The film is directed by Jeff Fowler in his directorial debut and is written by Patrick Casey and Josh Miller. [4] [5] The film includes Ben Schwartz as the film's titular protagonist, Sonic the Hedgehog and Jim Carrey, with James Marsden and Hinges Sumpter as Dr. Robotnik's voice. The film features the assistance of a small-town sheriff Sonic as he attempts to escape the government. CGI/Live Action Hybrid Film The film is an American-Japanese joint venture between several parties. It is co-produced and funded by Paramount Pictures, with Neil Moritz serving through producer as well as his original film banner. Tim Miller also serves as executive producer under his animation company Blur Studio, and assists with Sega's Marza Animation Planet Unit animation. This is the first entry into a planned film series. [6] The film premiered at paramount theatre on 25 January 2020. [1] Initially, Sony Pictures acquired film rights from Sega to Sonic The Hedgehog in 2013, and officially gave the green light at a private Joint Sega/Sony Pictures press conference announcing the film on June 10, 2014. [5] Fowler was hired to direct in 2016. Due to financing issues in October 2017, Sony sold the rights to the film to Paramount, which retained the film's production staff. [7] Most artists had signed up for the project in 2018 until August. Filming took place between July and October in 2018 in Vancouver, Ladysmith and elsewhere on Vancouver, Ladysmith and elsewhere on Vancouver Island. Sonic The Hedgehog was initially to be released in November 2019; However, due to the negative reception of the first trailer of the film in April 2019, it was delayed for February 14, 2020 to redesign the Paramount Sonic. [8] [1] Sonic The Hedgehog premiered at the Paramount Theatre on 25 January 2020, and was released dramatically in the United States on 14 February 2020. Critics praised the performance (especially Schwartz and Carrey), Sonic's design, and its loyalty to source material, but criticized its plot for its perceived lack of originality. [9] [10] The film recorded the biggest opening weekend for a video game film in the US and Canada. It made the world earned $306 million, which became the second The film of 2020, and the highest-grossing video game film adaptation of all time in North America. The film returned to theaters on 21 August 2020 for a limited time. [11] A sequel is scheduled for April 8, 2022. Summary Sonic, a blue anthropomorphic hedgehog, comes to Earth to escape the malevolent forces that want to harness their power of super-speed. After accidentally causing a massive power outage while hiding out in the town of Green Hills, Montana, The Sound is targeted by the government who then hire tyrannical robotist Dr. Robotnik down to hunt him down. Meanwhile, an officer-turned-newly appointed Green Hills Sheriff Tom Wachowski decided to get the sound and help him escape capture, collect his rings, and stop Robotnik from using Sonic's powers for world domination. [12] [13] Plot In San Francisco, California, a seemingly normal day is interrupted by a shocking spectacle: an anthropomorphic elephant with blue fur, white gloves and red shoes is running through the city at breathtaking speed, while a flying machine powered by a scientist dressed in red chases and fire explosive energy blasts! In the middle of the chase, there's a pause as hedgehogs, sound names, what's currently happening and rewinds to the very beginning, with its childhood palm trees, waterfalls and another in the world missing days living on a beautiful island, and even loop-de-loops made from Earth begins. He remembers running happily across the island every day, relishing in life and full of his natural birth powers, despite being asked to use open-use to keep them secret by his doting surrogacy, Longclaw Owl. Toddler Rushes Home to Sonic Treehouse, where Longclaw is resting and playful bumps to wake him up. Longclaw warns the sound that he may have been seen because of his iconic powers, but the sound isn't worried, saying he was too fast. But as she lovingly presents her a sunflower as a gift to her (a gesture that touches the owl), they are ambushed by a tribe of echidna archers. Realised his fears, Longclaw flies away with dire sound, only one of the echidnas to fire his arrow and successfully strike him, causing him to plummet to the ground with the sound still holding him. Though wounded, Longclaw reminds sound of the importance of keeping himself and his powers hidden, and uses a golden ring to open a portal to a world on the far side of the universe, called Earth. She gives the rest of the rings to Sonic in a small bag and asks her to flee to Earth, where she will be safe. The reluctant Sonic walks through the portal while Longclaw stays behind the echidnas holding coming off. Seeing him in danger, The Sound desperately runs back to try to save him, but portal just destroys before he can reach her, leaving him heartbroken and alone. Ten years later, Sonic, now a teenager. for life on Earth Wachowski, the local sheriff of Green Hills, Montana, is sitting bored in an empty-speed trap, waiting for cars, and the sound flickeringly screws with him by zipping past his radar gun at ridiculous speed. Tom shows one of the sound blue quills lying in the long grass and brings it with him as he is called away by his deputy, Wade, to address a small issue back in town. Nearby, Sonic saves a turtle from running from a coming car and takes the reptile excited for a wild ride before leaving it and zipping back to a hidden cave, which he has turned into a makeshift home. The sound seems to love his life, because he has a lot of fun with items dismissed from the outside world he uses to capture himself and feels safe since he knows how to escape one of the worlds painted on a map covered in bags of rings, he should ever be discovered - especially, an uninhabited giant world full of mushrooms. He hates the idea, but he's not worried, because Green Hills seems like a home to him. He celebrates the city frequently and secretly every day, his favorite of whom is Tom (or doughnut lord, as he calls him). He also likes to mess with the old, eccentric mad Carl, the only person in town who really knows about him and is constantly trying in vain to catch him so he can prove his existence to the townspeople, because they laugh off his claims of a Blue Devil. After forming a strong bond with Tom and Maddie from afar, Sonic often hangs around his house, especially on movie nights. But even with this fun place and with all of these so-called friends, the sound still feels very lonely in its self-imposed isolation. One night after coming home may find raccoons in his trash, Tom receives from Maddie his long-awaited letter of acceptance at the San Francisco Police Department, and discusses two difficult decisions to move away from Green Hills, yet Tom is certain that the move is his chance to do more than simple odd jobs and actually save lives. The next day, as Tom recites his departure speech to a doughnut, Sonic celebrates the