Jul 31, 2019 version 6.1.3 we fixed some errors in this version. If you enjoy the app, do you leave us a review? Thank you! I love this app for the most part, but I felt the need to take off one star and see if I would fix my criticism for it. I see that you have a link to share text if I should see something I like on today's page, but every time I try to share anything all it does is share a link to Sarah Young's books. What's all this? I want to be able to highlight and share the ideas I read during the day, not the books themselves. People will see book titles when I share something anyway, they're getting a lot of publicity, let me share the same text as it says: share text. Fix this and I'll give you five stars. I found out how to share what I read daily to other people. The way I share what I read is by clicking on the center of the page that you are reading and stuck to it until you see a tape that will appear on the screen and then click on the selection of everything, and then at the end of the tape you will see the last click on the share button and not the link and this is how I managed to share this with many people. As Published earlier when you clicked on the arrow link all that appears is books from Sarah Young that are really amazing all of them last. I hope this is some help for anyone trying to share something they read that very day. God bless you all, God bless the world because Jesus is the Lord!!!! I started my morning with this app for over 4 years. I absolutely love the pleasant way of making God's promises in such a applicable, easy way to understand. almost every day as if it were written only to me. On what I'm having or going though. I strongly encourage anyone considering buying this app please do so. I also love and have Jesus calls for children's app on my children's phones and we are able to discuss every day reading. It is the same version as this but written in a way that is easy for children (and teens) to understand. So, if you have kids you will definitely get this one as well!
