Children2Curian nameHangul진구Hanja晋久revised RomanizationJin GuMcCune-ReischauerChin Ku Jin Goo ;born July 20, 1980) is a South Korean actor. He won best supporting actor at the Big Bell Awards and the Blue Dragon Film Award for his role in Bong Joon-ho's 2009 noir thriller. He is also known for his role in the critically and commercially successful series Descendants of the Sun from 2003-2008: Jin Gu made his television debut in the gambling drama All In in 2003, as the younger version of the heroine character played by Lee Byung-hoon. [1] They reunited on screen in Kim Ji-won's Film Noir A Bittersweet Life,[2] and Jin later joined Lee when he set up his own management agency, BH Entertainment. In 2005, Jin starred in the one-episode drama Saya, Saya (Bird, Bird), in an adaptation of the novel written by Shin Kyung-seok about a mother and son who are both deaf. The film won the grand prize in the category of Prix Italia TV movie/miniseries, and the jury praised it as a magical, moving and poetic story about the power of love with high-quality performances. [4] After a guest appearance as a Korean language teacher on the bibisoda of the Japanese drama Joshi Dekai,[5] Jin returned to Korean television in 2008's Spotlight, a glimpse into the lives of broadcast news reporters covering the beat city. To prepare for his role, Jean followed a puppy reporter for one day, realizing they didn't have time to wash or even wash their faces. [6] Jin was known for playing moody, powerful characters, such as a low-ranking thug in a dirty yo-ha carnival and a serial killer in a troc. Jean won best new actor from the Golden Photography Award. [13] [14] 2009-2015: Breakthrough and Gin's breakthrough continued will be his illustrious supportive turnaround in 2009. [15] [16] His performance in the Bong Joon-ho thriller earned him recognition at the Great Bell Awards,[18] at the Korean University Film Festival and the Blue Dragon Film Awards. [20] [21] In 2010, Jean shed his hard-enough character to play an asynchourous chef Le Grand Chef 2: Kimchi Battle. He said it was a great pleasure to make the film as cooking was a hobby of his, though emulating a professional chef meant going through 200 hours of chopping chills to perfect the movement. He added that after filming he managed to make kimchi with his mother, which turned out to be an unforgettable experience. [23] [24] 2011 was a busy year for Jin. Besides appearing in the conspiracy thriller Moby Dick, he had a starring role as one of three Joson soldiers desperate in the debate. He also made his debut as a great- [27] [28] [29] He starred in 26 years, based on Kang Paul's humility about a plot to assassinate the man responsible for the Gwangju massacre. Jin has been connected to the project since early production began in 2008, but investors have backed down due to the politically controversial content. Online donations from thousands of individuals allowed photographers to innovate in 2012. Jin was the only holdout of the original cast; Initially cast as the young cop, he now played the more central role of gangster. In 2013, he played the titular character in the TV series Tv Genius Lee Tae-bak, a success story about a man who comes to Seoul from the village armed only with a high school diploma and a gift for painting and, through hard work, fights his way to becoming the best steamman and artistic director in the business. [35] Supporting roles followed in thriller The Target,[36] Period blockbuster The Admiral: Roars,[37] and nostalgic musical drama C'est Si Bon. In 2015, Jin starred in The Northern Frontier Line, a nautical thriller about Yunpyong's second fight. [39] 2016-present: Rising popularity in 2016 was a remarkable year for Jin Gu. He was cast as an elite special forces soldier in Descendants of the Sun, a romantic melodrama written by Kim Eun-seok. The drama was a commercial and critical success in Asia, leading to a rise in gin's popularity. [41] [42] Later this year, Jean starred in the MBC night light melodrama, [44] In 2017, Jin starred in the action film One Line, where he played a legendary con man who joins a student (Im Si-wan) to rob a bank. He then starred in an impartial JTBC melodrama. In 2019, Jin is expected to star in the legal drama High, a remake of the Japanese TELEVISION series of the same name. In December 2020, Jin signed with the new varo entertainment agency. On September 21, 2014, Jean married his girlfriend. [50] [51] [52] [53] In June 2015, the couple welcomed a baby boy. In November 2016, they welcomed their second daughter, a baby girl. Jin completed his mandatory military service with the Korean Naval Military Police. [57] [58]
