With the inevitability of losing President Trump even to his aide Kellyanne Conway in recent days, his supporters are increasingly hoping for a second term on a final appeal, not for the Supreme Court, but for the one power that can be outweighed by: the death of Good George Floyd and the white response have made a firm point about how twin scourges of economic deprivation and apartheid have manifested themselves as the epidemic unfolds. It was my role as both the victim and the teacher, and it me off. In an article in the Wall Street Journal, John Ratcliffe, director of national intelligence, warned that the United States must be prepared for an open confrontation with China, which he likened to the Cold War, and Mr. Ratcliffe, who oversees U.S. intelligence agencies, said he believes China's intention is to dominate the planet in every sense: economically, militarily and technologically. He said US intelligence showed that China had conducted human tests on members of the Chinese People's Liberation Army (PLA) in the hope of developing soldiers with biologically enhanced capabilities. There are no moral limits to Beijing's quest for power. Mr. Ratcliffe said his unique view on the current security threats facing It led him to conclude that the People's Republic of China posed the greatest threat to America today, and the greatest threat to democracy and freedom around the world since the Second World War. He went on to outline the detailed details of China's economic espionage strategy, which he described as theft, repetition and replacement. Trade talks on Brexit came to a standstill on Friday night after the EU was accused of making a ridiculous 10-year demand for unfettered access to British fishing waters as a price for the deal. Boris Johnson has suspended talks to assess whether the deal can still be salvaged. A senior government source said: Their new show was frankly funny. They know we can't accept it. Mr. Johnson will speak to Ursula von der Line, President of the European Commission, on Saturday in an attempt to break the deadlock. He could also make a personal appeal to Emmanuel Macron, the French president, who is blamed for destabilizing the talks by making unreasonable demands on fishing and state assistance. Mr. Macron is under pressure from other EU member states to step up, with German Chancellor Angela Merkel on Friday urging a compromise on both sides to bypass the agreement. Protesting farmers say the new market-friendly agricultural laws are unfair and exploitative. Former Hong Kong politician Ted Hoi has announced that he has chosen to go into exile as Beijing intensifies its crackdown on prominent figures in the pro-democracy movement in the former British colony. Mr. Hoi, 38, initially fled to Denmark this week where his family joined him, but said he would make his way to the UK to continue his pro-democracy activities. He joins Nathan Law, a prominent Hong Kong-based human rights activist, and a growing diaspora of dissidents who continue to call for more international pressure on China to allow more rights and freedoms in the Asian financial center. My personal determination is that my exile will not be immigration. My only home is Hong Kong, which is why I will not apply for asylum in any country, Said Mr. Hui, adding that it would make his life mission a fight for the freedom of the city. Announcing his decision on Facebook, he said: There is no word that explains my pain and it is difficult to hold my tears. Mr. Hui also revealed that he had resigned from the opposition Democratic Party of Hong Kong. Last month, he was one of 15 lawmakers to withdraw from the city's legislature to protest Beijing's decision to oust four colleagues because of their political views. California endorsed its presidential election on Friday and appointed 55 voters who pledged to vote for Democrat Joe Biden, formally handing him the majority needed for the Electoral College to win the White House. With Secretary of State Alex Padilla officially agreeing to Mr. Biden's victory in the state, his tally of pledged voters so far has risen to 279, according to an Associated Press tally. That's just over the 270 threshold to win. These steps are often ignored in elections in their own way. But the hidden mechanisms for electing a U.S. president have sparked new scrutiny this year as President Donald Trump continues to deny Mr. Biden's victory and pursue increasingly deceptive legal strategies aimed at nullifying the results before they are completed. Edward B. Foley, a law professor at Ohio State University, said that although it was clear weeks ago that Mr. Biden had won the presidential election, his accumulation of more than 270 voters was the first step toward the White House. Mr Foley said: He is a legal teacher and his first teacher has this situation. Everything before that was based on what we call expectations. On Thursday night, Daily Show host Trevor Noah took aim at an unlikely goal: Democratic politicians. As you can see, a number of Dem politicians have been arrested recently telling their constituents to stay at home and avoid large rallies while ignoring those rules themselves. Among the offending Dems were San Francisco Mayor Of London Mail, who attended a group dinner at a fancy French laundry restaurant, California Governor Gavin Newsom, who was among a group of 12 people dining at the French laundry; and Austin Mayor Steve Adler, who made a video warning his colleague Austinites to stay inside -- but he recorded it from time to vacation in Cabo San Lucas, Mexico. Oh, man, come on! What's the situation with these Democrats? Noah asked, before imitating Adler's letter to the audience: This is your mayor here, telling you to stay home and stay safe. Do the right thing... All my kids in the pool know what I'm talking about. I'm sorry, man, everyone's given up their lives, and then you have these politicians who are just hypocrites here?
