Pictures of buildings, mostly) Window of roses in Barcelona Author of original songs (those predominantly available through internal links scattered through the pages and posts of this website), while not a professional musician, is nevertheless occasionally inspired. The created genre of music can be described as predominantly country gospel, but it can also include influences of funk, blues, folk... You name it. I almost inadvertently inject sophomoric humor into my songs. But I love God. If I create just a handful of truly inspired gospel songs before I die, it will be worth the effort. Performances are available in two versions. The vocal version is primarily to educate the listener about the melody. The singer/songwriter is aware that he does not know how to sing well, but he is still determined to propagate the gospel by all means at his disposal. Once you've absorbed the information in the vocal versions of these songs, we hope you'll continue to make the songs your own either through recording, performing or even singing in the shower. A karaoke version of each song is included. The wonders of technology allow anyone to create and distribute music cheaply that attempts to glorify God, Jesus, and the Holy Ghost. If the result is not based on professional standards, I hope it is some merit in intent. The act of creation is a joy we can all share with our Lord. If nothing comes better than this endeavour, at least I hope it serves as inspiration and motivation for more capable evangelists. Master Guide Request for Records V 3 Write personal goals you would like to achieve in your service. The main goal of every Christian should be to share the Gospel, the Good News, with all the energy, time, and treasure they have at their disposal. If time and treasure prove insufficient to effectively carry out this infinitely important task, then there is an urgent need to reax your time and treasure. All other goals should be subordinated to this overarching goal, the main directive of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. After the Resurrection, and before ascension, he left some instructions for followers commemorated in acts 1:8: But you will receive dominion, after which the Holy Spirit has come upon you: you too will be witnesses for me and in Jerusalem, and in all of Judah, and in Samaria, and in the far part of the earth. Most people have to work for a living, Genesis 3:19 records God proclaiming to Adam: Eat bread in the sweat of his face. But the United States is currently prosperous and productive enough that a forty-hour week usually proved sufficient for the purposes of keeping the family belly full, ensuring they have something to wear and providing a roof over their heads (essentials - food, clothing and shelter). In the benign climate of the Roman province of Judea, Jesus said that only food and clothing are essential for survival. Matthew 6:31 records Jesus proclaiming, So don't think, saying, What are we going to eat? Or, what are we going to drink? or, regardless of whether we're dressed? He's got 168 hours a week. When you take 56 hours to sleep (8 hours a night), 40 hours for work, 4 hours to commute to and from work (increasingly it would represent an unforgiving amount of time spent locked up in a car), 10 1/2 hours to eat (30 minutes per serving, a generous figure, except perhaps on Thanksgiving), half an hour a day, or 3 1/2 hours a week to dress and groom , perhaps 20 hours a week for cooking and cleaning (a very flexible figure, depending on standards and preferences), and a non-transferable 24 hours (8 of which are dedicated to naps, which are already included in the weekly 56 for sleep) of God-given and God-commanded free time that is known as the Sabbath, then you end up with a total of 150 hours that must be dedicated to routine maintenance. This leaves 18 hours of absolute freedom for every hypothetical average working person. This rest adds up to 936 one-off hours each year. Some would choose (perhaps most) to spend this excess time with their eyes glued to the tube. But time is getting smaller. Paul writes in Ephesians 5:16 that we should all be Redeeming time, for the days are evil. Jesus, in John 9:4, offers some urgent information to those who are willing and able to help him in His important calling: We must do the works that have sent me as it is given. There comes a night when no one can work. Ellen G. White had much to say about the way members of the Body of Christ should prioritize. The title of a compilation of her works, Education, is somewhat misleading. A more descriptive title for this posthumous summary of her extensive corpus would be Evangelization, one-on-one. The older generation conveys the essence of its accumulated wisdom to the younger generation. The goal of the branch, how to make a living, is very subordinate the goal, the victorious converts to Christ. Here are some comments from the book Education: The Work of Education and the Work of Redemption are one. Education, as defined by Ellen White, is, without exception, education about Jesus Christ. Ellen White's attitude, given the handiwork, is very similar to Shaker's. Some segments of society looked at this activity (and still is), but Sister White confirms that there is dignity in the work. Whatever career path lay before the disciple, if