local youth baseball batsman high five his teammates. That night, the sound goes to the empty baseball field and plays by itself, using its speed to assume the roles of all players. He manages to make a perfect game and rejoice, holding his hands to a high five, but when he looks around and sees that no one is there to please him, he realizes that he's actually alone forever. In his despair, he tries to act painfully by running hard around the field, but his sadness only turns to anger and frustration in his situation, building his emotions and Due to excretion from her body. Eventually, it gets too much and he gives loose a miserable scream, is, Within him blast outward into a massive electromagnetic pulse that knocks out power across the entire Pacific Northwest. The sound gets worried that he might have just revealed himself with his blast and dash, hoping no one noticed. Meanwhile, much to the contrary, Wade has left several phone calls to the Green Hills police station to deal with, as the city is completely in the dark. Worried, he contacts Tom, who starts to instruct him but ends up calling prematurely when he sees the pen he first discovered shining with an electric blue light. News of the event soon reaches the Pentagon in Arlington, and the baffled Department of Defense enlists the help of brilliant robotist and scientific genius, Dr. Robotnik, to discover the cause; Despite everyone disliked his cocky nature and strange behavior, he's the best man for the job. After Robotnik and his partner, Agent Stone, take charge of the military contingent stationed at the baseball field, Robotnik's flying, high-tech, egg-shaped drone head into the woods, where one of them finds a footprint from the sound and scans it; Robotnik discovers that his computer cannot find a single match in Earth's animal kingdom to identify the creature responsible for the print. As military soldiers and drones search the woods for him, Sonic rushes back into his cave to collect his valuables and prepares to leave the earth forever. But before he can use rings, soldiers and drones draw closer to his cave and flee to avoid those sound, emotionally bid goodbye to his cave. Meanwhile, Tom is on the phone with Maddie, who has flown out to San Francisco to check out his future home, as well as visit his sister Rachel (who dislikes Tom) and niece JoJo. As Tom tells Maddie about the blackout, he hears a disturbance and sees may spill over his trash. Thinking raccoons are back, Tom Takes Maddie's Tranquilizer Gun, abruptly ends the phone (which Rachel has enough reason to suggest to Maddie that she divorces him), and goes out to check the shed. The noise turns out to sound, which broke into the shed and sees him. The two scream in horror at each other's eyes and fire the dart at Tom Sonic's leg. The frail Sonic sees a picture of San Francisco's Transamerica Pyramid on Tom's T-shirt and as soon as he drops the bag of rings into the portal, and it lands on the roof of the building. The portal closes as Sonic passes out, making Tom seriously confused over everything that just transpired. Shortly afterwards, Tom brings Sonic inside, keeps him in the dog cage; She compares her pen she found and shows that crazy Carl blue devil Be real after all. The sound awakens and climbs out of the cage, and the two finally meet for real just as the Robotnik truck arrives. Understood that he is simply unable to escape because his leg is weaker than the dull tranquilizer (which was meant for bear), the sound in the attic as he goes out to Robotnik truck arrives. who dispatches his drone to search home while seeing out two things. The sound hides from the drone and curls into a ball to hide between the various game balls stored in the attic, but when the drones get too close, Sonic escapes from the attic and causes noise. Robotnik boats in the house only find a raccoon eating a cake that maddle tom had cooked for to celebrate his acceptance letter. As he turns to leave, however, he suggests the pen. As Robotnik reveals to Tom where the sound is threatening, the sound is threatening, the sound shows itself and Robotnik negative and the sound shows itself and Robotnik and drove him out of the cold, and after a short fight at home with one of Robotnik's drones, Tom and Sonic escape home in Tom's car. Agent Stone comes to check on Robotnik, who berates him for not trying to stop the fugitives, states his purpose of capturing the sound for the exam, and tells him to bring the pen. With Tom and Sonic now on the run. Tom asks Sonic to explain himself; The sound explains to him about the purpose of his lost rings — advanced cultures use rings to travel different worlds — and say that therefore, he needs to get to San Francisco so he can get them back and escape the mushroom planet. The story proves too bizarre for Tom to believe, so he pulls over and tells the sound to go there by himself, explaining that it's a bad time for him to end up in trouble and citing that he's accomplished what sound asked him to do : Save your life. However, Sonic doesn't know where San Francisco is, and after Tom's instructions just to head west causes him to crash straight into the Pacific Ocean and run back to Tom covered in wet, cold, seaweed, and wearing a fish on his head. Sonic blames Tom for his fate because of the sheriff's role in him losing his rings and insists he can't accomplish his goal alone. Reluctantly, Tom agrees to take sound with him to San Francisco. As the two begin their journey, Sonic regards the trip as a fun road trip; He admires the charm along the way, such as the world's largest rubber band ball, barely paying any mind to Tom to admonish him for the trouble they're not both taking seriously. That They stop in a certain section of the city, and ask Tom Sonic to stay in the car as he uses a nearby payphone to call Wade, who states that Robotics and his agents are searching for Tom and are with him Robotnik takes the phone and warns Tom that he's coming for her, stating how furious he is with the sheriff for punching him in the face because it reminds him of a similar situation about a bully in his childhood that he had solved through technology. Later, he leaves with agents, with Wade warning him that he'll inform people about the incident. Meanwhile, the sound desperately tries to control its excitement over an extremely entertaining-looking biker bar, but eventually in caves. Tom comes back to his car with a purchased meal, only to find Sonic missing. He finds the sound at the bar and commands him out, but The Sound, which is disguised to blend in itself, persuades him to stay and have fun with him. Sonic compiles a bucket list of things he'd do on Earth, but gets depressed when he realizes he may not be able to do them because he's left Earth soon. But Tom encourages Sonic to try as much as he can do right where they can, and the two take a while to enjoy themselves with the activities of all the times, with the sound increasingly crossing items on the list as they go. Unfortunately, a group of rough-looking hooligans