The district consists of seven K-8 schools, with more than 5,200 students and 650 employees. [quote required] History The first school in Buckeye was built in 1889. It was a one-bedroom school made of lumber and is located on the north side of Clanton Street between the fifth and sixth streets. Just one year after it was built (1890), W. J. Melton organized a Baptist church group that met there on Sundays and on social media. The school grew up in the building and had to move, but the church remained there until 1931. In 1903, Buckeye built a four-bedroom, two-story, red brick building with an outdoor staircase with a wood-trapping under the stairs. It was just east of the original school and across from today's primary school (211. S. 7th Street, Buckeye, AZ 85326.) There were two large rooms on the ground floor and two upstairs. In 1937, Buckeye Elementary School was built on its current location. As the community Buckeye grew, so did the school district: 2002 - Bales Elementary School 2004 - Sundance Elementary School 2005 - WestPark Elementary School 2006 - Jasinski Elementary School Bales Elementary School has nearly 800 students. 2009 - Inca Elementary School 2017 - Marionneaux Elementary School Inca Elementary School in Buckeye, Ariz. educates almost 775 students. Marionneaux Elementary School is the newest school in the Buckeye Elementary School District. The school was built in and opened with almost 750 students. WestPark Elementary School located in Buckeye, Ariz. and has almost 730 students. Jasinski Elementary School in Buckeye, Ariz. Sundance Elementary School in Buckeye, Ariz. is a K-8 school with almost 780 students. Buckeye Elementary Preschool, located on the campus of Buckeye Elementary School, opened a separate campus next to BES in 2004 and an additional campus at Jasinski Elementary in 2017. Buckeye Elementary School in Buckeye, Ariz. Originally built as a one-bedroom wooden structure, the campus has nearly 870 students. Governing board The original Buckeye Elementary School was built in 1889. It was a one-bedroom wooden structure and in the early days was also used as a Baptist church. The Buckeye Elementary School District Governing Board consists of five members, each of whom live in the school district and are elected to a four-year term. They serve voluntarily. The chairman is Marcus Eads, Clerk is Jane Hunt, member Richard Hopkins, member Amy Lovitt and member Gina Ragsdale.
