As the fourth installment in Pixar's Toy Story series and the sequel to the 2010 film Toy Story 3, the film was directed by Josh Cooley and released in theaters June 21, 2019. The film continues from Toy Story 3, where Sheriff Woody and Buzz Lightyear have found new appreciation among their other toy friends after being given by Andy to Bonnie. Later in the film, the toy is introduced by Woody to Forky, a spork that has been made into a toy, and embarks on a road trip adventure. After its premiere, Toy Story 4 was theatrically released in the United States on 21 October 2015. The film was critically acclaimed, with critics praising its history, humor, emotion, animation, and vocal performances. The film was also a box office success, grossing $1.073 billion worldwide. The film even won several awards, including an oscar for best animated film and is nominated for best original song for I Can't Let You Throw Yourself Away. Synopsis Woody and the rest of the toy are back for a brand new adventure in Toy Story 4, where new friends are welcomed into Bonnie's room, including a reluctant new toy called Forky. Like most people, I assumed that Toy Story 3 was the end of the story, said director Josh Cooley. And that was the end of Woody's story with Andy. But just like in life, every ending is a new beginning. Woody now being in a new room, with new toys, and a new boy, was something we've never seen before. The questions of what it would be like were the beginning of an entertaining story that was worth exploring. But Forky insists he's not a toy! An actual spork-turned-craft-project, Forky is pretty sure he doesn't belong in Bonnie's room. Unfortunately, every time he tries to get away, someone jerks him back into an adventure he'd rather jump. The world of Toy Story is built on the idea that everything in the world has a purpose, said Cooley. A toy's purpose is to be there for his child. But what about toys that are made of other objects? Forky is a toy that Bonnie made of a disposable spork, so he is facing a crisis. He wants to fulfill his purpose as a spork, but now has a new toy purpose thrown at him. Plot In a Flashback of 1999 nine years ago 2008, between the events of the previous three films, R.C. being swept down a storm drain. Woody and the other toys mount a successful rescue operation, but while they are busy, a mysterious man buys Bo Peep; despite Woody's efforts to prevent the sale, Bo assures him that it is part of being a toy that needs to be taken away. Two years after Andy donated his toys to Bonnie, Woody and the other toys are satisfied in their new life. Afraid that Bonnie will feel overwhelmed by her kindergarten orientation, Woody - whom Bonnie has neglected - sneaks into her backpack, and his fears come to light as Bonnie gets shy about her new classmates. Woody hides a spork and other items from a trash can on Bonnie's table under arts and crafts, and she turns them into a handmade toy-spork she names Forky. After Bonnie puts Forky in his backpack, he comes to life, which scares Woody. Woody introduces him to the rest of Bonnie's toys, Forky experiences an existential crisis, believing that he was made to be garbage and not toys, and the other toy prevents him from throwing himself away. On a road trip with Bonnie's family and her toys, Forky - who still thought he was rubbish - jumps out the window, prompting Woody to go after him. Woody convinces Forky of the joys of being a toy, and they travel to the RV park in a nearby town where Bonnie and her parents will live. Woody reaches town and spots Bo's lamp in an antique shop. Searching for Bo inside, he and Forky encounter a doll named Gabby Gabby and her sycophant bugtalk puppets, Bensons. Gabby Gabby offers to take them to Bo, but soon reveals her true colors and her plan: To achieve Woody's voice box, since her own is broken and no child will buy her. When Bonnie and her parents enter the store, Woody and Forky try to escape, but Forky gets caught by Gabby Gabby. By the time Woody escapes the store, Bonnie's RV has left without him and he realizes he has left Forky behind. Woody reunites with Bo, who has become a nomadic adventurer helping lost toys find owners. With Bo's companion, a diminutive toy cop named Giggie McDimples, they take a route through a nearby carnival to rescue Forky from the antique shop. Meanwhile, Buzz searches for Woody on his own and seeks guidance on the button-inducing phrases from his own voice box. Buzz finds itself as a prize in a carnival booth and escapes with plush toys Ducky and Bunny. Buzz finds Woody and Bo, and they recruit Ducky and Bunny to help save Forky, promising they'll be Bonnie's toys, along with Bo's old friend from the antique shop, Duke Caboom, a Canadian stuntman toy. In the antique store, the toy's plan to save Forky fails. Woody, the only toy still stuck on saving Forky, have a falling out with the other toys, and indirect insults Bo. As Bo, Duke, Giggie, Ducky and Bunny return to to Woody gives up his voting booth to Gabby Gabby in exchange for Forky. Gabby Gabby is desperate to be adopted by Margaret (the shop owner) granddaughter, Harmony, but Harmony is creeped out of Gabby Gabby's new voice and rejects her, leaving her disappointed and offering Woody his voice box back, but Woody insists she keeps it. Buzz returns to Bonnie's