You can read more about it here. Update (November 02, 2019) Going by reports spreading across Twitter, Showbox is reportedly not working for some users. The following are some reports and a user shared image of the error showing up: My Showbox does not work at all source is #showbox still not working for some shows? source Is someone's showbox working #showbox source While we're looking for an official word on this issue, here's what ShowBox developers recently said on their Twitter account: Glad to announce that we've made progress and our shows have been updated! Be sure to check both servers if you can't watch. Movies are still working on naked with us, thanks to all of our loyal #ShowBox consumers ☺ Update (November 03, 2019) Here's what the team has now said about this ongoing issue: Movies have updates. This means updates should roll out on Movies and Shows daily! Be sure to check server B if you get an error message when you try to look at something!! @ Sorry we see comments saying the app isn't working. We think this is dependent on location, but we should have our servers up everywhere soon! Within the next few days!! We apologize our stability is low recently, we hope you stay with us Update (November 06, 2019) We are now seeing unconfirmed reports that Showbox is back, but the service now has major changes. Check out this Reddit thread to know more. Update (November 07, 2019) Here's the latest status update from Showbox's official Twitter handle: Thank you for the outstanding support in our downtime for #ShowBox now over 13,000 followers!!! We will inform the dev team to speed up the fix for the app. We are very excited to have your patience ☺ Update (Nov 10) Here is the latest status update on the issue: Our servers are still down, this one that back hit harder than the dev team expected and we just want to let you know that they are still working hard to get it fixed for you! Update (Nov 18) The team is given a up on the issue. Unfortunately, the update is that a fix is still being worked on. Check Check latest tweet here. Update (December 07) After a long delay, the ShowBox team has finally provided another update on the issue. Unfortunately, the situation is discouraging because the team has revealed the service was targeted by anti-privacy and copyright laws. The following is the official statement: NEWS: #ShowBox servers got hit hard due to security issues we had, these have been resolved. But the bad news is ShowBox got hit with big legal issues that can't be solved. Because of this, we are still working hard to find a way through this, but it will take a lot of time. So, currently used options you can find. We know they are not as good as our application ☹ that's why we were targeted by anti-privacy and copyright update laws (December 16) The official Twitter account has now come up with the latest information on the issue telling users that they have abandoned the app at the moment. As for how long will this closure thing continue, the app's social media handle says they have no idea about it, as they haven't heard much from the developers yet. Here's their exact statement: I see the comments about wanting new information about

#ShowBox but as you know we've had to abandon our app for the time being. That said we don't get much information from the dev team either! We know of some ideas about new apps, websites or re branding. Nothing like stone! In addition, the social media team is warning app users not to fall for fake Showbox Twitter accounts. Update (December 17) The app's social media handle is at least reassuring users that they're not giving up anytime soon. Here's what they said recently to calm down users: Develop... PiunikaWeb is a unique initiative that focuses primarily on investigative journalism. You'll be glad to know we're hiring. There's no better place to watch movies and TV shows than Showbox. But if you are a regular user of Showbox then you may have observed that it stopped working. It was a big drama for Showbox last December. To know more continue reading. It all started in November End When the user of Showbox found out that the app did not earn any content, everyone including me thought it was a bug or a technical error. But this issue continued for more than Week. Then there was a tweet from a user of Showbox posted that he has learned from it on that the app has been closed. All users were devastated. Then after 2 or 3 days Users began to claim that showbox is up again and was functional only for a few hours, this behavior happened a few times. Along with the Official Website of Showbox started promoted below which summarizes that the use of this application is illegal and the film studios monitor the IP addresses of the users who are viewing licensed content and may sue them.showboxappdownload.com (Official website) On December 4, Showbox posted on twitter that download from third parties and they are facing legal issues, I would say try to avoid using Showbox for some time because it has been closely monitored by lots of Movie Studios to sue users as well as Showbox developers. You can always watch from licensed streaming programs like Netflix, Amazon Prime, HBO, etc. But if you still wanted to use Showbox then you can use it with the new Showbox 5.24 update at your own risk.
