Here are some reasons why: Compressor and GunYou can't achieve perfect makeup without a high quality compressor and airbrush gun. The compressor is responsible for how the pigment is projected, and the gun gives the artists control over the makeup flow. The Dinair compressor is perfectly compact, with a variable airflow function. This gives you the ability to adjust the speed at which the pigment moves from compressor to firearm. The Dinair airbrush gun has an easy handle, which helps control the application. Using this airbrush technology, makeup artists can create a wide range of makeup looks, from edgy aesthetics to bridal looks. Water Based Airbrush MakeupWhen it's airbrush makeup, there are several varieties to choose from. Dinair uses water-based makeup, which is the most popular type. This type of makeup is thin enough that it can be sprayed through the airbrush gun. Because of its consistency, it creates a slight mist of makeup on the skin. Make-up artists can choose to build a which ultimately creates the flawless finish associated with airbrush cosmetics. The water-based formula used by Dinair creates a matte finish. This makes it perfect for settings with lots of bright lights, such as cinema, television and wedding photography. Water-based airbrush-based makeup also has an impact on skin texture. If you are going to use Dinair airbrush makeup, you cannot use it as an on-site treatment; you have to use it on your face. If you are interested in a pink finish, you may want to look into airbrush silicone makeup. A range of makeup productsDinair offers a wide range of electronic makeup products compatible with airbrush technology. The foundations are available in four colour ranges: light, medium, beige and dark. By mixing and matching the shades, you can create the perfect match for any skin tone. These foundations also end with three different finishes: natural matte, satin finish and matte finish. They can all be used to create a slightly different makeup aesthetic, ranging from light, natural looks to full coverage looks. Dinair kits also feature bonus make-up products, such as blush and eyeshadow. By using the full range of Dinair makeup products, you can achieve consistent and lasting coverage. How does it compare? Dinair offers some of the most popular airbrush makeup products available. These products are ideal for makeup artists and beauty lovers who want to experiment with airbrush technology. With the compact compressor, easy-to-use gun and versatile make-up options, it's hard to go wrong with Dinair. There are other options available, however, that have their own virtues and flaws. Temptu Premier Airbrush Makeup KitIf you want a pure and buildable cover, you can consider Temptu products. The airbrush temptu makeup uses silksphere technology to achieve a light and radiant finish. The make-up comes in aeropods, which minimizes the mess and makes the airbrush experience hassle-free. Tickled Pink Airbrush KitWhite Makeup is ideal for professionals, beginners may want to try tickled pink airbrush products. The brand's kits are stocked with a single-action airbrush designed for home use. Water-based makeup is infused with organic aloe juice, making it soft on the skin. If you have tried other airbrush foundations and found them too hard for your sensitive skin, pink tickled may be good for you. Luminess Air Airbrush Makeup KitIf you want a wide selection of products, you may be interested in Luminess Air products. Airbrush systems are among the smallest available on the market, making them easy to store. They also boast of whispering silent engines and weak psi, which guarantees accuracy. The best part about Luminess skin, however, is the number of airbrush makeup products. The brand offers airbrush foundations finishes that range from silk to matte. Airbrush eye shadows are available in colours that range from bright yellow to lavender. Sculpt your face with an airbrush bronzer, and add depth with airbrush highlighters. Thanks to the varied selection, Luminess is an excellent choice for professionals who need to meet the requirements of their clientele. 100% Airbrush Makeup Demo with Dinair One From time to time the world of makeup is shaken by an innovation that defines the industry for the foreseeable future. This is true for the world of mainstream beauty brands and it applies just as well in the more specialized, somewhat elusive airbrush makeup niche. Dinair's new system, a well-named The One, is the next and, in many ways, the ultimate step towards portability that has been the goal of this sector in recent years. The One system is an incredibly compact mini compressor that is slightly larger than an egg, and only slightly heavier, but it has an impressive and ultra-calm pressure output, a very durable battery, a fantastically ergonomic shape and most importantly, a spring clasp (standard fast connection) that allows you to exchange airbrush in seconds. The pressure output is this perfect soft setting that allows you to spray one of Dinair's formulas (all water-based) without any problems, achieving perfect atomization, even with shades that contain shimmers, which are usually those that require more power in your standard table top unit. The compressor body is made of a very attractive high-tech black rubber polymer (like a luxury but thicker cell phone case) with a matte, satin finish that is almost velvety to the touch, and a Polished Dinair logo on the side that reflects light and looks almost like silver in the photos. There is only one button on the device to turn it on and off, and as I said the exit is so quiet you can use it in a hotel room (or just about anywhere else) without fear of disturbing anyone, even if they sleep on the other side of a thin bathroom door. Loading time is about an hour, but you don't have to do any guesswork about time because the charger has a red light that will turn green when the battery is full. The duration of a single charge is quite impressive. When I unpacked my unit, I continued to use it every day for more than a week for the base and several tests before I had to reload it for the first time. The pressure output doesn't decrease noticeably as the battery runs out, so you don't really have a warning sign that it will, but you really don't need it anyway as the device works perfectly, even as it recharges, and the generously long cable that comes with it allows full mobility. Ergonomically speaking, the way you use The One depends on you: if you have small hands, you can simply hold the airbrush as you would any other and you quickly forget that the mini is here. If your hands are slightly larger, the mini compressor will snuggle up in your palm very comfortably. As for the airbrush, The One comes with Dinair's new CX model, which is more reliable and easier to maintain than any of its predecessors. If you don't forget to use the closed cleaning caps, keeping the airbrush in top shape will be a breeze. However, if you have flow problems, you will be able to airbrush in seconds and finish your makeup without a problem. The One is packaged in a plain white box with its kit package that includes foundation in your chosen shadow range and a selection of appropriate shade colors to blush, highlight and eye shadow. At the moment, it is only available as part of a makeup kit, but I am convinced that Dinair will make the compressor available only to established customers who already use the brand and will want to switch to this irresistible portable option. The One represents a huge improvement over the limited edition hand-held fir unit that was sold by Dinair a few years ago. This new exclusive design is the smallest, most efficient and versatile cable and free hose, palm top system out there. I love it and it took first place on my desk for my Dinair products. In the attached video, I used The One to make this complete makeup, using all the Dinair colors also from the new Venus collection and their Velvet foundation line has just come out. A more detailed review of these products will follow in my next post. Pro Tips: -The faster the compressor is turned off at the end of each makeup step, the harder the battery and the less dry tip. Most makeup build-ups accumulate on the tip of the needle when the airbrush is only blowing air, between applications and not applying makeup. The on/off button is placed directly below where the tip of the ring finger usually rests when holding the NEB. -Only use the Dinair One compressor with continuous airbrush. If the airflow is blocked (by an airbrush with the air valve closed as a standard double action), it can quickly damage the compressor, which is not covered by the warranty. Author's note: as with all my reviews to date, this is an unspent and unpaid review. I would like to thank Dina Ousley, George Lampman and Dasia Sibrian of Dinair for kindly making this product available to me, as well as for their invaluable help and insight. Insight.