attacks Sonic, but Sonic speeds up his awareness and walks around the bar, saves Tom from the attackers and establishes sassy pranks and traps to end the battle, all in a moment's span the leader crashes through the window wearing the bear's head mounted on the wall. Tom and Sonic rush from the bar, beating angry patrons. The two then spend the night at a local motel, and after Sonic runs around the should go to when he leaves Earth. The sound shows that this is a very undesirable place and wonders loudly about whether Longclaw could be wrong, considering the possibility of having a life on Earth; He falls asleep after a long time. As Tom tucks him in, he sees that sound is one of the remaining items on the bucket list to make a real friend. At that moment, the news has given a warning about Tom, who has been declared a domestic terrorist because of his actions in protecting Sonic from robotics and the military. The next morning, bar patrons, including Robotnik triangles and chases its location. On the street, Sonic asks Tom what he will do on his bucket list. Tom shows his intentions to leave Green Hills to become a San Francisco street cop and prove himself as a hero, The sound is baffled and annoyed by the fact that Tom is such a perfect city and all the people he'd leave behind about; He argues that unlike himself, Tom has no villains chasing him, as well as pointing out that the citizens of the Green Hills depend on him to help them with their problems when Tom responds by saying they can call someone else for help. At the same time, the robotics finds them and Sonic work together to destroy the machine, despite Tom's occasional disdain for ambition to show up occasionally — specifically, a moment at the beginning of the fight where sound power powers kick off again as he continues to emotionally call out Tom to leave his perfect hometown even though they are in., compare it to your experience of being forced from your home world; That powers are used to its advantage against the machine through a supercharged spin attack from a subsequent (and involuntary) sound — but a pattern emerges where each time the two think they've accomplished this goal, Robotnik continues to pursue to activate another, smaller phase. The second to final stage of the machine involves it becoming a small drone and shearing the hood of Tom's car with a laser beam. After handling this stage, the machine is reduced to a sticky bomb that connects itself to sonic's hand, and they pull off the road to get rid of it. But just when the sound manages to move it to a cliff and the high-five Tom starts to walk away, with the elephant it still bursts off. As the smoke clears, Tom finds the sound lying unconscious on the ground and runs on it, attempting to get him to wake up. However, the robotics are enraged that they survived and berates the stone to note their persistence. At that moment, though, Robotnik finds that the pen in the stone pocket is blue, glowing with electric lights and intriguing. Finally arriving in San Francisco, Tom rushes to the house where Maddie is living with Rachel and JoJo as she still carries the faint sound, which she had wrapped in a towel to conceal her. She is greeted by an irate Rachel, who has seen news reports on her and refused to let her go until Maddie intervened. JoJo and Tom's dog, Ozzy, come to greet him, and as Rachel and Maddie argue about Tom, Ozzy pulls away the towel, revealing the sound. Rachel faints in sight, and energy it contains. As he waits, he amuses himself from dancing to a tune until he's half-shocked to death by the sudden appearance of Agent Stone, who has come to offer a latte. At that moment, the machine finishes analyzing the pen, revealing it to control unlimited energy — the energy that Robotnik believes can enable its prototype flight craft to reach its full potential. Tom and Maddie tend to sound injured while an angry Rachel sits strapped to a chair to prevent her from interfering | Cause of Tom Bring the sound here to check Maddie on her and figure out what's wrong with her using her experience as a veterinarian, but Maddie says she only knows how to work with earth animals; Sonic's alien biology is beyond his comprehension. Instead, he uses salts smelling from a human first aid kit to wake up to the sound, which frantically zips around the room at breathtaking speed before coming to grips with his surroundings and enthusiastically greeting the Pretzel lady. Dragging Tom into another room, a terrified Maddie asks him who and what is Sonic, and Tom reveals the truth of his adventures together and with the intention of reaching Sonic's Transamerica pyramid. At the same time, JoJo returns from a short trip up to bring a new pair of sonic bright red shoes were worn well and had holes down to socks from all of her walks; He takes a moment's liking for new shoes, especially since no one ever gave him a gift before, and immediately puts them. The sound also meets Ozzy, of which he's jealous (Tom had sent the dog as his best animal friend in the conversation that occurred just before his fight on the street with Robotnik's machine, much to the sound's chagrin), but from whom he enjoys licking an affectionate face. Deciding that they can no longer use Tom's damaged car as it will draw attention to them. Tom and Maddie's indignant lending heads with Rechel's car with devastating consequences) to gain the necessary clearance for the Transamerica Pyramid, where Tom uses the false pretence of saving a jumper to travel to the roof. Tom and Maddie carry Sonic inside a backpack, which it admits the pair are carrying a kidnapped child. Reach Sonic on the three-end ceiling, where the last finds and retrieve your bag of rings; He takes the opportunity to apologise to Tom for the rigours and hastily recognizing the sheriff's decision to leave Green Hills, having realized it being a difficult choice. He also explains that when he does not wish to leave the sound expresses their gratitude for the good times they had in the last two days; He also thanks Tom for saving his life. Sonic Mushroom attempts to throw a ring to open the portal to the planet, but it ends up bouncing off of one of the useless Robotnik drones. Many more drones surround the trio as the robotics themselves appear in their eggpods, now containing Sonic's pen, to meet them. After a brief exchange between Robotnik and Tom, Sonic taunted The Robotnik after his egg-shaped drone called him Agman. Robotnik readies his drone to blow three away, but in an abrupt plan to protect Tom and Maddie since they don't possess super speed and are Vulnerable to the incoming attack of robotnik, Sonic pushes them from the top of the building. Briefly showing shock at the unexpected action (but refused to fully accept said shock). Robotnik said to fire his missiles at the sound, which speeds up its awareness just before missiles out of the air and either redirects them back into many of the drones or plays around with them., in intervals of all milliseconds. But in the middle of this, Robotnik