Posted 2019 Description program SkillFlix™ for Parents (SkillFlix) is a skill-building online video library designed for parents of moderately cognitive-impaired youth. By modeling effective conversations, SkillFlix videos teach parents conversational skills and sexual health information that allows them to have more productive conversations with their children. SkillFlix for Parents is undergoing formative evaluation in order to improve program design and implementation and add evidence-base to teen pregnancy prevention. A formative evaluation will be followed by an evaluation of the effectiveness of the programme. Program Snapshot Population: Parents of Cognitively Disabled Students (Ages 10-26) Location(s): Kent, Ionia, and Montcalm Counties, MI Partners: Nine School Districts in Kent, Ionia, and Montcalm Counties goals Increase parents' knowledge of adolescent sexual health Teach parents conversational skills and increase their ability to have effective conversations about sexual health with their cognitively-impaired teens Increase the frequency of communication about sexual health between parents and their cognitive-impaired teen strategies Skill-building videos for SkilllixF parents for parents is a skill-building online video library that teaches parents how to have conversations about sexual health with their cognitive impairments by adolescents. SkillFlix videos feature actors portraying cognitively disabled youth and their parents having conversations about sexual health. Every sixty-second video models a micro-skill™, a small action that parents can take to improve the quality of their conversations. Videos are organized by skillset; Each skill contains three to five videos that teach separate micro-skills. For example, skill using conversational tone involves videos about microquality using relaxed and open body language and staying positive or neutral when surprised.. The videos also contain information on topics of sexual health, including abstinence, pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STIs). By watching videos and exercising, parents learn skills that allow them to effectively talk to their children and respond to unpredictable situations. SkillFlix for Parents is an extension of skillflix training technology, originally developed for dfusion health educators with national health funding institutes. Parallel school lessons for young people All participants in skillflix intervention for parents have children who receive the Making a Difference curriculum at school. Funded by the HHS Administration on Children and Families' Family and Youth Services Bureau and implemented by the Kent School District, this evidence-based program has been tailored to moderately cognitive students and provides them with knowledge and skills to reduce their risk pregnancy. SkillFlix for parents videos align with making a difference curriculum and allow parents to have conversations with their children about what they learn at school as they learn. Teachers at these schools have been trained by the facility and provide students and their families with an extra layer of support. And while higher quality schools are usually accompanied by higher property taxes, homeowners in these counties are eventually repaid through higher home sale prices. Getting paid sounds great, but how many are we talking about? research research Realtor.com shows that to enter a desirable school district, 9% of buyers say they would pay 11% to 20% over budget. Separately, 17% report that they would pay to be close enough for their children to go to and from school. Realtor.com found that 62% of buyers would miss a home spa if it meant getting to the right school district. 50% would admit easy access to shopping, while 44% would give up space in the form of a bonus room. If the house you plan to sell is located in a highly sought after school district, do everything in your power to emphasize that fact in all your real estate marketing materials. Many potential buyers are parents of children currently in the school system, so make sure to get a word between neighbors and local friends. If you're buying a house, use a search tool that lets you filter by school district, because county boundaries aren't always in line with urban, village, and city lines. After all, you can not assume that your children will be assigned to participate in the same school as the children on the block, or even next door. Jonathan Kirn/Stone/Getty Images The best way to find out one's school district is to consult an online search engine that uses geographic identifiers to determine the school district. The U.S. Department of Education's National Center for Educational Statistics provides one such tool, and The Great School provides a similar one. Once one determines the correct school district, it is sometimes still necessary to find out to which school it is assigned. This can be done by calling the local school district. Many larger school districts, including Los Angeles and New York counties, provide online search tools that use the applicant's home address to determine the assigned school. School.