camper van and screams to pick up Bonnie's backpack, which she left behind in the antique shop. Woody comforts Gabby Gabby and Bo and her gang back after a change of heart. After Bonnie returns to her backpack, the toy follows her and her parents. Through Duke's motorcycle skills, Buzz and Forky make it back to Bonnie, who is thrilled to have Forky back. Under Woody's advice, Gabby Gabby sees a little girl crying and giving her comfort, and is finally adopted. Ducky, Bunny, Giggie and Duke Caboom say goodbye to Woody and go. As Woody and Bo say goodbye, Woody becomes hesitant to return with Bonnie. With some encouragement from Buzz, Woody decides to stay with Bo and help lost toys find owners. Buzz and the gang give Woody and Bo a farewell hug and the two groups go their own way. The motor van starts, and the toy goes into Bonnie's camper van while her parents start the engine and go home. Rex asks if Woody will be a lost toy, and Buzz says he'll never be one. Buzz and Woody share one last message to each other from afar, To infinity... and beyond. Woody and Bo Peep spend their night living together by looking at the lovely carnival views together and the night sky. In the middle of the credits scenes after Woody and Bo's journey with carnival, a year has passed and Bonnie has entered first grade. On a newly built pier, Ducky and Bunny do yet another version of their plush rush and spread laser eyes and superpowers, as Duke Caboom asks if they really can. In Bonnie's room, reflecting the scene in which Woody introduces Forky, Jessie brings home a new friend Bonnie created: Knifey, a decorated plastic knife. Immediately beaten, Forky offers to shepherd her in her journey through life as a toy instead of trash. Since her first question is Why am I alive?, he's confused. In the post-credits scene, Duke Caboom makes a successful jump on the 'I' of the Pixar logo, posing, and giving Combat Carl a long-awaited high five, ending the film. Character Introduced Cast Additional Voices Development Lee Unkrich has said in many interviews that Pixar currently has no plans to do a Toy Story 4 and that the purpose of Toy Story 3 was to bring the story of toys and their relationship with Andy to a phenomenal end. He thinks it's great that people want to see another Toy Story movie, but Pixar will for now focus on other stories. However, he has said that Pixar will try to find different ways to keep the characters alive, it is seen in the Toy Story Toons series and The Toy Story of Terror! and Toys Toys That Time Forgot that there may be a Toy Story 4 in the future, but they don't have any plans for it right now. In July 2010, Tim Allen signed on to reprise his role for a fourth feature-length film, but that doesn't necessarily mean that a Toy Story 4 is in development. It can easily be just in case they ever thought of a good idea for a fourth film that they would have voted Buzz on board. But it shows that Disney and Pixar toyed with the idea of another Toy Story movie. Tom Hanks, who was to turn 62 when Toy Story 4 was released had also signed on to repeat his role if the film was made. In June 2011, Tom Hanks said in an interview that I think they're working on it right now. But John Lasseter says: We haven't announced anything, so I can't really talk about it. In February 2013, several sites reported that a Toy Story 4 was in production with a release date in 2015. Some sites claimed that Disney and Pixar had confirmed Toy Story 4, but Disney has since denied those rumors saying Nothing is Official. In the latest Muppet film, Muppets Most Wanted, Gonzo mentions (under We're Doing a Sequel number) that Disney is waiting for Tom Hanks to be available so they can do a Toy Story 4. Despite The Death of Don Rickles in 2017, it had been officially confirmed that he would reprise his role as Mr. Potato Head using dialogue pieces that Rickles had previously recorded as in the film, provided his estate gave permission for the film to do so. The reason for this change is because the main cast goes beyond Tri-County as director Josh Cooley and producer Jonas Rivera stated during an interview. This change was made to accommodate the fact that Woody's world had opened up when he reunited with Bo Peep. Toy Story 4 is the first Pixar film not to be accompanied by a short Pixar film since the original Toy Story (don't count Coco's later theatrical releases, which originally had frozen featurette Olaf's Frozen Adventure before the main feature). Since John Lasseter's departure, SparkShorts, created by Pixar's new talent, have followed the traditional line of Pixar shorts when they were to be shipped live to Disney+ in late 2019. Toy Story 4 is the last Pixar film with John Lasseter's involvement before his leave from Pixar and Disney animation in late 2018 leaves Pete Docter in the lead. This fact would therefore make Toy Story 4 the first Pixar film released under Pete Docter's supervision, which succeeded him as CEO after Lasseter's leave. Toy Story 4 is the third Pixar film to have its own variant of the Pixar logo, after WALL-E and Incredibles 2, with the opening Pixar logo transitioning to the film as it has Luxo, Jr. glowing in the rain during the flashback scene and the finishing logo has Duke Caboom replacing Luxo, Jr. in the logo. This is the second fourth film in a computer-animated