He is also known as The Scotsman In Neighboring (2014) and its sequel Neighbors 2: Sorority Rises (2016). Mintz-Plasse provided voice acting for Fishlegs Ingerman as a train for your Dragon franchise (2010-2019) and King Gristle Jr. troll (2016) and Trolls World Tour (2020). Early life Mintz-Plasse was born in Woodland Hills, California, where he attended El Camino Real High School, performing for its improv comedy team. [1] He is the son of postal worker Ray Plasse. [1] He is Jewish on his mother's side, but his father is from a Catholic family. [2] [3] Career When auditioning for a part of Fogell in his film debut Superbad, he had no professional head shots and instead took one with his camera phone. [4] Since he was 17 at the time but was still underage, by law his mother had to be determined while filming his sex scene in the movie. [1] After the release, the film gained critical and commercial success, with many critics citing Mintz-Plasse's performance as a highlight; he received a nomination for the MTV Movie Award for Best Breakthrough Performance. [5] [6] Mintz-Plasse 2011 2008, Mintz-Plasse next appeared with Paul Rudd and Seann William Scott in David Wain's film Role Models as Augie Farques, a nerdy teenager obsessed with medieval live action role-playing roles. He also made a small guest appearance on an episode of David Wain's web series, Wainy Days. He then starred in harold Ramis's film Year One as a comedic version of the Biblical figure Isaac. He also appeared in a short film titled The Story of RJ, which ended up becoming the basis for the television series Hard Times R.J. Berger. [7] The following year, he was nicknamed Fishlegs in the animated film How to Train His Dragon. In April 2010, he appeared on Kick-Ass as a superhero of Red Mist, aka Chris D'Amico, who was scheduled to play a minor role until director Matthew Vaughn saw Mintz-Plasse audition and his abilities. Mintz-Plasse was initially auditioned for the role of Kick-Ass, but when producers felt that his acting was too loud and obnoxious they immediately gave him the role of Red Mist instead. [8] In May 2010, he visited kent, a roman character. He made his second voice-over this month in the film Marmaduke, as stylized dog Giuseppe. That same year he was featured in two music videos, Kid Erase Me, featuring Kanye West, and indie rock band Soft Pack answer to themselves. [10] In 2011, Fright Night appeared in Mintz-Plasse, a 1985 film remake, as Edward Lee, former best friend of Charley Brewster, played by Anton Yelchin. [12] At first he didn't want to accept the role because it was a remake, but he accepted after reading the script and seeing the talent involved. [13] Mintz-Plasse (left) with Dave Franco in 2013, he made a voice of intimidation in the animated film ParaNorman in 2012. That same year, he also played a minor role in pitch perfect as Tommy, the university's listening launcher. He then starred in the short filmWould You, written by his Fear the Night co-star Dave Franco and premiered at the SXSW Film Festival. [15] [16] Mintz-Plasse was supposed to play the lead role in the CBS sitcom Friend Me and even filmed several episodes, but before the series could air, it was canceled after series creator Alan Kirschenbaum committed suicide. [17] As a promotional video for the game Far Cry 3, he starred in The Far Cry Experience, a series of online videos as a fictional version of himself trapped on an island controlled by a psychopathic pirate named Vaas. [18] He retaliated for chris d'amiko's role in the sequel to Kick-Ass 2, which was released in August 2013. [14] Mintz-Plasse found a role that is darker than any other he had portrayed so far, and hired a running coach to help him with more intense scenes. [19] He made his third music video appearance in the Unknown Mortal Orchestra music video So good to be in trouble. [20] He and his Kick-Ass co-star Chloë Grace Moretz starred in a short segment in the Middle School Date film Film 43. He also had small roles in Seth Rogen and Evan Goldberg's This Is The End, playing a fictional version of himself, and the romantic comedy film To Do List, with Aubrey Plaza. [21] In September 2013, Mintz-Plasse and Dave Frank went on a week-long road across America to promote the technology company LG's campaign This is all possible for their flagship smartphone LG G2. Participants documented their process and broadcast it to Funny or Die. [23] Mintz-Plasse played a supporting role as a college fraternity student in Scoonie's 2014 hit comedy film Neighbors and reprised his role as Fishlegs in the animated sequel How to Train Your Dragon 2. [24] [25] He reprises his role in Fishlegs in the DreamWorks Dragons television series, which is broadcast on Cartoon Network. Mintz-Plasse played drums from the rock band The Young Rascallions, which split eight years later in 2015. He then founded the band Bear on Fire, in which he plays bass guitar.
