Double-sided copying is a way to save paper and money. Most but not all models of Brother copy machines have the ability to make two-sided copying. In addition to environmental advantages, printing a related document on two sides is useful so that the document can be read like a book. Load the documents that you want to copy from the ADF store at the top of the document cover. Before loading the tray, make sure that all pages are stacked evenly. The pages should be flat, not crumpled, torn or rolled. Use the keypad to use the number of copies you want to make. Press Duplex, and then press the up or down arrow to browse and select 1sided -> 2sided L. Press the Start button to start copying. According to the cyclically adjusted price-to-earnings ratio - a figure of market value based on 10 years of smoothed earnings data - the S&P 500 is at its second most expensive point in history. Related Link: Can Tesla Destabilize the S&P 500? The S&P 500's current CAPE 34 has surpassed only one other time, during the peak dot-com bubble of 2000. Today's CAPE is more than double the S&P 500's historic average and significantly higher than its peak of about 30 just before the Black Tuesday market crash back in 1929.Many investors still remember the painful thing of the dot-com bubble. But just because the market is overvalued doesn't necessarily mean it's time to start selling or shortening the SPDR S&P 500 ETF Trust (NYSE: SPY). Shiller's Take: Nobel Prize-winning economist Robert Shiller refers to cape ratio measure market value so often that it is commonly referred to as the Shiller relationship. In a recent interview with CNBC, Shiller said an expensive market doesn't necessarily mean it's time to dump stocks. The market is high in price, but it's not that high that I don't consider it an investment, Shiller said in December. Shiller is known for his study of the psychology of investing, especially during financial market bubbles. While widespread coronavirus vaccinations are certainly a significant change in the U.S. economy, Shiller said he is concerned about how quickly investors expect the economy to fully recover once the nation is vaccinated. He expects virus-related fears to persist among American consumers for at least another year. CAPE DISADVANTAGES: Stock income is historically discounted capital price related to interest rates. After the extraordinary interest rate cut in March, interest rates are now essentially 0%. It makes no sense to compare 2020 with previous periods, at least as naïvely as Shiller PE does, without acknowledging that 10-year Treasuries yield 1% now and were higher at any other point [in history], DataTrek Research founder

Nicholas Colas said Wednesday. While CAPE certainly provides a relative sign of market value valuation, it is also not the best indicator of when to buy and sell stocks. Because it contains a decade's earnings data, the cape tends to be relatively slow-moving. Using CAPE alone, U.S. stocks still looked expensive even after the bursting dot-com bubble and the 2008 financial crisis. On the other hand, CAPE has noted that stocks had been valued in the last six years during one of the strongest bull markets in history. Finally, Colas said the S&p 500 itself is much more tech-heavy than at any other point in history, an important dynamic to consider when looking at past estimates. In the 1980s, for example, the European Commission was a member of the European 26% of the S&P 500 and the technology sector accounted for only 8%. Today, energy is 2% weighing and tech has 28% weight. Colas said investors should not forget how much this type of composition change can be in the index's overall valuation. Each S&P 500 sector has its own basics and therefore its own rating, he said. Benzinga's Take: Smart investors never ignore critical metrics like cape ratio. But smart investors also know that they can't rely too much on a single metric. Investors need to understand exactly how the numbers are calculated, what the numbers are and not tell them, and what other data complements those numbers in order to paint a complete picture of what's going on in the market. SPACs have been one of the hottest stories of investment in 2020 and look to be a big topic in 2021, with hundreds of possible deals that could be announced. Benzinga is home to a live SPACs Attack show that airs Monday to Friday at 11.m ET. On Wednesday, co-hosts Chris Katje and Mitch Hoch shared their top SPACs, which are trading at between $10 and $11. Chris's Picks: The RedBall Acquisition (NASDAQ: RBAC) is tied to joining Fenway Sports Group. The deal would give investors another publicly traded sports team. Fenway Sports Group owns MLB's Boston Red Sox and Liverpool Football Club in the English Premier League.Both teams have a strong brand of awareness and could attract investment from fans. The other catalyst mentioned was media rights. The new deal with Fox Corp. (NASDAQ: FOX) begins for MLB in 2022 and the EPL is negotiating new deals as well. Fenway Sports Group is also majority owned by a local sports media company that aired Red Sox games. Falcon Capital Acquisition (NASDAQ: FCAC) is targeted in the company's media or consumer technology sector. Spac's team includes Jeff Sagansky. The pick here is next for Sagansky, who is part of a team that does not deal with DraftKings Inc (NASDAQ: DKNG) and Skillz Inc . The team behind Hyliion Holdings (NASDAQ: HYLN) is another SPAC that could be a good pick under $11. Turtle Acquisition Corp II (NASDAQ: SNPR) is geared towards sustainability in the field. The history of the Hylion agreement could make it attractive to spac's target company. Hyliion shares traded above $50 and were among the best performers in SPACs earlier in 2020. Lefteris Acquisition Corp . With rumors companies like Sofi, eToro and others going public, fintech could host the sector to look at 2021. has a history with ETrade, Coinbase and TD Ameritrade. Burgundy Technology (NASDAQ: BTAQ) is a company that targets technology or enterprise software. The board includes Leo Apotheker, former CEO of Hewlett-Packard (NASDAQ: HPE) and SAP SE (NASDAQ: SAP). Apotheker spent over 20 years in SAP and helped transform the company from one product into a multi-solution company. Co-CEO Jim Mackey spent years at Citigroup, SAP, OpenText and Blackberry (NASDAQ: BB). While at Blackberry, Mackey helped the company switch from mobile to the company's endpoint management. Burgundy technology mentions Israel as the target area in its submission. Apotheker