

☐

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Daphnia food chain

Americans spend more on fast food than movies, music, books, magazines and newspapers. The rapid growth of this $240 billion industry over the past 30 years has been the result of economic changes that have forced more women to work outside the home. Here are the top nine fast-food chains and how they accumulate around the world. Go to the next page to see the first fast food chain on our list. Ad Content Almost everyone knows Jared Fogle as the poster child for Subway's healthy, low-fat diet. He lost 500 pounds in a year eating two subway sandwiches a day and walking. Subway was founded in 1965 by 17-year-old college freshman Fred DeLuca and family friend Dr. Peter Buck. Today there are more than 27,000 restaurants with more than 150,000 employees in 85 countries. With sales of more than $9 billion a year worldwide, Subway served about 2,800 sandwiches and salads every 60 seconds in the U.S. If all the sandwiches Subway made in a year were placed on the fly, they would wrap the world about six times. Originally founded by Dick and Mac McDonald as a barbecue drive-in in the 1940s, McDonald's Corporation now enjoys annual profits of more than $21 billion. The company, known for its signature french fries, trains more new workers from the U.S. Army each year, and an estimated one in eight Americans work for McDonald's. In 1968, McDonald's operated about 1,000 restaurants worldwide, but today there are more than 31,000. Advertising in 1958, Dan and Frank Carney founded pizza hut in Wichita, Kansas, brothers. Now based in Dallas, this restaurant chain specializes in American-style pizza along with side dishes such as buffalo wings, breadsticks and garlic bread. Pizza Hut is the world's largest pizza chain, operating more than 12,500 stores in 100 countries and employing 140,000 people. With annual sales of $5.3 billion in the U.S. only, the company has invested more than its closest competitors Domino's and Papa John's have totaled. In December 1954, James McLamore and David Edgerton opened the first Insta Burger King in Miami, Florida. The restaurant was based on an assembly line production system inspired by a visit to the McDonald brothers' hamburger stand. Today, Burger King has more than 11,000 restaurants in 65 countries. With an average annual revenue of $11.2 billion, the chain employs more than 340,000 employees and serves 11 million customers a day. The ad was the invention of Kentucky Fried Chicken Harland Sanders, who opened his first restaurant during the Great Depression at a gas station in Corbin, Kentucky. In the 1930s, Sanders 11 herbs and spices were touted as one of the best kept secrets in the world, and to this day Louisville developed his secret recipe, which was locked in a safe. Sanders, as he is known, sold his empire in 1964 for $2 million. Today, KFC is a $10.3 billion franchise with more than 11,000 restaurants in 80 countries. The company employs 750,000 people each year serving more than a billion finger-ing' good chicken dishes. In 1969. 1970, Thomas introduced the drive-thru window to his clients. The chain's passion for customer service and quality products has remained unchanged over the years. Today, with an annual revenue of $3.7 billion, Wendy's has more than 9,900 restaurants and 58,000 employees. Advertising Brothers Tom and James Monaghan first started Domino's Pizza in 1960 in Ypsilanti, Michigan, where they bought a pizza store called DomiNick's for $500. A year later, Tom became the only owner of the restaurant when James traded his share of the business for a Volkswagen Beetle. Tom has become one of the world's leading pizza chains with the name Storedomino's Pizza and soon more than 8,000 stores in 50 countries. Domino's, which serves more than one million customers a day, employs more than 140,000 people and has annual revenues of $1.4 billion. The ad opened the first Taco Bell in Glen Bell Downey, California, in 1962. in 1964, was awarded the first franchise and in 1969, Taco Bell went public on the stock exchange. Every year since 2001, company sales have increased by 6 percent, and today sales have been over $1.8 billion. Taco Bell has more than 6,000 restaurants worldwide and employs 143,000 workers. The ad was founded in Ohio in 1964 by Forest and Leroy Raffel, called Arby's R.B a game, an acronym for the Raffel Brothers and also for roast beef, the restaurant's special. Always ahead of its time, in 1991 Arby's became the first fast-food chain to offer a light menu, adding three sandwiches and four salads, all under 300 calories and 94 percent lean. In 1994, the chain banned smoking in all its restaurants. Arby's currently employs more than 82,000 people in 3,500 stores worldwide and brings in $1.8 billion a year. CONTRIBUTING AUTHORS: Helen