Eureka bagless vacuum cleaner

Life in the country with a pet and a toddler just does not work without vacuum! Here's why Eureka Powerline is the best I've ever had. Eureka Powerline Reviewsharkye11Six months ago, I murdered my old vacuum. It was the third time in two years. Two bissels and a dirt devil had been in and out as soon as I barely got to know them. What I knew was that I couldn't keep a house clean with a toddler and a cat without a vacuum cleaner. We also live in the country, which means that outdoors come in. I had never used a Eureka vacuum before, so I didn't even consider buying one. I was going to upgrade to a slightly better Bissel. I didn't want to oversus its control overse are something that might not last until Christmas. What essentially attracted me to this vacuum, however, was the bagless container. The bissel vacuum had a bad tendency to blow the bags off the socket, otherwise the bags would explode even when they were not full. The bags on my Dirt Devil were very difficult to replace. It took an 55-mile trip to find a store that carried the right bag for my model. The belts had to be ordered online. I was definitely ready to try something else. Consider your experience with Eureka Vacuum's Eureka Powerline has the perfect setting for any carpet.sharkye11How I chose my new vacuum I was a little wary of a bagless vacuum first. I was worried that the container could leak dust or clog easily. I read some reviews about bagless vacuum cleaners in general and decided that with a high approval rate, even among pet owners, the bagless way was to go. My local store offered four brands to choose from: Hoover, Eureka, Dirt Devil and Bissel. This was an emergency purchase, so I was looking for the optimal vacuum for my money. Here are the things I took into account.Price. (My budget was under $70.) Affordable and available spare parts if applicable. Weight. Multiple height adjustments. (I have 5 different styles of carpet in my house, as well as hard floors.) Hose and wire length. Filter style. Types of built-in tools. Ampere of power. The Eureka Powerline container is easy to remove.sharkye11Eureka Powerline FeaturesThe Eureka Powerline came with a washable, allergen-fighting filter, which is always a plus when you have pets and blankets. A vacuum that does not require bags or filters means less money spent on monthly maintenance. I also checked that the belts were available in the correct model size. Eureka had these features: Built-in tools: Extra long extension rod, crack tool, dust brush and air-driven furniture brush. 25-foot power cord: Reaches almost everywhere. Stretch hose: Extends to 12 feet. Tip-less design: Allows you to vacuum steps without worrying about the vacuum falling over. 15-inch cleaning path: Gets the floor cleaner faster. Five height settings: Perfect for walking from my high pile to wooden floors. 12 amps by force: This my husband's highest priority. Lightweight design: Always a plus. There were no specific measurements, but the dust cup seems larger than the Dirt Devil and Hoover models as well. So, still holding under my budget, I got the vacuum that had the most power, with the lightest weight, most height settings and longest hose. In addition, the air-operated brush. It is clear, so you can see it works.sharkye11Pros and disadvantages of Eureka PowerlineNow, I will take a brief look at the vacuum's overall performance and how well the features work. I would say that the very first thing it did was throw a belt. But considering my history with vacuum cleaners, I'm not sure it's the vacuum design itself or me at fault. It hasn't thrown one since and I've used it twice a day (at least) for six months. Pros and cons:Suction-I was very pleased and surprised at how much sucking this vacuum offered. It takes a little extra strength to push it on the carpet, but it cleans very deeply. The container was full in less than three minutes, or about half of a room, the first time we used it. It was after two weeks without vacuum, but it was obvious that dog hair in there was from before we moved in. It was a bit disturbing to know how dirty the carpets were when they seemed clean. Currently, the container needs only emptied every four vacuum sessions. One drawback of the extra soak, however, is that it actually pulled part of the carpet loose. 