower blood pressure. [11] Want more quizzes? Keep testing! Add a new question Can you cuddle with a guinea pig? Pippa Elliott, MRCVS veterinarian, Elliott, BVMS, MRCVS is a veterinarian with more than 30 years of experience in veterinary surgery and the practice of companion animals. Retips wikiHow to unlock this expert response. Absolutely, even the kindest guinea pigs who are accustomed to their owner actively enjoy petting. If your pig is wrinkled, take precautions such as sitting on the floor and using towels so your claws don't scratch you. In this way, you are less likely to drop them if they do something unexpected. Question What does it mean when a guinea pig bites you? Pippa Elliott, MRCVS veterinarian, Elliott, BVMS, MRCVS is a veterinarian with more than 30 years of experience in veterinary surgery and the practice of companion animals. She graduated in veterinary medicine and surgery from glasgow University in 1987. She worked at the same animal clinic in her hometown for more than 20 years. Retips wikiHow to unlock this expert response. Guinea pigs have poor eyesight and discover their food with touch and smell. Maybe the guinea pig mistakenly bit your arm thinking you had food. Alternatively, a frightened or anxious guinea pig can bite if they have learned that a bite makes you take away your hand. The question is, how do you get close to your experiment? Pippa Elliott, MRCVS Dr. Elliott, BVMS, MRCVS is a veterinarian with more than 30 years of experience in veterinary surgery and accompanying animal practice. She graduated in veterinary medicine and surgery from glasgow University in 1987. She worked at the same animal clinic in her hometown for more than 20 years. Retips wikiHow to unlock this expert response. This is about winning their trust and helping them understand that you're not going to hurt them. You can do a lot worse than simply sit by the hut and read to the guinea pigs in a quiet voice. If the pig becomes curious and jumps out of the shelter to explore, quietly compliment them and offer a treat. If the pig is nervous, simply insert a treat (while talking) or offer it at the end of a wooden spoon. Soon the pig will associate the goodie with your voice and connect with you. The question how do you get a guinea pigs to come to you? Pippa Elliott, MRCVS veterinarian, Elliott, BVMS, MRCVS is a veterinarian with more than 30 years of experience in veterinary surgery and the practice of companion animals. She graduated in veterinary medicine and surgery from glasgow University in 1987. She worked at the same animal clinic in her hometown for more than 20 years. Retips wikiHow to unlock this expert response. Take things in baby steps and first win the confidence of the guinea pigs so that they are comfortable in your presence. Then keep a tasty treat a short distance from the pig's nose and praise them when they come for it. Gradually increase the distance that the pig must walk in order to get a treat. But be aware, guinea pigs are not like cats or dogs that can be trained in obedience. The best you can hope for is a short walk. Question My guinea pig is hard to get out of the cage, but once it's out of it it's fine. Why is it so hard for her to get out of her cage? Guinea pigs are used to being hunted, and you look like a predator, so instinctively, they'll naturally fear you. If you play with her gently every day she will become more aware that you will not hurt her. Even hand-feeding her treats will help. Then the guinea pig will trust you more than before. Question How many times do I have to take it to the vet? About once a year. You may need to go sooner if your guinea pig seems unhealthy. The question how can a guinea pig not scratch me when I hold him? Your guinea pig probably doesn't mean scratching, because scratching isn't a guinea pig's defense mechanism. What could be a problem is that his nails are too long and need trimming/filing down. Visit wikiHow to cut the guinea pigs' claws or book an appointment with a veterinarian to cut your guinea pigs' nails. The question is, how am I going to talk to him so he can trust me? Talk in a calm and soothing tone. Don't be loud or make sudden movements. Question My guinea pigs fight a lot, and one of them has a scathing. I'm worried, and they're very stingy, which I do? If they are struggling and may have injured themselves, then you need to separate them both and take them inured one to the vet (even if it is just a scapp). The question is, is it okay if my guinea pig starts nibbling on cardboard enclosures? Yes, but if your guinea pig starts eating cardboard, especially excessively, then you may want to replace it or cover it up. Show more answers Ask a question Thank you! Thank you! Thank you!