still has enough time to press a button that charges Eggpod with energy from the pen, allowing it (and by extension, himself) to move just as fast and react. He fires an explosion into the sound that avoids the unexpected hedgehog only narrowly, the shockwave knocking him out of bullet time and in transient delirium; To quickly recover from this Tom and Maddie still seem to fall, he grabs one of the falling rings with him and throws it, opening a portal beneath them that transports two back to Green Hills. Tom and Maddie finally land the sound in a tree before crashing into a tree, with rings and the rest of the Drone blasting Robotnik while landing safely in the hayscreet within a farmer's barn, while back in San Francisco, before crashing to their help in aiding the effort to give birth to a cow. Robotnik corners sound and taunts him, but the sound gathers his dropped rings and runs through town as Robotnik gives chase in Eggpod, as seen at the beginning of the film. Re-deposed, Sound notes how what happens next just as much as the audiences want. As Robotnik continues his search, The Sound is shocked by his ability to keep up with him, as no one has ever done that before. Sonic opens a portal to France, with her and Robotnik being performed for a young girl disrupting a mime act as they rush past. Sonic opens a portal to Egypt, where the robotic destroys many centuries-old monuments in its enthusiasm to catch sonic. The sound uses its speed to create a sand tornado that temporarily disrupts Robotnik's visual contact, but Robotnik sees the sound running in favor of one of the Great Pyramids and follows it to the top, firing an explosion just as the sound manages to open another portal ring. Portal brings Sonic back to Green Hills, now at night, but the explosion sends him hurtling through the ring and into the road, leaving him barely able to move by combining chases and his injuries. Robotnik's Eggpod gradually emerges through the portal, and tom and maddie's After arriving, the terrified spectators flee. as the sound completely collapses to the ground, fall, Ready to kill him, but Tom uses one of Sonic's rings to get behind him and engage him in physical battles inside the open cockpit of his vehicle, landing several punches on him to throw off and protect the sound. Unfortunately, Tom is eventually thrown out of the cockpit, leaving Robotnik to guestion why the sheriff would be willing to throw his life away for a silly little alien. His focus now is focused on Tom, he's ready to strike once again, but a near-miss shoot from Wade is thrown a second time, joined by a chainsaw-wielding mad Carl (who's all too willing to point out to everyone that this Blue Devil is being a real creature and not the product of his imagination) and some of the local townspeople in defense of Tom and sound. However, Maddie draws Tom's attention back to Sonic; He remains motionless and silent, displaying to everyone as if he had lost his life. Robotnik insensitively put the hedgehog's body on ice to make it fresh and suggest comments that he's just keeping an alien who wasn't here. With restrained anger, Tom robotnik responds by saying that Sound knew more about being human than he ever would, declaring him to be his friend. Shortly after the statement, Sonic, who was only taken aback by the Robotnik attack, opens his eyes and gets to his feet, his body supercharged with electric energy — some of which he's using siphons from his Robotnik's pen, returning his craft to its normal speed. Tom, Maddie and the townspeople retreat, making Sonic manage things; Fueled by passion, The Elephant boldly claims to Robotnik that he will no longer use the power which rightfully runs his own away, but will use it to protect his friends. Robotnik pulls down his goggles and the two opponents get locked into a deadlock, preparing to meet in the entire battle. Robotnik makes the first move by firing his missiles, but the sound avoids them and bounces from buildings to slam the Robotnik Eggpod strike with an increasingly fast barrage of bodies. With the vehicle severely damaged but still afloat, the sound declares that he's not going to leave Earth and calls for Tom, who throws a ring behind the robotic that makes a portal to the mushroom planet. Then, finally, Sonic dashes directly onto the robotic vehicle and attacks it with the final spin attack that exerts enough force to force it to fly backwards through the portal, as if it stops, sealing the doctor away in another world. With the fight on, the electric arc fades from Sonic's body, and he returns to his normal state as the townspeople cheer for him. Tom and Sonic reunite and congratulate each other on getting rid of Robotnik together, and Tom Sonic gives rings, as well as the hedgehog the high-five he's wanted since the baseball game. Maddie, though, is horrified to realise they left Rachel They can never go back to san Francisco and chair in the States. Tom's fine with that, telling Maddie that she decided not to leave Green Hills anyway, because she's already saved a life. As Wade spreads the crowd of townspeople, the sound follows Tom and Maddie. The next day, as Tom and Maddie are repairing and repainting their home, one of the officials from the Pentagon comes to thank Tom for defeating Robotnik, and informing him that his crime has been erased, along with recording all of Robotnik's existence. As a bonus, he presents Tom with an olive garden gift card and asks if Sound might be willing to talk to the president, but Tom falsely claims that the sound left so much that left him. After the official leaves, Sonic comes out of hiding and asks if they would like to see a film, but Maddie tells him it's time to go back to her cave. Frustrated and annoved, the sound heads to the front door, assuming they mean their old cave, but they tell him they mean something else. Opening the attic door, Tom and Maddie show Sonic covers all of their belongings from their new room, which she's amazed to find. Away with joy, the sound runs around and relishes in having your things back. Tom and Maddie sit with Sonic on their racecar bed and welcome them to the house, and Sonic gives them a heartfelt thank you. As the view zooms out and away from home, Ozzy's sound comes to lick again, with the sound still enjoying envy but licking. Meanwhile, on Mushroom Planet, Robotnik completely lost his sanity, despite his belief that he never did. As he finishes shaving himself completely bald, he gazes at his reflection in a pool of water, now with a very long, large outside moustache that looks completely zany. Talking to a rock that he's carved similar to Agent Stone, he throws it and tells it to perform rock reconnaissance for him. He reflects on his situation and comments that a lesser man in such a place would die. But then again, he holds a small container with the sound pen inside it, and says he'll be home by Christmas. Pulling down his goggles, he walks like a robot until he laughs at the stone, which he throws again as he yells out rock reconnaissance once