Davies, Marjorie Dorfman, Mary Fons, Deborah Hawkins, Martin Hintz, Linnea Lundgren, David Priess, Julia Clark Robinson, Paul Seaburn, Heidi Stevens and Steve Theunissen Ad BuzzFeed Follow with the latest daily buzz with the daily news release! Jonathan Weiss/ Shutterstock There wasn't much chicken in the Dwarf Grill in the suburbs of Atlanta in 1946. Later the restaurant, with its signage including the chick-fil-a logo, became known today as the Dwarf House we know. Truett Cathy created the sandwich (chicken and two pickles on a topon) simple in 1964 and eventually, dwarf lice The empire is closed as it grows. Chick-fil-A lovers, here's what's really in their secret sauce. Eric Gay/Shutterstock For the creator of the famous A-frame burger shed, the big was just better. By the middle of the 20th century, there was a pie larger than six inches. But Harmon Dobson 5. It's such a big burger, what a burger! He's going to yell. And the name of his chain is a homage to this dream. Since dcwcreations/ShutterstockEver was a child, Dave Thomas knew he wanted to own a restaurant. And after 20 years we also, he just, in 1969 made his first Wendy's opening in Columbus, Ohio. Wendy was the nickname of melinda, one of her children. But his favorites were not playing - he tried the name of all five of his children before settling down. Take a look at the first places of your favorite fast-food joints8. In Chatchai Somwat/Shutterstock1954, brothers Dick and Mac McDonald had a small but successful burger joint in San Bernardino, California. But it was opportunist Ray Kroc who bought the restaurant and the name. Francis Joseph Dean / ShutterstockIn 1960, brothers Jim and Tom Monaghan bought a Ypsilanti, Michigan, pizza shop called DomiNick's. After some drama and subsequent increased success in the business, the original owner decided to retain his name rights. With a start date for an ad in the phone book (I remember this?), it's rumored that a delivery driver named Jim Kennedy came up with Domino's Pizza. Find out what is the most popular fast food restaurant in the year you were born. Jonathan Weiss / ShutterstockThis was a bit of a eureka moment when founder Steve Ells came up with the name Chipotle. It's like a light bulb went out, he told Bloomberg. Said. Others close to him said it was incomprehensible or very difficult to match pronunciation, while he remained loyal to it. And now, for burrito hungry, the name is at the tip of their tongue. Learn 18 secrets chipotle employees can't tell you. In Settawat Udom/Shutterstock1965, after the med school didn't work, Frank DeLuca and his friend Peter Buck opened Pete's super subs in Bridgeport, Connecticut, aiming to have 32 places over a decade. Sandwich slingers changed the name of Pete's Subway a few years later. But in 1974, with only 16 locations across the state, a startup decided to franchise business to achieve its goals. The name, basically, Subway. The story of how Nils Versemann/ShutterstockStarbucks got its name literally begins with st. While co-founder Gordon Bowker brainstormed name ideas with some friends, an advertising agency colleague explained that he thought the words that started with ST were strong. The group then came across an old map including a town Starbo, what? The name reminded Bowker of the Moby-Dick character Starbuck, and so an empire was born. Before settling in Starbucks, Pequodu preferred the name of the ship at Moby-Dick! Next, look at the fast-food scandals that have rocked the industry. Originally published as August 23, 2019Originally Taste of Home Wolves, mountain lions,, foxes and grizzly bears are natural predators of horses, but most horses live domesticated and well-preserved. Horses are not easy prey because they are fast runners. Horses are herbivores and subsistence on plants, herbs, fruits and vegetables such as oats, hay and corn. Horses sleep standing up so as not to be prey. In the wild, horses live in large herds to keep predators away. In some cases, horses are victims of human predators. People in Belgium, Kazakhstan, Germany, Japan, Mexico, Switzerland, Poland, China and Indonesia also eat horses as easily as Americans and Brits eat beef. Food chain producers in a pasture, primary consumers, secondary consumers, scathing eaters and pests. Every part of this food chain is an important part of life in this challenging environment. A pasture, producers include grass, shrubs and trees, designated as plants that make their own food, but also called autotrophics. Primary consumers are consumers who eat producers such as elephants and zebras. Secondary consumers are animals that eat elephants and zebras, including hyenas and cheetahs. Scamen eat the bodies of hyenas and cheetahs and contain vultures and termites. Finally, decomposers or detritivores eat scathing excrement. scathing eaters.