graduated from the Hebrew University of Israel. Several large Israeli companies are targeting 2021 IPO or SPAC deals that could make Burgundy a good choice here. The list of rumoured names includes REE Automotive, Taboola, Outbrain and eToro. (NASDAQ: SEAH) is a name that has been mentioned in the show several times. The company is targeted in the sports and entertainment sectors. The management team includes Eric Grubman, who was chairman of hospitality company Location Experience and also had a role in the NFL. John Collins, chief executive of PAC, spent time with the NHL and cleveland browns.Supernova Partners Acquisition (NASDAQ: SPNV) is targeting the technology sector, looking for a company with a large addressable market, well-defined vision, competitive moats and the ability to expand its operations. The management team includes Zillow Group (NASDAQ: Z) and Hotwire co-founder Spencer Rascoff. Rascoff was Zillow's ceo for more than 10 years and led the company through 15 acquisitions, including major rival Trulia. Spac from Goldman Sachs could land a high-growth company, including eToro, which had recent talks with the company. GS Acquisition Of Holdings Corp II (NASDAQ: GSAH) is still trading below $11 and was the top pick in the hoch. SPAC raised $700 million and did not specify a target area focus. Churchill Capital Corp IV (NASDAQ: CCIV) is one of the largest spacs currently seeking a target. SPAC is involved in a finalist bid for DIRECTV, sold by AT&T (NYSE: T). Landing directv wouldn't be much, according to Hoch, and he said he would be more excited about a different goal. Cerberus Telecom Acquisition (NYSE: CTAC) is SPAC led by CEO Tim Donahue, who is a former chairman of Sprint Nextel. Hoch calls it a long-term game based on a graph. (Bloomberg) - The Venezuelan government's plans to move entirely from the digital economy to hyperinflation have made worthless bolivar notes virtually disappear, and the dollar is expanding through the local financial system. The U.S. dollar has acted as an evacuation valve for Venezuela amid U.S. sanctions and the collapse of oil revenue, President Nicolas Maduro said in a televised interview with Telesur on Friday. He said 18.6% of all business transactions are in dollars, while 77.3% are executed in bolivars with debit cards. Only 3.4% are paid for bolivar notes. They're at war with our physical currency. We are moving towards a deeper digital economy this year, expanding. I have set a goal for an economy that is 100% digital, Maduro said, adding that physical money will eventually disappear. This is the latest ambitious currency plan from the President of Venezuela, without a guarantee of success. In 2017, when the bolivar was in freefall, Maduro vowed that the nation would create a cryptocurrency called Petro, backed by oil, gas, gold and diamond reserves. Petro was launched in 2018; The U.S. called it a scam. Venezuela's currency has slowly cut 99% of its value in three years, forcing the country to issue higher-face value notes, which in turn become record-breaking. Inflation rose to 5,790% in the last 12 months, according to Bloomberg News's Cafe con Leche Index.The biggest note now in circulation, 50,000 bolivars, is worth about $0.04. The government has delayed plans to issue a 100,000 bolivar bill that would currently be worth less than $0.10.Read more: Venezuelan Cafe Con Leche IndexAfter previously subsidized fuel prices had increased in June, money is now only used to drive public transportation, and the Caracas metro routinely stops charging passengers due to a lack of money. Since the end of 2019, local banks have slowly begun offering us dollar accounts and financial products, but they remain limited as there is no settlement system in US dollars. Some banks have held technical meetings with Venezuela's central bank in an attempt to resolve the issue amid heightened skepticism and caution over U.S. sanctions. But Maduro vowed to create payment formats that allow transactions using savings and control accounts in U.S. dollars. A press official at Venezuela's central bank did not immediately respond to a request for comment. Despite promising to expand the use of the U.S. dollar economy, Maduro said the official dollar Venezuela has its own currency and we intend to defend it, he said. We examined a group of more than 500 investors to see if the shares of Shopify Inc. (NYSE: SHOP) will reach $2,000 by 2022. Shopify Stock Forecast Shopify offers an e-commerce platform mainly for small and medium-sized enterprises. The e-commerce company has two leading segments that drive revenue: orders and trade solutions. The ordering solutions segment allows Shopify merchants to engage in e-commerce on various platforms, including the company's website, physical stores, pop-up shops, kiosks and social networks. Merchant solutions are defined as additional products for the e-commerce platform and include Shopify Payments, Shopify Shipping and Shopify Capital Amazon.com. Of Benzinga traders and investors surveyed, 67% told us Shopify would reach $2000 per share by the end of next year. Respondents said Shopify will continue to see the strength of 2021 off the continued nationwide adoption of online shopping, away from traditional brick and mortar retailers. Traders also said that even with a nationwide distribution of the coronavirus vaccine already underway, the popularity of e-commerce continues to grow. They believe American consumers like being able to buy different merchants simultaneously and have their purchases delivered to their front door. Many traders and investors also said they are interested in Shopify's UI/UX, noting how the platform has great easy access to small and medium-sized retailers who want to take their business online. It should be noted the latest price target for Shopify was announced by Susquehanna on December 2. An analyst at the company set a target of $950, hoping shares in the e-commerce company would fall within 12 months. At the end of 2020, Shopify shares were trading lower after a recent rise in shares, driven by e-commerce trends and optimism about holiday sales. COVID-19 vaccine news has also prompted a rotation of e-commerce names to reopen sectors such as the traditional retail and travel sectors. Current and potential investors should consider Shopify's fourth-quarter earnings date estimated for February 17.See also: How to buy Shopify Stock.This study was conducted by Benzinga in December 2020 and included responses to the diverse population of 18.07.07.07.02.