again and hysteria. A mid-credits view shows Forest Hills, and on a hill, the leaves stir as a ring portal opens. From it emerges from the tail, which uses a small hand-in-hand device from current levels of energy to determine whether the sound might be near. To be enough to find readings, Tails insists he's not too late in finding him and uses his twin tails like helicopter blades to take off flying into the vast woods. Production development Sony Pictures Entertainment acquired the rights to distribute the film based on Sonic the Hedgehog in 2013. [30] On December 3, 2013, Sony Pictures Digital Domains Name, Inc., a division of Sony Pictures Entertainment, filed registration information for three inactive websites, which were addressed as SonicTheHedgehogMovie.net. Registration was reported by Sonic Stadium on December 7, but neither Sony Pictures nor Sega confirmed the existence of the proposed film project at the time. [31] On March 20, 2014, a film adaptation was first indicated when the tracking board released a rumor about the film, saying it would receive a Dark Knight treatment and post an author shortlist of the proposed writers involved. [32] On 10 June 2014, the official Sonic website was updated, with a locked section listing TV and cinema. [33] Later that same day, at a private Sega/Sony Pictures press conference, The Hollywood Reporter confirmed a live-action animated film based on Sonic the Hedgehog, which will be a joint venture between Sony Pictures and Marza Animation Planet, and Sony green-lit the project. [5] [34] It will be produced by Neil H. Moritz with Takeshi Ito, Mie Onishi and Toru Nakahara with his original film banner, and written by Ivan Susar and Van Robichox. [34] It was revealed on June 21, 2014 that Sonic The Hedgehog and his final successor films would be a distinct continuation from sonic boom continuity. [35] On November 19, 2014, Van Robichox said the filmmaking team is aiming for PG-13 [ratings]. [36] In February of 2016, Sega CEO Hajime Satomi on record said sonic hedgehog A 2018 release is scheduled. [37] On Oct. 31, 2016, The Hollywood Reporter reported that Tim Miller of Bloor Studios, who had left Directing Deadpool 2 due to creative differences, and Jeff Fowler will have executive production. Patrick Casey, Josh Miller and Oren Uziel were writing the screenplay. [38] [39] It was announced on October 2, 2017 that Paramount Pictures had acquired film rights from Sony to Sonic the Hedgehog, replacing the latter as distributor. Sony had temporarily discontinued production before Neil Moritz's original film banner signed a first-look production deal with Paramount, ending its previous deal with Sony, and several months after Sony's film financing partner LStar ended its deal with Sony due to a string of box office failures from the capital studios, production staff working on the film remained employed and also moved to Paramount. [7] On February 22, 2018, an official press release confirmed the film's visit to Paramount and the release date of November 2019, a date that was first mentioned by The Hollywood Reporter two days ago. [42][43][44] Sega will have creative input into the project and it will co-finance with Paramount, which will release the film worldwide. [42] Independent outlet Omega Underground reported on March 4, 2018 that the producers of the film were circling the addict XL to compose the film's musical score, reuniting it once again with Miller after scoring for Deadpool. The site also reported that Paramount was aiming to start filming at some point in July, supporting story co-author Van Robichaux speculating he tweeted a month ago. [45] [46] On 29th May 2018, it was revealed that the film's budget would be 90 million dollars. [47] On June 12, 2018, it was later stated that shots of the film will be filmed on Vancouver's Highway 19 during mid-September 2018, and that the film's current title is sound. [48] In a lot of games in 2018, Johnny Giooli said sega has nothing to do with sonic movie. [49] Takashi lizuka recovers soon after though, that she will be monitoring the film. [50] Sonic The Hedgehog was originally scheduled for release by Paramount Pictures on November 8, 2019. [51] In a special IGN interview, the first official poster for the film was released on 10 December 2018, revealing its official title as Sonic The Hedgehog. [3] Soon, the movie release date was changed again, this time to February 14, 2020, in order to adjust to the sound redesign. [1] Casting on May 29, 2018, it was reported that Paul Rudd was in talks for a major role as Tom, a cop Sonic will befriend and likely defeat the team to be Dr. Eggman. Paramount later clarified that this was not the case, but Rudd was considered for the role at one point. [47] The next day, it was announced that James Marsden was placed in an undisclosed role, [52] later revealed to be Tom Wachowski. [15] On June 7, 2018, it was announced that Tika Sumpter was cast for star opposite James Marsden in an undisclosed role. [53] was later revealed to be Tom Vachowski's wife. [21] Dr. Maddie Vachowski [22] Jim Carrey was cast to play the role of villain Dr. Robotics. [14] Ben Schwartz later joined the cast of the film in August 2018 as the voice of Sonic the Hedgehog. [29] A few days later, Adam Parish and Neil McDonough were cast. [54] Debs Howard and Elfina Look already joined the cast. [55] Filming on April 1, 2018, it was announced that filming was going to begin in Vancouver on July 30, rather than Atlanta as previously reported. [56] Principal photography started on 24 July 2018. and ended on 16 October 2018 in Vancouver, Ladysmith and Vancouver Island. During filming, the photo was shot under the work title Casino Knight, a reference to the level in Sonic the Hedgehog 2. [61] [12] After criticizing the initial design of visual effects and design Sonic, director Jeff Fowler said Sonic would be replaced, resulting in the release of the film being postponed three months. [62] Visual effects for Sonic the Hedgehog are provided by Industrial Lighting and Magic, Blur Studio, Digital Domain and Moving Picture Company. [63] Screenwriter Patrick Casey revealed that for the film, Sonic would have a design that still belonged to him and was far more realistic. [64] As promised, the production team created a new, more realistic version of Sonic, added fur, new sneakers, two different eyes, [3][65] and a more human-like physique. [66] They used teddy bears living from Ted films, as a reference to putting a CG character into a real-world setting. [3] In an interview with IGN, Tim Miller explained Sonic's redesign: It was always Stage 1 of adapting it to what the real world is and what a real animal would be like, it would be weird and it seems like he was walking around naked if he had some sort of otter-like thing. It was always, for us, fur, and we never considered anything different. It's what made him in the real world and makes him a real <... Q. I don't think SEGA was entirely happy with the eye decision, but these kinds of things get you, 'It looks weird