The clarinet R13 buffet is without doubt the most successful clarinet design ever produced. The buffet model that replaced R13 always bears the design and dimensions of the bore that referred to this clarinet, which was the creation of Robert Carree in 1955. For players in the UK until the 1970s B&B; H Clarinets in either the format of 926 Imperial or 1010 are the norms. For advanced students we always recommend they buy a clarinet R13 buffet either new or used for 3 reasons. The first reason is that it is a benchmark instrument for all other professional instruments; second that it retains most of its initial costs if it needs to be sold and third that it is a wonderful clarinet. The R13 clarinet base buffet produced today from the Buffet plant in France is a major 17 instrument of 6 rings with adjustable thumb breaks. The unique main design is very strong by clever construction with silver forged locks coated on top of the copper layer to the forgotten locks. It is perfect for all kinds of music. Focusing and darkness alongside the stability of the pitch with the ability to be sweet may be its main attraction. R13 is just as good at home in the world of Symphony as well as in the Jazz or world Band Army. Product Description Details Available in Bb, A or Eb and pitch 440 Hz or 442 Hz, Buffet R13 Clarinet are made of good quality African Blackwood.