12-foot snake - I really love that the snake is ready so I can see any clogs. With 25 feet of wire, 12 foot stretchable hose, and extension rod, there is no place in the house that I can not reach. However, the hose is very stiff. If you try to stretch it without holding on to the vacuum, the no-tip vacuum will actually tip. I've noticed that it has loosened significantly with use, though. Another problem with the snake is that it slips out of the body insert, causing loss of soak that can go unnoticed for quite a long time. Upholstery Brush-This gadget is great. It has its own whisker that does a good job of removing cat hair from the furniture. It is also convenient for decorative carpet and other small parts of the carpet. I also used it to remove dust from the textured ceilings. What don't I like about the air-powered brush? It has a very high-frequency whine that is almost too high for comfort. Overall design -- I like the design in general. It fits easily into my diet it is easy to maneuver, and it is very easy. It was a bit confusing at first to have power and deal with the release at the bottom of the body. But after I got to know it, I liked the idea. The only serious con to body design is the cord and hose wrap system. It is confusing and a little inconvenient, since the wire is behind the hose. There is so much work wrapping and wrapping them that I end up just wrapping the cord around the handle. I consider that a slight disadvantage to how well the whole vacuum cleaner performs. At the end of the day I want a vacuum that can clean up the mess as well as the dust! sharkye11Find tanksIf you are in the market for a new vacuum but do not want to go with a luxury model, Eureka Powerline is a good choice. It is a particularly good choice if you:need more carpet settings. must carry the vacuum up and down a staircase. have high ceilings or other places that require a long hose. do not want to mess with bags and disposable filters. have a pet. My husband and I had a lot of fun the first few weeks seeing the mechanisms inside the clear container, and my daughter likes to use the pet brush to clean the chairs. It's not just a vacuum cleaner, it's entertainment! In addition, it comes in a very sporty shade of yellow with black trim, which is the closest any of us come to a sports car this year. All in all, I give this vacuum an 8 on a scale of 1-10, or a 4 1/2-star rating. It is affordable, easy to handle and efficient. It is by far the best vacuum I have ever owned or operated, and I would definitely consider buying some of Eureka's other floor care devices after this positive experience. How did you replace the belt? I smell like rubber burning after a few minutes of vacuuming... Also the suction is not strong, how would I trouble shoot to improve that function? CraftytotheCore on August 11th, 2013:I have a similar one, and it may even be the same! I found it on sale and glad I bought it when I did. The store replaced its entire range of vacuum cleaners with a completely different product line. The funny thing is, I didn't read the instructions until I tried to empty the bagless container. I was out struggling with it. Neighbors drove by looking at me as if I had just caught a wild animal. LOL. It's so easy to use. It just took me a little bit to figure out. Jayme Kinsey (author) from Oklahoma November 15, 2012: Wow, Perspycacious! You have the luxury model vacuum! Mine is just a Model. :) Almost everyone I know who has had an Electrolux owned it for years. Sometimes you really get what you pay for! Thank you for the comment and congratulations to you too. Jayme Kinsey (author) from Oklahoma November 15, 2012: Thank you, monstreasurechest and lipnancy! I also used a couple of other Eureka marks on other people's houses, and was equally impressed. I would highly recommend the brand. Demas W Jasper from Today's America and The World Beyond on November 15, 2012: A nice article with great detail. If I ever need a replacement for our 1978 Electrolux (more expensive, but look at durability and power!) I'll probably consider this Eureka on your say it. Congratulations on being a co-winner of The Daily Drawing with this Hub! Jayme Kinsey (author) from Oklahoma, 14. I rarely buy new appliances and gadgets, so I had a hard time thinking about something to consider! Nancy Yager from Hamburg, New York 14, has had many, but never Eureka. I will keep this positive review in mind for the future. MonstTreasureChest November 12, 2012: I'm in the market for a new vacuum, thanks for the amazing review! Shining Irish Eyes from Upstate, New York November 12, 2012:I swear by Eureka as we went through quite a few models even before finally settling on this outstanding brand. It can handle the cleanup provided by my shedding dog as well as a busy house. Great review Voted up