if we don't have it.' But everything is a discussion, and that's the goal, which is only like changing what's necessary and staying right for the rest of it. [3] Sonic's humanoid appearance has been described by the audience as a supernatural valley-type abusive reaction. [67] However, on May 2, 2019, Jeff Fowler announced on Twitter that Sonic will get a redesign after criticizing the first trailer of the released film. [68] [62] While the film's release date in November 2019 initially remained unchanged, it caused concern that a design overhaul of Sonic would cause visual effects teams to do more work. [69] [70] However, Fowler will announce on Twitter on 24 May 2019 that the film was moved in February 14, 2020. [1] It is estimated that the film's delay and Sonic's redesign put the film at $5,000,000 or less on the original budget of $90,000,000. [71] Soundtrack artwork of the music movie. On 13 February 2019, Junkie XL confirmed that it would compose the score for Sonic the Hedgehog. [72] Riff Raff, who reportedly had a role in the film, was not making an appearance on the soundtrack as well, however. [73] On 23 January 2020, it was announced that the album of the score would be released on the same day as the film would be. [75] A limited vinyl version of the film's soundtrack will be released by Enjoy Ride Records. [76] Many songs were featured in the film's promotion, including Gangsta's Paradise by Coolio, supersonic by JJ Craze and Blitzkrieg Bop by the Ramones. In the film itself, featured songs included Friends by Hyper Potion, Don't Stop Me Now by The Queen, The Flight of the Valkyries by Richard Wagner (performed by Jim Carrey), all fired by the Alsies, By White Lightning Tennessee River Punk, Bad News by Ghost Hounds, I'm 'Turnin' Them Up by Wyley Randall, By Boom X Ambassadors, Love in Town by John Christopher Stokes, Where Evil Grows by the Poppy Family, Catch Me I'm Falling by Kyle Finnigan, and the subject of The Green Hill Zone by Masato Nakamura (re-arranged by John Batiste). Holkenborg attempted to capture the feel of Masato Nakamura's soundtrack for Sonic The Hedgehog and Sonic The Hedgehog 2, using a Yamaha FM synthesizer similar to the Sega Genesis/Mega Drive console's YM2612 sound chip. [77] Marketing Sonic's film design was built into a playable character in Sound Forces: Speed Battle and Sonic Dash. Test footage was examined to see the public at the Comic Con experience in Brazil on 6 December 2018. [78] Later, On December 10, 2018, a teaser poster featuring redesigned Sonic was released. [3] The design was adversely compared to the 2019 video game film adaptation, Pokémon: Detective Picachu, which added fur and skin textures to Pokémon characters. [66] Sonic's redesign was revealed by most negative reactions from critics and fans alike [79] [66] Former members of the Sonic team, who created the original Sonic the Hedgehog game, similarly expressed surprise at the design. [80] Shortly after the first poster for the film was revealed, each other was leaked online, prompting fans to criticize the sound's design for its state of sound legs and lack of resemblance to the sound game. This would lead to the creation of an internet meme where users recreated the situation. [81] [82] The official Twitter account for the film posted an image of the sound behind a sign reading immediately after: Can't a man work out? [83] More criticism of fans later came when images of Sonic's design were leaked in March 2019. Shocked by the design, former Sonic team president and Sonic co-creator Yuji Naka felt Sonic's head and abdomen ratio had become unbalanced. [84] The first trailer for Sonic the Hedgehog was shown at Cinemacon in Las Vegas on April 4, 2019. [85] It was later released online on April 30. Kotaku's Geeta Jackson described it as frightening and a blight on this weary earth, describing it as a unanimous criticism. [86] Sonic's design was similarly criticized, especially his manned presence, [86][88] and some writers found Coolio's use of Gangsta's paradise inappropriate. [89] [90] By contrast, CNET's Sean Keane praised the humor and context of the last sound game [91] Two days after its release, the trailer had been viewed more than 20 million times on YouTube. [92] Paramount deleted the original trailer revealing the redesigned Sonic was released on 12 November 2019. [93] The trailer received far more positive responses, with many praising Sonic's new design. Vox and humour also received positive reviews. [94] Naka said he thought the new design took about five months and was achieved without stressful overtime. [96] The second trailer received the highest like-to-dislike ratio of any trailer on Google in the past three years. [97] On December 11, 2019, Sega of america announced the line of goods released for the film. [98] The toys were to be made by JKS Pacific and Build-a-Bear Workshop, and would create novelty items for Toy Factory and Sega Entertainment amusement parks and attractions. Children's books were to be published by Penguin Books. Apparel & amp; Home Décor will be made by select toys, and the Sega shop will release various items. In-theater promotions such as drink toppers and popcorn buckets will be offered by Snapco and Ping Solutions. More hype is included in a tie with fast food restaurant Jack in the Box for Tiny Tacos, and an event in Sonic Forces: Speed Battle and Sonic Dash which added a new track based on a location from the film and the open-playable teen and child's versions of the sound. [99] [100] [101] Other partners were added to the film's website, including Puma, Valpak, Books-a-Million and Bimbo. Release the artwork along for the 2020 rescheduled for a 2018 release by Columbia Pictures. [37] However, after the change, Paramount Pictures rescheduled it on November 15, 2019. [43] Eventually, it was changed again for release in the United States on November 8, 2019. [51] Later, in May 2019, director Jeff Fowler announced that the film would be delayed (again) until February 14, 2020 to make Sonic just right after claims to change Sonic's design in the film. [1] [102] The film's world premiere took take on January 25, 2020 at the Paramount Theatre in Los Angeles. On March 20, 2020, Home Media, Paramount Pictures announced that Sonic The Hedgehog will be released on March 31, 2020 to digitally on demand. After being released in cinema, the decision to release much earlier than most films was due to film studios with Paramount — including Disney, Lionsgate, Sony, Universal, STX Films and Warner Bros. — choosing to release films for the very first home media in the wake of the film on 4K UHD Disc, Blu-ray and DVD was released on May 19, 2020. [104] Bonus features for the film include: commentary by Jeff Fowler and Ben Schwartz. In 80 seconds the world-deleted scene Bloopers Me Speed Jim Carrey music video for Love of Sound Creation Robotnik with Blue Blur: Welcome set on release The origin of sound at critical reception, the film received mixed-to-positive reviews. On Rotten Tomatoes, the film holds an approval