Hammurabi's code of laws worksheet answers

Hammurabi code (c. 1700 B.C.E.) Note: The Hammurabi Code was a compilation of nearly three hundred laws on every aspect of life. Much can be learned about the mesopotamia of life and ideals through these laws. It should be remembered that we can't be sure how well enforced these laws were, but it's safe to say that the mighty king in ancient Mesopotas thought it was laws that would guide only society. This code was not an entirely new set of laws, but a compilation and revision of previous legislation by Sumerians and Akkadians Prologue: . . . When Marduk (God of Babylon) sent me to rule the people and bring aid to the country, I established law and justice in the language of the land and supported the well-being of the people. At the time, I decided: Justice 1. If a man charges another man and charges him with murder, but he can't prove it, the accused will be charged. 2. If a man accuses another of putting a spell on him, but has not confirmed it, the accused will go into a sacred river, dive into a sacred river, and if the sacred river prevails, whoever has accused him will seize his house. If a sacred river proves its innocence and is saved, its accused will be spared. 3. If, in a case, a person ate the testimony he has given in the case of life, that person shall be sentenced to death. 4. Where a person treats grain or money, he shall bear the penalty imposed in that case. 5. If a judge delivers a judgment, delivers a decision, delivers a verdict duly signed and sealed, and then amends his judgment, summons that judge to make an amendment to the judgment which he has delivered and pays the sentence twelve times in that judgment; and, at the assembly, extoo him from his judgment. Property 6. If a person has stolen goods from a temple or house, they must be smouched; and the one who received stolen property from him shall be the ear of all the dead. 14. If a man has stolen a child, he must be wronged. 22. If a man practices a robbery and is captured, this man will be spared. 23. If the robber is not captured, the man who was robbed will do, in the presence of God and play out his loss, and the city and governor in whose jurisdiction the robbery was committed shall compensate him for all that has been lost. 24. In the case of lost life, the city and the governor shall pay (one pound) of silver to their heirs. 26. If the master of the fee or the officer of the order, which has been described in detail in the Royal Service, has not left or has hired an alternate in his place, that fee-master or warrant officer shall be put to death and the alternate hired shall take his place. Irrigation If a man neglects to keep his cube and does not strengthen it, and a break is carried in his bee and water takes away the farmland, the man in whose cube break was made will replace the grain that has been damaged. 54. If it is unable to replace the cereals, they will sell it and its goods and the farmers whose grain has been taken away by the water will distribute the proceeds of the sale. Shop 88. If a trader lends grain at interest, one gur gets a per hundred strength as interest (33 percent); if it lends money for interest, it shall receive one fifth of the shekel as interest per shekel. 104. Where the trader puts the producer of cereals, wool, oil or goods of any kind on the market, the representative shall enter the value and return the money to the trader. The representative shall take a sealed receipt of the money he gives to the trader. 105. If the agent is careless and does not take a receipt for the money he has given to the trader, the money he has not received will not be placed on his behalf. 108. If a wine seller does not take grain at the price of a drink but takes money by weight, or if it makes a drinking rate less than the rate of grain, they call the wine seller to take it into account and throw it in the water. 109. If bad signs are collected in the wine seller's house and she does not arrest them and bring them to the palace, that wine seller shall be put to death. 110.
