Wearing the hair au naturel has never been cooler, but those of us with curly or wavy strands know that letting our kinks loose with leave in is easier said than done. After all, our curls can only be as good as the products we use – defined, gorgeous curls and healthy, hydrated strands go hand in hand after all. Firstly, when choosing the right product for your strands, it is important to remember that curly hair is fundamentally different from straight hair. The follicles on the scalp that house the thread that it grows are flat and elliptical, causing the strand of hair to curl as it grows, explains Leigh Hardges, a stylist at Maxine Salon in Chicago. Furthermore, the in shape largely the reason why curly hair needs more and hydration; it makes it harder for the scalp's naturally moisturizing oils to travel all the way down the hair shaft. Bottom line: Look for products that help you embrace your natural moisture, and are specially formulated to give your curls what they need. From styling creams to smoothing oils to leave-in conditioners, we have you - and curls - covered. Here are the best hair products for curly hair. Define and humid-proof the curls with this leave-in cream. Rice amino acids and avocado oil will help hair retain moisture, which prevents frizz and damage. This cream is made with 96% naturally derived ingredients and contains no dyes or silicones, so it is safe to apply to any type of hair. Second- or third-day curls can be left looking a little flat and tired. Instead of locking them inside a dull topknot, now for this spray. A combination of water and glycerin brings curls back to life, reshaping and rehydration them as soon as you spritz it on. It also gives great shine and frizz control. In other words, it puts the curls back into formation. If you're struggling to find a solution to dry, brittle curls, the right co-wash may be exactly what your routine lacks. Instead of using shampoo for each wash, try this moisturizing formula to remove product residues and impurities without sacrificing moisture. While some shampoo strain and strip hair, this formula uses yummy ingredients such as coconut oil, castor oil, and citrus extract to revive the curls for more manageable hair. We also love that it has a lot of slip, making it ideal for detangling. Give your hair some TLC with this all-natural deep conditioning treatment. With three different formulas to hydrate, repair or define your curls, you can think of this product as a frozen treat for your lids. Apply it to clean hair for 20 to 40 minutes under a plastic cap, and your hair will thank you for fresh fruit, protein and transformative fatty acids. For hair that retains moisture and length, experts recommend deep conditioning at least every two weeks. When you have curly hair, you can find the hair dryer can be your enemy. Too much heat and you get frizz. But now there is a whole industry around maintaining healthy curls, resulting in products like this diffuser, which attach to the end of your hair dryer (try ionic dryers to cut the drying time in half) and coaxes the perfect ringlets out of your hair. Having fine hair and curls can be difficult since many defining creams can weigh them down. But not this gem from Moroccanoil. The featherweight formula is filled with argan oil to calm frizz and refine ringlets, all without feeling greasy or sticky. It works its magic to bring on the bounce for all curl types, from waves to tight coils. In addition, it restores elasticity, which makes the hair more manageable. Celebrity hairdresser Ace (known for her work with Lauren Lauren Lucy Hale, and more) has a line of affordable, high-quality hair products that you need to try ASAP. Those with curly hair know what a tangled mess your tresses can be when you first get out of the shower. Spray this leave-in conditioner all over wet hair up to 10 times -seriously, it is so weightless, there is no need to be frugal - and it will leave the hair soft and shiny. Bonus: This balm smells amazing (think tropical breeze and piña coladas). Coconut oil is this leave-in balm secret ingredient, which works to detangle and hydrate. Ideal for letting your hair air dry, it's a great time saver. Curls are left soft and swinging, protected from frizz and moisture. The natural formula contains ethically traded ingredients that are also sustainably produced. This hair butter will leave the hair nourished and hydrated without weighing it down or leaving the greasy. Made without petroleum and mineral oil, this butter is packed with natural ingredients and seven essential essential oils. Keep your hair healthy and manageable with this best-selling formula. A gel that defines your curls without letting it dry and flaky? Yes, please! This moisturizing curl control gel eliminates frizz and lengthens curls while becoming soft to the touch – making it the ultimate styler. Raw castor oil nourishes your hair to promote growth and the blueberry extract smells amazing. This non-sticky gel gets extra props to deliver results to those with loose curls and waves to those with thick, kinky hair. If you have embraced your natural texture, this product is for you. And Vernon Francois knows natural hair. Made for kinky/ hair or tight coils, this serum encourages healthy hair growth by nourishing strands with a mixture of six botanical oils. It keeps curls in place without feeling or looking sticky or greasy. Grapefruit and ginseng give it a crisp, refreshing scent. Kerastase makes some of the best products for curly hair. Their Bain Fluidealiste Nouritive Bain Elasto-Curl Shampoo is praised by beauticians for its intense moisturizing properties. It will soften coarse, curly hair while improving your natural curls and eliminating frizz. Say goodbye to knots that lead to breakage and grow hair longer and stronger with this herbal balm. The name says it all! Those with kinky curly hair know that washing day can be a time-consuming task, but slip in this moisturizing product makes detangling a breeze by smoothing the cuticle and removing knots. Use it as a traditional rinse-out conditioner for those with waves and loose curls, or try it as a leave-in for those with tighter textures. To avoid fractures in curly hair, always wash your hair while wet and soaked with the product. Curly girls and boys have no shortage of products to choose from, but we think the best product for curly hair is Curl Charisma Charisma Amino Avocado Leave-in define cream. The risamino acids and avocado oil will help your hair retain moisture, reducing the risk of frizz and injury. To update the second or third day curls, try Miss Jessie's Curls So Fresh. The water and glycerin combination will rehydrate your hair and bring the curls all the way back to life. First of all, you need to make sure that you choose a product that is specially formulated for curly hair. It sounds obvious, but because curly hair is so different, it is essential to use curl-specific products. Moisturizing ingredients are your curls best friend (think glycerin, shea butter, and natural oils). Because curly hair is naturally more prone to dryness than straight hair, the more hydration you can wrap into your hair, the better. That said, while curls need a little extra TLC, they also need some downtime. Curly hair needs a lot of attention, but it also just has to be alone. It thrives on the least styling and manipulation, hardges notes. In other words, style them and then leave them alone - the less you touch and mess with them, the better. Similarly, you will also make sure that all products you use are free of ingredients that can wipe out your threads. That means things like alcohol and sulfates are a no-go since the last thing you want to do is strip your curls of the moisture they have. Have.