rating of 64% based on 215 reviews, with an average rating of 5.78/10. Critics of the website read the consensus: Incidentally fleets and often fun, sound hedgehogs can enjoy a video game-inspired adventure the whole family — and a good excuse for Jim Carrey to tap into the manic energy that started his career. [106] On Metacritic, the film has a weighted average score of 47 out of 100, based on 42 critics, indicating mixed or average reviews. [107] Viewers surveyed by CinemaScore gave the film an average grade of A on A+ on the F scale, and Posttrack reported that it received an average of 4 out of 5 stars, with 70% of people saying they're going to be a 4. Please advise it. [108] IGN gave the film a 7/10, praising performances and nostalgia, while this family-friendly action comedy suffers from a simplistic story and leans too heavily on tired visual cliches, Sonic The Hedgehog is nonetheless boosted by solid performances from Ben Schwartz as Sonic and Jim Carrey as Dr. Robotnik. Their running cat-and-mouse game is entertaining, and passionate fans of the Sega franchise should appreciate all the nods for the history of sound. [109] Dami Lee of the Verge praised the nostalgic elements seen in the film, giving a positive review to the film, giving a positive review to the film. and there's some really fun stuff — like when Sonic uses his time-stopping powers or Robotnik's elaborate 'evil plotting' montage that makes you wonder why more movies don't feature people choreographing Carrey with cartoon villains he is, and it's a true pleasure to see him in his element. [110] The Washington Post's Gene Park gave a positive review to the film, saying: Sonic the Hedgehog film is the farthest thing from cats despite the initial comparison. Careful fans will find the usual easy targets expected to be fake rather than some enthusiasm to celebrate for years. [111] Paradoxically it's called a road trip superhero movie and the best superhero movie of 2020 so far. [112] Ben Kennigberg of The New York Times gave the film a negative review and wrote: Sonic now resembles a cartoon hedgehog rather than a spray-painted marmot. But if anything was done to de-generic the script, it hasn't helped. Not that the Sega game — in which the fleet-foot hero is doing flip and zip around a collection of gold coins (which encircle Paramount Mountain here) — gave the director, Jeff Fowler, plenty to work with. [113] The Hollywood Reporter's John DeFore gave a positive review, Variety's Owen Gleiberman criticized the commercialization of the film, saying, a review like the one should probably come up with a disclaimer: For all the borderline sadness I felt in Sonic The Hedgehog, I know it's a picture made for 8-year-olds. And they'll probably prefer it just fine. Yet I would call the film's overly kiddified tone a mistake. [115] Writing for the Guardian, Steve Rose gave the film a 2 out of 5, criticizing the lacklustre visual effects, saying: There are action scenes and effects flourish, but even these seem borrowed from other films. The sound's ability to freeze time then dart about rearranging things before reintroducing it, for example, is clearly indebted to QuickSilver's antics in X-Men films. and what messages can be bothered to give this practice are trite and The true meaning of friendship, be happy with what you've got, bad machines, good people (and space hedgehogs). [116] Simon Abrams of Rogerebert.com, gave the film 1 of 4 stars and said: The sound hedgehog is only successful as the amount of time you want to spend watching your animated hero immediately go on forgettable adventures, and boy, that's unfortunate. [117] Empire magazine's Amon Warman gave the film 2 of 5 stars, saying, An on-form Jim Carrey can't stop Sonic's live-action debut from feeling like a missed opportunity. If the teased sequels materialize, here's the level of storytelling to hopefully. [118] [119] Box Office As of March 3, 2020, Sonic the Hedgehog has grossed $131.9 million in the United States and Canada, the film was initially estimated to gross $40-50 million from 4,130 theaters in its four-day Presidential Day opening weekend. [121] [122] After making $21 million on its first day (including $3 million from Thursday night previews), estimates were raised to $64 million. [123] It went top at the box office with a $58 million start over a three-day weekend and $70,000 in four days, breaking Detective Picchu's record for the biggest opening weekend by a video game film adaptation of all time in the United States and Canada. Scott Mendelson of Forbes.com said the film's success can be attributed to the audience's reaction to the teaser trailer, and the followup has been redesigned to create significant publicity. Also, subsequent releases resulted in this delay rescheduled it worked in favor of the film by releasing it in a much less competitive film market during a dump month where it became the first major family film of 2020. [126] In other markets, the film released in 40 countries during its three-day opening weekend, topping the international box office with $43,000. Its strongest international territories were Latin America and Europe, with its biggest openings being $6.7 million in Mexico, $6.2 million in the United Kingdom, $4.3 million in France, $3.3 million in Germany and $3 million in Brazil. Worldwide, it made $101,00 over the three-day weekend and $113,00 over four days. [127] [128] In its second weekend the film again topped the international box office with $38.3 million from 56 countries for a ten-day overseas gross of $96.5 million, And with $64.6 million for a ten-day re-global box office topped $203.1 million. Its biggest international markets in its first ten days were Britain ($19.1 million), Mexico ($12.3 million), and France ($9.1 million), Top position in these markets. The film opened in 16 new markets, led by a number one debut ($6.3 million) in Russia. [129] The film was set to release in Japan on 27 March 2020 but was delayed till 26 June 2020 due to coronavirus epidemic. [130] [131]. China also delayed the release on 31 July 2020 for the same reason. [132] [133] In its opening weekend, Sonic the Hedgehog made $460 thousand in Japan and $1.27 million in China. [134] [135] Applause On 10 January 2021, Jim Carrey won an award at the Critics' Choice Super Awards in the 'Best Villain in a Film' category for his portrayal of Dr. Robotnik. [136] Before the release of the future movie, Jim Carrey said in an interview, I wouldn't mind going to do another sonic hedgehog movie because it was so much fun, first of all, and a real challenge is to try to convince people that I have a triple digit IQ. | There's so much room, you know, Robotnik hasn't reached his apotheosis. [137] In February 2020, director Jeff Fowler said he plans to feature more elements from video games for a potential sequel. [138] In March 2020, Marsden confirmed that he had signed on for several sequels, saying I believe, I don't know if I'm supposed to say, as many as they'd like to. Yes, that is my somewhat vague