The ballpark is home to Wagner College Seahawks Baseball. From 1994 to 2020, it hosted the Staten Island Yankees, the New York–Penn League partner of the New York Yankees. The ballpark was also home to the city's Pro Cricket team The New York Storm in 2004. In addition, local high schools have the chance to play at least one game at Richmond County Bank Ballpark. The ballpark at St. George is more commonly referred to as Staten Island Yankees Stadium instead of its proper name, whose naming rights were granted to Richmond County Savings Bank. History View over the outfield fence in 2007 During a game in the July 2004 Site The place where the ballpark was built, on St. George overlooking New York Harbor, was once the site of the B&amp;p. The O Railroad rail yard for the City of New York, and the current stadium parking lot was the site of Major League Baseball in the 1880s. The New York Metropolitans of the American Association played at the St. George Grounds in 1886-1887, and the New York Giants played there while waiting for the construction of the second Polo Grounds. The Richmond County Bank Ballpark was part of a deal with both the Yankees and New York Mets, brokered by then-Mayor Rudy Giuliani. Because of Major League Baseball rules, the Yankees and Mets have a right of veto over each other (and all other Major League Baseball franchises) if they want to bring an affiliated minor league team into the New York City metropolitan area. The Yankees and Mets had tried to move minor league teams to the area in the past, only to be rejected by their rival. [quote required] With the help (and public money) of the mayor, both teams agreed to allow each other to have a minor league team in the city in return for new stadiums. Mets moved a franchise to a new stadium, called Park (renamed MCU Park in 2010), in the Coney Island section of Brooklyn. A groundbreaking ceremony was held on June 20, 2000, of which the RCB's sponsorship was announced. [1] The park opened a little more than a year later on September 24, when the September 11 attacks occurred over New York Harbor, and the RCB Ballpark was used as a staging area for emergency workers because of its proximity to Staten Island Ferry's St. George Terminal, and thus to Manhattan. After the attacks, the RCB Ballpark soon became a spiritual link and line of sight to Manhattan for Staten Island residents. [7] In 2005, RCB Ballpark hosted two of the four concerts at the Across the Narrows Festival. The other two concerts took place simultaneously at KeySpan Park. On August 17, 2010, the RCB Ballpark hosted the NY-Penn League All Star Game. This was the ballpark's first opportunity to host the game and the second time it was held in New York City. On August 30, 2017, Impact Wrestling hosted a live event at the stadium. 1,100 fans attended the event. [quote required] Starting in 2018, Richmond County Bank Ballpark hosted the MAAC Baseball Tournament. [9] The stadium will continue to host the tournament until at least 2023. , to host Atlantic League matches, as well as rugby and football. In June 2014, the Richmond County Bank Ballpark was designed by Populous. It was designed to take advantage of the stadium's location overlooking New York Harbor. The main entrance to the stadium is located at street level with seating bowl and the field built below street level. Salls at each entrance are a reference to Staten Island Ferry boats, which often pass nearby, and the St. George Ferry Terminal, which is about 0.53 miles (0.53 km) away. The eye of the batter in the center field is able to retreat so that spectators can see the Manhattan skyline. RCB Ballpark features 18 luxurious regular-sized suites and a Skyline Suite for 60 people with one of the best views of the harbor. A small children's area is located at the bottom of the left field line of play. A copy of the Verrazzano-Narrows Bridge is located at the top of the main leaderboard. The grandstand of richmond county bank ballpark in Staten Island, New York. The outdoor walls have changed several times during the stadium's history. Originally, the stadium had four LED video boards distributed on the outdoor wall that would show rotating ads throughout After these boards failed, the team replaced them with traditional signage along the wall. These signs were replaced with a new 61-metre video board in the right field in 2007. The new video board is one of the longest in minors. Also in 2007, Ballpark got a brand new HD main video board at the top of the scoreboard. The Shuttle St. George Terminal of Staten Island Ferry is less than a five-minute walk from the ballpark. The S40 and S44 buses serve the stadium directly, but the stadium is accessible from the buses that end at St. George Ferry Terminal. [13] The St. George Station on Staten Island Railway is also located at the ferry terminal. From 2001 to 2009, on game days during the baseball season, SIR trains served the RCB Ballpark station next to the stadium, with trains from both St. George and Tottenville. [14] In 2010, train traffic to RCB Ballpark station was suspended due to budget cuts from the MTA. [15] [14] See also NCAA Division I baseball arena list References ^ b Lueck, Thomas J.
