While if you've already read Jeff Keller's Attitude is everything, reading his 2nd Winning Attitude somehow both great books convey the same message. As you might expect from the title, he says that all where this book is fully focused on our approach, and how beautifully move your thoughts into positivity. This book consiss 54 short parts, all of which say: Attitude is everything that really is. This really makes you think about how much your mind really determines your results, achieving everything you want &amp, become successful, maybe there are other principles you have to apply, but it all starts with an attitude. Jeff very well justifies how to deal with different scenarios with a positive attitude if you need to handle criticism or abandon the ego or distance or perceive patterns. The secret of happiness is to count your blessings, while others add their worries. – William Penn.Many people in wheelchairs smiled and rejoiced, while others in good health and full mobility were miserable; Then there were those who were happy, even though they had very little money, and we were lucky to just have a roof over their heads &amp; enough food to eat, while others with great property and a lovely home were unhappy because they couldn't afford to buy a bigger house. Where would I end this powerful content review by adding one of my favorite parts #16; Tiny Black Dot, where during some of his presentation, he takes an 8 1/2* 11 piece of white paper to make a little black dot somewhere in the middle of the sheet and then he shows a sheet to people in the audience and he asks them what they see, where unfortunately most will say that See black dot, where we tend to look at our lives in the very same way, we've been blessed with loved ones, lots of great things around us yet we focus on what we don't have. Below are some of the trends that he offers to follow, which ultimately helps us build a life filled with meaning, connection and uncommon success, here they are:• Takeover of liability- Tribute to each individual- Authenticity- Tolerance of ideas- Positive attention- Simplicity and spontaneity- The inner PeaceAll I saw teaches me to trust the developer for everything I haven't seen. View a book review Be the first to write a review of this book As a motivational speaker and coach, one question that Jeff Keller often puts on is Who separates successful people from everyone else? His answer is a huge stress on the right approach. In fact, it always turns into what Jeff popularly calls a winning point of view. No matter where you are on your journey to self-develop, winning attitude will always be a differentiator as Jeff shows, for example, following an example covering almost all important aspects of our lives. This book presents fifty-four golden principles that can dramatically change your life. For more than thirty years, these principles have changed Jeff's life for the better - and they have done so for millions of others. Read, enjoy, apply principles, and create extraordinary results in your life. The book is like any of the greatest discoveries of my generation are that PEOPLE CAN CHANGE THEIR LIVES BY CHANGING THEIR MINDS -WILLIAM JAMES, Jeff Keller has beautifully grouped his 20 years experience as speaker to crisp and attractive book. Jeff Keller was a practicing lawyer and switched his career after 10 years of motivational speaking. Jeff explained why and how he did it in one of the sections. I don't know why, but reading this story felt good. The book is like any other self-help book and feels a little repetitive at times. The author talked about these broad points in the book• Attitude is everything• See things in perspective• Be kind to everyone• Dream about big and hard work to make your dreams a reality• Be open to change• Your success is about you• Everything happens for a reasonYou will find many similarities with other self-help. What makes this book different is its very attractive and makes you feel optimistic. The book does its job, so you feel motivated.
