The war lasted exactly four years, three months and 14 days. Before the start of World War II in 1939, the First World War was called the Great War, the World War or the War to end any war. 135 countries participated in The First World War and more than 15 million people died. See the fact file below for more information about World War 1 1 which was a military conflict lasting from 1914 to 1918 which included almost all the greatest powers in the world. It involved two opposing alliances - allies and central powers. Allied countries included Russia, France, the British Empire, Italy, the United States, Japan, Romania, Serbia, Belgium, Greece, Portugal and Montenegro. The countries of central powers included Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey and Bulgária.Az the WW1 facts listed on this site are amazing and very interesting when you consider that the events occurred in recent history. WW1 Facts KidsWorld War I exchanged on June 28, 1914. Franz Ferdinand, Archduke of Austria, was the nephew of Emperor Franz Joseph and nephew of the Hungary of Austria and Hungary. The assassination was planned by Serbian terrorist group The Black Hand, and the man who shot Franz Ferdinand and his wife was a Bosnian revolutionary, Gavrilo Princip. Although the assassination of Ferdinand Francis started The First World War, this was the immediate reason. The root cause of the war was disagreements over the foreign policy of the great world powers. WW1 had many reasons: The tangle of alliances between countries to maintain the balance of power in Europe, which brought the scale of the conflict. The Bosnian crisis, where Austria-Hungary took over the former Turkish bosnian province in 1909, has angered Szerbiát.Az countries building their military forces, weapons and battleships. The countries wanted to re-acquire lost territory from previous conflicts and build empires. The Crisis in Morocco, where the Germans protested in 1911 against the French-held Marokkó.Az World War I was known, was a number of Names. Other names of The First World War: War to End All Wars, War of nations, </https://> </https://> And the Great War. The Americans joined World War I after 128 Americans were killed by a German submarine. In 1915, a British passenger sips in Lusitania sank a German submarine. A total of 1,195 passengers, including 128 Americans, were killed. The Americans were outraged and pressured the U.S. government to enter the war. President Woodrow Wilson wanted a peaceful end to the war, but in 1917, when the Germans announced that their submarines would sink all ships approaching Britain, Wilson declared that America would enter the war and restore peace in Europe. The United States entered the war on April 6, 1917.8 million soldiers were killed in WW1 and 21 million injured. During the war, 65 million soldiers were mobilized, 8 million soldiers were killed and 21 million soldiers were wounded. 58,000 British soldiers were lost at the Battle of the Somme. Chemical weapons were first used in World War I. The chemical was mustard gas. The United States spent only seven and a half months in the actual fight. The United States was at war in actual combat in only seven and a half months, during which time 116,000 were killed and 204,000 wounded. At the Battle of Verdun in 1916, there were more than a million casualties in ten months. By 1918, German citizens were on strike and protesting against the war. The British Navy shut down German ports, which meant thousands of Germans starved and the economy collapsed. Then the German navy suffered a major rebellion. After the 1918 agreement was a year in the right time, the Commission The peace truce was signed on November 11. By the end of the war, four empires – the Russian Empire, the Ottoman Empire, the German Empire and the Austro-Hungarian Empire – had collapsed due to the war. In 1919, the Treaty of Versailles officially ended the First World War. The Treaty stipulated that Germany assumes full responsibility for bringing about the war; make amends to some Allied countries; part of its territory should be transferred to the surrounding countries; give up its African colonies; and limit the size of the military. The Treaty also established the League of Nations to prevent future wars. The League of Nations helped Europe rebuild, and fifty-three nations joined until 1923. But the U.S. Senate refused to allow the United States to join the League of Nations, and as a result, President Wilson, who founded the League, suffered a nervous breakdown and spent the rest of his term as invalid. Germany joined the League of Nations in 1926, but many Germans resented the Treaty of Versailles. Germany and Japan left the League of Nations in 1933. Italy withdrew three years later. The League of Nations could not prevent German, Italian and Japanese from expanding their power and taking over smaller countries. A lot of people think World War I it really ended and that World War II would never have happened if it wasn't for WW1. Subscribe to KidsConnect on YouTube – more interesting facts about WW1An explosion on the battlefield in France was heard in England. Much of The First World War was fought in mud and ditches, but a group of miners also dug underground tunnels and detonated mines behind the enemy's trenches. In Messines Ridge, Belgium, these miners detonated more than 900,000 pounds of explosives at once, destroying the German front line. The explosion was so loud and powerful that the British Prime Minister, David Lloyd George, heard it – 140 miles away, journalists from Downing Street.WW1 risked their lives to report on the war. The government tried to control the flow of information from the front line during the war, and journalists were barred from reporting. The War Office believed that reports of the war were intended to aid the enemy, and that if journalists were caught, they would face the death penalty. A handful of journalists risked their lives to report on the war and the harsh reality the soldiers faced.12 million letters were delivered to the front line each week. Even during the war, it only took two days for a letter to be shipped from Britain to France. A purpose-built mail sorting office was set up in Regent's Park before the letters were sent to the frontline. By the time the war was over, more than two billion letters and 114 million packages had been delivered to the trenches! Plastic surgery was invented because ww1. One of the earliest examples of plastic surgery came during World War I, when a surgeon by the name of Harold Gillies helped srappel victims with horrific facial injuries. Shrapnel caused a lot of facial injuries in World War I, and twisted metal would cause far worse injuries than a bullet's straight-line wound. Dr Gillies pioneered early techniques of facial reconstruction. The youngest British soldier in WW1 was just 12 years old. More than 250,000 underage soldiers were allowed to fight in World War I. The youngest was a boy named Sidney Lewis, who was only 12, but lied about his age to join. There were thousands of underage boys who enlisted them, and most lied about their age. Some joined for the love of their country, while others did so to escape the life and bad conditions in which they lived. Bloodbanks were developed during World War I. It was during The First World War that the routine use of blood transfusions was used to treat wounded soldiers. The blood went directly from one person to another. In 1917, a U.S. military doctor named Captain Oswald Johnson founded the first blood bank on the Western Front. He used sodium citrate to prevent blood coagulation and Becoming. The blood was kept on ice for 28 days and, if necessary, transported to accident calculators to They lost a lot of blood.9 out of 10 British soldiers survived the trenches. British soldiers were rarely in the line of fire at WW1. They were constantly moving through the trench system and were usually kept away from the dangers of enemy fire. Most British soldiers in World War I have regular routines and boredom. Army generals had to be banned from going to the top. One common stereotype is that traditional soldiers have used higher ups - lions led by donkeys, as the saying goes. The donkeys make incompetent generals who don't spend time on the front line, while thousands of solders - the lions - have been killed. In fact, many British generals wanted to fight and had to be banned from going over the top because they were killed and a general's experience was too important to lose.
