in: Characters, Toms, Song Cats Comments Share 2019 Movie Bustopher Jones Foppish, Gluttonous, Dapper Singer (high baritone/tenor) Original London Cast Original Broadway Cast Brian Blessed Stephen Hanan 1998 Film James Barron James Corden On the set of St James's the smartest of names is the name of this Cat Brummell. And we are all proud to be bounded or bent by Bustopher Jones in white sword! - Bustopher Jones: The Cat About Town Bustopher Jones is a featured character in Andrew Lloyd Webber's Cats. It only appears in the Bustopher Jones issue, and does not have an ensemble identity as such. Foppish personality. Gluttonous. Dapper Bustopher Jones is a parody of an Edwardian leisure knight. He is described as the cat of St. James's Street, a regular visitor to many local gentlemen's clubs, including Drones, Blimp's and The Tomb. It shows that he is great, cheerful, a personality who enjoys life to the fullest. He is particularly interested in good food and cooking available at different clubs. However, at the first sign of trouble, he leaves as fast as he can. Bustopher is a smart cat with a fastidious black coat and white sword, immaculately naked and well off. Because of these traits, he is described as this Cat Brummell - a reference to Beau Brummell, the founder of dandyism. Gus/GROWLTIGER/BUSTOPHER JONES paper: Tenor. Range to si flat. Character role. Playing age: 30 - 45 years. Gus: a fragile old theatre cat. In his sleep, Gus becomes Growltiger, a swashbuckling pirate. Bustopher Jones: a distinguished and aristocratic tomcat. The good life has made it round and plump. It appears in the song about himself: Bustopher Jones. He is the central character in this song and usually does not appear for the rest of the performance. The actor who plays Bustopher Jones usually also plays Asparagus/Growltiger, but in the original London production, was played by Brian Blessed, who also played Old Deuteronomy. Etymology The first part of Bustopher Jones's name is probably a mixture of Buster and Christopher, both common names in English. Similarly, Jones is a common English surname. [1] International names The following names have also been used for bustopher jones' character in several international productions: Appearance Bustopher Jones, as Mistoffelees, is a black and white tuxedo cat. Because of his steady lunch at clubs, he is noticeably fat (a 25lb). He has a fast black coat and apparently has white markings on his robes that resemble spats. He also wears a huge silver spoon as a staffer (except in the 2016 Broadway Revival). Her wig often has small laminated ears slightly similar to those of Jennyanydots. In the original London production, Brian he played both Bustopher Jones and Old Deuteronomy. As such, such, The basic ensemble costume design was based on Bustopher Jones (the first role in the running order), as seen in the black body and white bib. The design drawing is also corrected from Bustopher to Old Deut for the Broadway production, when the roles were changed to give Bustopher to the actor playing Asparagus. Many of Song's outstanding costume designs were re-drawn in 1981/82 for the Broadway production, resulting in two versions of the designs. The Broadway design by Bustopher Jones is more polished as a work of art, and features a portrait of Brian Blessed in the role. However, as a costume design the elements essentially the same. Bustopher Jones: The Cat About Town (Bustopher Jones: el gato sofisticado de la ciudad) is a poem written by T.S. Eliot in El libro de los gatos habilidosos del viejo Possum y un personaje utilizado en Cats, adapted musical work, and inspired by the poet's book, by Andrew Lloyd Webber. The poem Ejemplar de gato gordo con pelaje tipo esmoquin (esuxedo cat). Bustopher Jones's personaje is a parody of a caballero from the Eduardian período. It is the Gato de la Calle St. James quien lleva una vida idle pues es asiduo visitante of several clubs of caballeros of the area, including the Drones, the Blimp's and the Tomb. [1] Debido a que almuerza constantemente en dichos clubes es sorprendenemente gordo (25 libras). Tiene pelaje meticulosamente negro y al parecer tiene marcas blancas en sus patas las cuales asemejan polainas. [2] Frombido to these characteristics, they are described as the Brummel de los gatos, referring to Beau Brummell quien fuera founder of dandismo. Indemás the poem dice that this cat, as much dandis, suele considered as ejemplo, because it is a gato muy educado y cultivado, that practices the philanthropy between the gatos menos favorecidos. Bustopher Jones is not skin and bones In fact, he is remarkably fat. It does not chase the pubs, it has eight or nine clubs, Because it is the Cat of The Street of Sant Jaume! He's the cat we all greet as he walks down the street In his fastidious black coat No common mousers have pants as well cut or one back so flawless!. In the whole of Sant Jaume the smartest of names is The name of this Brummell de Gats. And we're all proud to be settled or inclined to Per Bustopher Jones in white sparrings! Bustopher Jones is not piel y huesos de hecho, surprised gordo. Not by the pubs, he has eight or nine clubs, for he is the Cat of St. James Street! He is the Cat to whom everyone when you walk down the street with your meticulously black skin There is no common mouse jacket, you have such well-cut trousers or such a flawless back!. In the whole of Sant Jaume is the most elegant of the names The name of this Brummell of cats; And we're all proud to be greeted with our heads or with a Bustopher Jones bow in white leggings! ... T.S. Eliot, Book of Qualified Cats of the Old Possum. [3] The musical Bustopher Jones, unlike Grizabella, is a popular character among Jellicle's cats. Attached to the poem, he is depicted as a cat with an elegant tuxedo cat, and as an obese-profile dandy, a member of gatuna high society. [4] In the original West End theatre production the role of Bustopher Jones was played by Brian Blessed, while in the original Broadway production he was portrayed by Stephen Hanan. In the 1998 film production of the DVD the role was played by James Barron. Other actors who have played the role include Morgan Nathan, Christopher E. Sidoli, Robert Purdie, Ryan Bailey and Bronson N. Murphy, the latter doing so during the national tour of the United States. During the original Broadway production, Stephen Hanan played the roles of Bustopher Jones, Gus and Growltiger at the same time. For this reason, there has been this same tendency with other actors from various theatrical productions. Takeda References. 2008; 73 Levine, 2003; 96 T.S. Eliot.