film series to feature Kristen Schaal after the 2010 DreamWorks film Shrek Forever After. Toy Story 4 is the first film in the series to fully feature Bonnie's father, Mr. Anderson, though he is seen from the back doing yardwork with his wife at the end of the third film. Toy Story 4 is the third Pixar film to have two producers 2 and Toy Story 2. Lotso appeared on stage during the D23 Expo for Toy Story 4, but did not appear in the film. Madeline McGraw replaces Emily Hahn as Bonnie because the latter is too old to reprise. As with Toy Story 3, which ended Andy Davis' saga as one of the main supporting characters, Toy Story 4 ends Woody's saga as the protagonist and thus, probably the franchise as a whole. At the end of the credits there is a dedication to Don Rickles (voiced by Mr. Potato Head, who died of kidney failure in April 2017) and another to Adam Burke (a Pixar animator who died of brain cancer in October 2018). Toy Story 4 is also the last Pixar film starring Lee Unkrich, who left Pixar in 2019, where he is credited as Executive Producer. Toy Story 4 is the only Toy Story film not to feature Tim Lizzy song The Boys Are Back In Town for promotion to trailers or TV spots. Toy Story 4 is the only Toy Story movie in which Buzz Lightyear does not use its laser. Toy Story 4 is the only Toy Story film not to feature a deluded Buzz Lightyear from the last three movies. It's also the first film since the original Toy Story in the franchise not to have Woody missing his hat for a moment of film. This is the only Toy Story film that was not the highest grossing Pixar film at the time of its release. Toy Story 4 is the first film in the series since Toy Story 2 not to feature Sid Phillips. Toy Story 4 is also the first film in the series since the original Toy Story not to feature Emperor Zurg. This is the seventh Pixar film in which Pixar Animation Studios is closing the logo cuts in from fading in black, following WALL-E, Up, Cars 2, Brave, Finding Dory, and Cars 3. When the first full trailer was released, Disney fans from the Middle Eastern countries launched a major campaign on Twitter with the hashtag نحن_مَش_مجرد_لعبة (literally meaning #WeAreNotAToy), which became an instant trend in several countries, and asked Disney to dub the film into Egyptian Arabic, as Disney used to duplicate all their films into Egyptian Arabic since 1975, unfortunately before sadly quitting in early 2012. As a side note, the original Toy Story trilogy is considered the most popular and beloved Disney owned franchise in the Middle East, alongside The Lion King, with all three films dubbed in Egytian Arabic the same years they were released. This is the first Toy Story film not to feature The Green Army Men, due to the unfortunate death of R. Lee Ermey, voice of Sarge, in 2018. This marks the first and only time that Bo and Jessie, the two great female toys in the franchise, ever interact with each other. This is the only time in a Toy Story movie the question of how the toy is actually alive is addressed. This marks the last time the 1967 MPAA logo would be shown eventually credits for a feature-length Pixar film. to gross one billion dollars worldwide, after Toy Story 3, Finding Dory, and Incredibles 2. This is the second Toy Story story to be released in 2019, with Kingdom Hearts 3 first published. The Easter Egg Dinoco gas station from the first film (from the cars franchise as well) and Poultry Palace from Toy Story Toon, Small Fry, make a cameo in the film under the song I Can't Let You Throw Yourself Away. As he talks to Forky, Woody recalls the events of the first film, including Buzz's delusions of being a real space voge, which Forky finds ridiculous. Similarly, while catching up with Bo Peep, Woody mentions that Andy returned to collage years ago, which was seen in Toy Story 3. Among the object Bo Peep found over the years is a grape soda bottle cap from Up. Carnival worker Axel has a Pizza Planet Truck tatoo on one of his legs. When Buzz and Bo Peep reunite, she calls him his old moving buddy, a reference to the first film. Tinny from Tin Toy appears inside the Tiki Frenzy pinball machine. In the antique shop there are many references to other Pixar movies. A box can be seen with the words CASEY JR. COOKIES. This box appeared before in A Bug's Life. The goggles from Find Nemo also made a cameo. There are DVD's reading Knick Knack, Red's Dream, and Lifted, with are all Pixar movies. A plate can be seen with the words Wally B. and a picture of him. Among the prizes at the carnival are Hector's guitar from Coco and toy rockets with Luxo Ball printed on them. The mid-credits scenes take place in New Stanton Beach, a reference to Pixar director Andrew Stanton. A reference to Pixar's next film, Further is made; Bounce house has the same pattern as Barley's van, Guinevere. The police car number was 2319, the same emergency code from Monsters, Inc.. During a mid-credits scene, Ducky calls a duo of toad toys Rainbow Connection, while Bunny asks them You Mr. Toads want to take a wild ride with a child?, A reference to Mr. Toad's Wild Ride. The film won an Oscar for best animated feature, making Toy Story the first animated film series to win an Oscar for best animated feature twice after Toy Story 3 won an Oscar for best animated feature at the 83rd Academy Awards.