there is no further work of God, it is not God's will to live. The greatest work of all is fulfilling Christ's prohibition on preaching the gospel to every creature. This last comment on Ellen G. White's compendium of files designated Education will serve as a prelude to a subsequent goal statement, in response to a Master Guide Record Card V V request on March 3, 2015. Although the Record Card requires a multitude of goals, there is, true, only one goal. It represents the central sun in the solar system of human endeavour. Yet we always misdirection too much of our attention to insignificant comets, which are described as nothing more than dirty snowballs, tertiary lamps creeping far beyond the pale. Too much time has been wasted on trivia. We manage to make a living. So what? The lawn is mowed. So what? We have achieved the rank of Master Guide. So what? A man on the street, an average American worker, a well-meaning but often inexplicably ineffective average Christian will wonder why they can feel like, despite the almost incessant level of activity, there may be something still missing in their lives. They attend the services of every Sabbath, but something is missing. They pay their forties and their bids, but something is missing. They can devote an hour or two a week to charitable works, but still something is missing. What may be missing is the commitment of their currently misguided remaining time to do the Lord's work. They must reassess the priorities of their time and rearer their treasures in ways that will shift emphasis from their selfish perceptions of what is needed for themselves into selflessness no matter what may be needed for others. Household food? I do. Clothes for the kids? of course. Shelter? Nice little three-bedroom, two baths, maybe? Of course, of course, it should prove necessary. But while they matter, perhaps these basic needs should not be considered so important as to monopolize our thoughts. A recent sermon at the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Berean, Atlanta, was based on our Lord's visit to the apartment of his good friends Mary, Martha, and Lazarus. Martha was preoccupied, everyday life, but Mary made priority by listening to Jesus' words. Luke 10:42 quotes our Redeemer: But one thing is needed: Mary also chose that good part, which will not be taken from her. People maintain dozens of subsidiary targets. They are likely to be of little or no consequence in the search for the overarching purpose of our existence, except as a kind of support system. Here again is a unique goal, ideal for which every other goal is forced to provide absolute. God, in His wisdom, has decided that we, unworthy and burning humanity, will enjoy the privilege of helping Him in the process of gathering in a warehouse at the end of time. The goal of (singular) obtaining that college degree, the goal of (singular) advancement in the corporate rankings, the goal (singular) of responsible provision of the present and future comfort of your family; despite the fact that they can inadvertently be smug in your mind, all these smaller goals are, in truth, just sideshows. The right action can always be found under the Great Peak. Ancient Egypt was a very fertile land. The inhabitants had so much free time on their hands, they could dedicate their excess work to building pyramids. If they had decided to redirect this time towards gospel activities, much of the world could now worship a multitude of gods (plural), not God (singular). Personally, I'm blessed with freedom. This is God's gift. How is this time supposed to be used? Ecclesiastical 12:13 refers to Solomon's conclusion which is not (rather uncharacteristically, for this son of David) at the very least: Let us hear the conclusion of the whole thing: Let us fear God and keep His commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. What's my goal, you ask? Simply put, do your duty. She's afraid of him. Obey his orders. What was the last thing he said before he rose to the Father? It was reproduced in the opening paragraph of this statement of intent. It will also form part of his conclusion: But you will receive dominion, after which the Holy Spirit has come upon you: you too will be witnesses for me and in Jerusalem, and in all of Judah, and in Samaria, and in the far part of the earth. The mirror quote of this instruction from Jesus Christ to redeemed mankind can be found in Matthew 28:19-20: Go to you, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all the things I have commanded you: and, behold, I am with you always, even to the end of the world. Amen. My goal is to be an effective witness. Having gained salvation, this compulsory activity is the most important thing in the world to me. Evangelism is high in consciousness, because so far it has been very neglected by itself. My goal is to do everything to the gentleman, as commanded, not just what may prove appropriate. Mr. E. Peters, secretary of the North American Department of Color, and the first black man to ever hold this office. Page 3 Vineyard we didn't plant. VERSION KARAOKE VERSION Numbers 13:2: Send men, so you can search the land of Kanaan... The bad reaction israeli children had to the report of 10/12 spies sent to Canaan resulted in God denying entry to the Promised Land for an entire generation. The