It reached the 48-point Stand Hot 100[1] and 35th place on the Treasury charts. [2] The band released two similar follow-up songs over the next several months, Mama-Oom-Mow-Mow (Bird) and Bird's Name. [3] The combination of songs, played at a much more lively pace than the original doo-wop songs, was ad-libbed at early live performances, which the band set up and later released as one. [4] Initially, the single did not praise the original songwriters, but after Rivington asked for their copyright to be respected, the songwriting credits were amended. Trashmen's follow-up single Bird Dance Beat referenced Surfin Bird in the lyrics and featured several sections of papa-oom-mow-mow syllables. New Girl School garnered significant US airplay as the B-side of the Top 40 hit Dead Man's Curve. In 1969, the song's distinctive nominal nonsense lyrics appeared as similarly sung by the chorus of Giorgio Moroder's first single Looky Looky and the Oak Ridge Boys 1981 hit Elvira's oom-papa-mow-mow choir, an element that existed in songwriter Dallas Frazier's 1967 original version of the song. Al Frazier was a member of the Rivingtons and is listed as co-author of Papa Oom Now Now. It has been mistakenly reported over the years that he and Dallas Frazier were the same person. The song's title is quoted in the background lyrics of the song Summer Nights from the music of Grease. (The appearance of the lyric, which was written in 1962, in the song set in the fall of 1958, creates one of several anachronisms present in the music.) Garage rock band Nobunny added the lyrics to the song at the end of I'm a girlfriend. In 2010, heavy metal artist Rob Zombie re-used the song's title choir for his song Burn, which is an 8 track off his solo album Hellbilly Deluxe 2. Papa oom mow the lyric appears in a repeating refrain from Neil Sedaka's 1975 single Queen Of 1964.
