Career Technical Education Programs and Academy La Quinta High School has four academies for students who feel what they want to do as they get older. These academies educate them about the areas they would like to get into and prepare them so that they can continue their education after graduation. Medical Medical Academy Medical Health Academy is a California Partnership Academy grant-funded program for students who are interested in pursuing careers and colleges in the medical field. This is a career technical program. This program can be accepted by any student interested starting their second year. Public Service Academy Public The academy program has grown from 100 students 10 years ago to more than 260 students today. [when?] Once students complete the three-year program, they are able to move on to productive jobs in law enforcement, firefighters, military and related areas. The Culinary Arts Culinary Arts program is for students who want to pursue a career in the kitchen. It's a 4-year program where they get to meet chefs from all over the Coachella Valley, create Culinary Showdowns similar to those on the TV show Chopped, and cater for food at valley wide events, as well as provide some of the food for La Quinta High Schools' events. In 2016, the Clinton Foundation brought its Clinton Day event to La Quinta High School and built a greenhouse for culinary arts students to use in their state of the art kitchen. Information & Communications Technology Academy The Information & Communications Technology Academy is the newest academy at La Quinta High School. He joined in the 2015/2016 school year. The academy is for students who are interested in technology. It is a dynamic program set up to give interested parties the opportunity to be exposed to areas related to information support and services, networks, software and system development, and games and simulations. The program is a 3-year course and offers students technical training as well as educational basic classes. Athletics This section needs to be updated.