answer. [139] In April 2020, Marsden expressed interest in a sequel featuring tails and additional characters from the Games, [140] while Fowler expressed interest in featuring Sonic and Tail friendships from the Games and further developed Dr. Robotnik in a possible sequel. [141] Ben Scwhartz said coming soon later that month that a sequel had not yet been greenlit, but that it made sense because of the 2019-20 coronavirus epidemic. [142] On April 23, 2020, co-author Pat Casey said there had been talk about a potential sequel, though it hasn't been green-lit yet, and that Carrey is interested in potrayng a more game-accurate version of Robotnik in the sequel. He also hinted that a potential sequel could feature super sonic from the game, and that it could further explore the echidna tribe depicted in the film's opening scene. Casey also expressed interest in a potential shared universe featuring both Sega and Nintendo characters. [143] As of May 2020, a sequel is now in development with Jeff Fowler and his team from the first film. Patrick Casey and Josh Miller will executively produce the film with Hajime Satomi and Haruki Satomi. [144] The sequel is scheduled for release on April 8, 2022. It was also revealed that Schwartz, Carrey, Marsden, Sumter, Mazdub and O'Shaunsi are expected to reprise their roles from the film as an extra but was forgotten Production. [147] Van Robichoke originally wrote a scene for the film where Dr. Robotnik had a coffee maker named Pisces Bean Machine but it was cut off from the final film. [148] Chissie Stephens originally wrote a song called Go Fast as a remix of The Green Hill Zone and named after the theme song of the same name from Sonic X. The song was over but never used in the film. [149] [150] In the actual movie, there's a scene where the sound will wake up in Maddie's house and exclaims go fast! Fowler explained that Super Sonic and Robotics. [151] According to Ben Schwartz, he recorded a consistent version of the famous Sega mantra that didn't make it into the film. [152] Junkie XL wanted to use the theme of Green Hill Zone throughout the film as a re-occurring lytmotif; However, due to legal issues from the rights of the original game's soundtrack owned by its composer, Masato Nakamura, it was cut off from the film. The subject can still be heard during the Paramount Pictures logo at the start of the film, in the second trailer and a piano version by John Batiste is featured in the final scene of the film. [153] Don't stop me now in the end-credit music listing for The Queen, Freddie Mercury's first name is misspelled as Freddy. In the first official trailer for the film, the line is a nod to every hero's Origin sega genesis, the first console for the original Sonic Hedgehog video game. The version of Blitzcrig BOP, which appeared in the new official trailer, was covered by Steve Solomon. During the freeze frame shot at the opening of the film, its possible notice reading a street sign mega Dr. It references Sega's mega drive/Genesis console. Near the beginning of the film, Sonic presents a sunflower for longklaw that resembles sunflower sound given to Longclaw. A carving on a stone in the world of Sonic looks similar to those found in the labyrinth region in the original Sonic Hedgehog. At one point during the film, a man named Mad Carl Tom shows a drawing which resembles the infamous Sanic internet meme. Additionally, at the end of the film, the design of the robotics looks similar to Agman's design in Sonic can be seen balancing on a light in a similar sense to his balance animation from playing the first sonic hedgehog. It was a reference added to the film from Tyson Hayes' request. [156] Neil H. Moritz produced the film, which is known for producing the Fast and Furious film franchise. In the movie, the franchise references by telling Sonic Tom I just feel like Vin Diesel! It's all about family, Tom. When he's tasked with driving Tom's car. When Robotnik is choosing music in his truck, Crush 40 is among the playlists in his collection. Other playlists contain robotic rhythms, obscure Canadian jams of the 1970s, soulful chamber music of oppression, nuclear tempo of rapson, everyone wants to rule the world, tunes of chaos, dinner for one, heavy metal bombing of Babylon, world domination hormones and many others. During Sonic's pose scene where dozens of missiles are shooting at him, he references one of his passive animations from Sonic is dodging Robotnik's laser fire during the chase scene across San Francisco, he strikes the pose of his official artwork in the Super Smash Brothers ultimate. The wheels on Sonic's race car bed are based on modern spring design from the main video game series. When the robotic mushroom begins to travel to the planet, its moves are similar to the death egg robot from Sonic the Hedgehog 2. The film is the first since sonic adventure in which Sonic has not been voiced in Japanese by Junichi Kanemaru (except Sonic the Rahog). Phantom art like areas from the game are used to represented by trees from the film during end credits animation. [157] Green City Montana is represented by the phantom art of the Green Hill Zone from the original game. Trees are represented by trees from the hill top zone from Sonic 2. Sonic is shown in special stages credits from 2, but half the pipe changed to look like the highway that drives along in the sound and Tom movie. Additionally, rings are replaced with donuts. San Francisco's confrontation is represented with some sprites of chaos (especially bad future versions), though the backdrop has changed to facilitate the city. There is an animation of the blue zone special stage which briefly changes to the giant rubber band ball that the sound visits in the film. The Great Wall of China sequence has a color palette similar to the marble zone. Paris, France is painted using sprites from the spring yard zone that has been redesigned to include the Eiffel Tower. Although Robotnik doesn't call out loud in his robot Badniks film, they are marked as such at the junction box in his truck. [158] Pachkamac, the leader of the Echidana tribe who attacked Sonic and Longklaw at the beginning of the film, wears masks designed after his sporting counterpart, from within the games seen in Sonic Adventure, the leader of the Knuckles clan. According to Patrick Casey, robotic shaving his head at the end of the film Apocalypse Now. [159] When Robotics is dancing in his lab, there's a sequence where he pretends to be without a head. Which actor Jim Carrey wrote as a tribute to comedian Dick Van. In a deleted scene, the training sword from Excalibur and Sonic's Sonic and the Black Knight makes a brief cameo appearance in the alternate opening scene. When Sonic and Longlaw are being attacked by echidnas, they can be briefly seen on the wall. In a deleted scene, after Sonic and Longcallaw land on Earth, Sonic walks off longclaw and during this scene, he loops a log that he walks in a similar fashion to walking on a corkscrew loop, which appears in games such as Sonic the Hedgehog 2.