exempt members of this generation are Joshua and Caleb, they can be described as heroes of this story. I was surprised this was just a four-minute song. It packs a lot of activity in four minutes. Natural resting places appear in the form of lists of tribes, leaders, and nations raised directly from the Bible. Like other educational poems in this collection, he tries to strictly follow the scriptures. VERSION KARAOKE VERSION Revelation 22:16: Jesus sent his angel to testify to you about these things in churches. This short hymn attempts to make some key doctrinal points, culminating in a reference to Christ's second coming. The song currently exists only as a set of intentions. It needs to be worked out very much with an orchestral background. VERSES Testify and 4 Testify, of every 2 Miracles of God's Belief-4 ation. IPage 5 An irresistible literary metaphor for life. VERSION KARAOKE VERSION The metaphor has been lingering for so long that it is practically an allegory. A sailor turns away from his former life as a buccaneer. A lot of freebooters are sanctioned by the crown. They were called privateers. Government monopolies (an electric company, for example) are like modern private individuals. The hero of this song, however, was beyond the pale. It's unrealistic to imagine him getting pardoned after his depredations. The action, however, depends on this device. With God, anything is possible. The melody of this song is so sunny that it reminds me of some of those Beatles interpretations of the English music hall singing along to the cattle (When I'm Sixty-Four, etc.). They were interpreters. Maybe I'm just thugs. Texts Able 8 In a sea of trouble, 8 Troubles that can overwhelm, be 8 Grateful if you have a good pilot who is 8 Standing at the helm. Page 6 Dish named after German bacteriologist VOCAL VERSION KARAOKE VERSION Matthew 9:12: Those who are whole do not need a doctor but are sick. We can blame the classic scholarship for fixating the medical community on pagan gods like Asclepius and pagan symbols like Kaducei (which is undeniably like Moses' bronze serpent), but Adventists and Catholics seem to be better at giving all the glory to god of the Bible. This song applies secular medical terminology to Jesus' healing mission. This rich vein of simulating could hardly be mined to exhaustion, but one minute twenty-one seconds seems right for short attention spans. The truth about God and his word is easy to deny in this world. No one really knows for sure! I've heard it from the lips of a mocker many times. I have to answer as much as the narrator of this song. To paraphrase: Well, I know. And one of these days, you'll know. This knowledge is inevitable. But be careful. Salvation can be avoided. This song should be a minute or so shorter. But in its present form it accurately displays sometimes lengthy answers that I deliver when faced with doubt. It's kind of a story. It's in country gospel mode, and, as usual, it's not particularly original. But I hope the message comes to that. VERSES Romans Fourteen Eleven 8 To him every knee will bow, 8 Every tongue will be sworn. That's not an eight-question if, it's a question of when. That's 8 The fate of all men. 4 In 8 During conversation, 8 If it should appear, 8 Mention what the Bible has to say. 8 Sometimes the other person sighs. 8 Whoever I talk to gets an 8 Distant look in my eyes. They say they 8 don't go in for all that religious 8 Jazz. Either they've had 8 They've never been to church before, or if they're 8, they don't go there anymore, or their 8 attendances are sporadic lately, and any- 8 ways they don't need it, they already feel great, and when you get to it they assume, that 8 churchmen, all of them, are looking down their noses, so 8 Full of Holy , they only 8 can not be for real. They just have to be fake. And that's 8 Just an opinion. One is as good as the other. Let me 8 Tell you I can really say full-mouthed, brother! 8 I have to do it again - 8 ply, even though I'm Church 8 Guy, and it's a wonderful place for 8 Be, it's made up of people who are 8 just like you and me. Un-8 qualified for bragging or bragging. As un-8 right as a dirty rag, but 8 Ghost goes to work in these places, put 8 smiles on people's faces. 8 Some judge, but some are not, and I 8 Know you need what a lot of them got. 8 Pray that the spirit may eventually make 8 moves toward you and take you where you need to be. It may 8 seem like nonsense today, but it's 8 Just so happens it's the only way. No o-8 pinion, it happens to be a fact, it's 8 Spirit tested and Scripture backed. You know 8 used to be just like you, so I know exactly what you're going through, and I'm 8 years old praying that you're going to end up being aduished for losing eight, I don't know that, and you have to be found. This 8 Moments you might think I don't make sense, but 8 Topic is important, a theme so huge, that all 8 books in the world just couldn't contain it, all 8 words ever said could never explain it. I pray that the Holy Spirit comes to educate, super-8 naturally, before it's too late. Better 8 Volunteer now, because on this you can depend: If 8 Do not volunteer, you will be recruited eventually. 8 To him every knee will bow, 8 Every tongue will be sworn. That's not an 8 question if, it's a question of when. That's 8 The fate of all men. People.
