Early and Personal Life Johnson was born in Des Moines, Iowa, the daughter of Doug and Teri Johnson. Her parents enrolled her in a gymnastics class at the age of three after noticing her climbing lockers and jumping off tables. At the age of six, Johnson was one of Liang Chow's first students when he opened a gymnastics school in West Des Moines. Johnson attended Valley High School. She was on an honor roll, loved attending football games and dances. In 2008, Johnson maintained a more balanced lifestyle than typical of elite gymnasts. She limited her gymnastics training to 25 hours a week, as opposed to a more typical 40 hours. Johnson dropped out of public school in the spring of 2009. She moved to Los Angeles, California, with her mother before appearing on Dancing with the Stars. From 2010 to 2010, she graduated high school with a private teacher. Since the end of 2013 he has been enrolled at Vanderbilt University studying sports psychology and nutrition. Johnson is married to Andrew East, a former Oakland NFL raiders. They got engaged in July 2015 at Wrigley Field during a Chicago Cubs game, and were married on April 16, 2016. In November 2015, she revealed that she suffered from an eating disorder in 2008 on the eve of the 2008 Olympic Games. She admitted she had only ate about 700 calories a day before - less than half of the minimum recommended calorie intake for a 16-year-old girl. Gymnastics Career Junior Career Pre-Elite When she was twelve years old, Johnson competed in the junior Olympic (U.S. Level 10) national championship, finishing fourth in the all-around, first on the beam and second on the floor. Johnson was not a U.S. gymnastics coach when she was young, and her coach, Liang Chow, had no interactions with national headquarters. Chow reached out to the national team coordinator, Marta Karolya, in 2005, sending her a recording of Johnson with a comment I believe this kid will help the U.S. team. Karolyi found the action brazen: Wow, this coach is pretty confident, but she soon invited Johnson to the national team's training camps. Junior Elite Johnson qualified the Junior International Elite on her first attempt. She attracted a lot of attention at the 2005 U.S. Classic. At 2005 A national championship, Johnson fell off the beam on the first day of competition and finished 10th all-around. Johnson added several new tricks in 2006, including Jaeger on the bars, and two superb (G) skills, a full-in back-out off from the beam and a double return to the floor. She won in 2006. Senior career 2007: Pre-Worlds Johnson became a senior in 2007 and went on to show new skills, including a double double look that veered off uneven bars. She competed in the Tyson American Cup in 2007. Johnson also competed in the 2007 Pan American Games. Johnson won the U.S. National Championship in 2007, beating Shayla Worley by more than three points. Johnson also finished more than five points ahead of two national champions, Nastie Liukin, in the first in a row of face-offs over the next two years. The 2007 World Championships johnson represented the U.S. at the 2007 World Championships in Artistic Gymnastics alongside Nastia Liukin, Shayla Worley, Alicia Sacramone, Ivana Hong and Samantha Peszek. In the prelims (qualifying), Johnson scored 16,250 on the beam, 15,150 on the floor, 15,175 on the skip, and (with a drop on her slumped) 14,625 on the bars. The U.S. finished first in the prelims, with Johnson qualifying for the finals all over the place, beams and floor. Johnson performed all four events in the team finals; the only American athlete to do so. Johnson scored 15,375 on the bars and floor and 15,150 on the skip. She fell on the beam on her handspring-handspring-layout series and scored 15,025 points. The team won gold with 184,400 points, 0.950 ahead of China with a silver medal. It was the U.S. second team gold at the World Championships. In the final round, Johnson scored 15,175 on the skip, 15,375 on the bars, 15,900 on the beam and 15,425 on the floor. Her 61,875 total made her the fourth American woman to win a gold medal. During the event finale, Johnson competed for the first time on the balance beam, where she fell on her standing full and on a jump off a switch, scoring 14,475 and finishing last. In floor practice, she went out of bounds on her first tumble, but won gold with 15,250, only outshine teammate Sacramone. 2008: Before the Olympics, Johnson competed again in the America's Cup on January 1, 2009. On the vault, she fell on her Amanar vault, scoring 15,175 points. She stated that her attempt to glue the vault caused her to fall. On the second apparatus, she scored 15,625 points on the bars, 16,325 on the beam and 15,975 on the floor. Although Johnson scored first on the skip, balance beam and floor, she finished second. Nastia Liukin wins gold with uneven levers score almost a point more than Johnson. A week later, Johnson represented the U.S. in Jesol, Italy, against Italy, Spain and Poland, along with Jana Bieger, Olivia Courtney, Chelsea Davis, Bridget Sloan and Samantha Peszek. The U.S. won junior and senior team titles. Johnson won with 61.7, earning the most points on the skip (15.2), beams (16.2) and floor (15.0). Johnson finished first upstairs, despite the fall, on her double-double mount. June 7th, 2008. Johnson scored 127.5, winning the all-way championship by one point ahead of Liukin. Johnson also won the floor exercise. Two weeks later, Johnson won the Olympic events in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, again finishing ahead of Liukin. Because of their best rankings, Johnson and Liukin were named to the U.S. Olympic gymnastics team in 2008. The other four members of the 2008 2008 Olympics in 2008 and 2012 were among the other members of the 2008 Olympics. Johnson also won a silver medal in the individual competition, earning a score of 62.725. Johnson's teammate and roommate in the Olympic village, Nastia Liukin, won the gold medal, earning a score of 63.325. With Liukin taking gold and Johnson taking silver, this competition was the first time the United States women's gymnastics team had taken both gold and silver medals in singles; This competition is also the fourth time the country has won both gold and silver medals in the individual competition. She won a silver medal in floor practice, and teammate Liukin won bronze. She won a gold medal on the balance beam machine. Like the individual all-around, she and Liukin took the top two medals in this mind. She qualified as the second reserve for the uneven bar finals, but did not compete. Comeback In January 2010, Johnson tore her left ACL while skiing. She had reconstructive knee surgery the following month. In May 2010, he was sentenced to 10 years in In August 2010, Johnson communicated that her knee had recovered to allow full training and that she had learned a new difficult skill. In November 2010. Although she expected to return to the ranch later in her return, based on demonstrated progress in her video, Marta Karolyi asked to appear early. Johnson mentioned that her reconstructed knee continues to interfere with the high volume of training. In February 2011, Johnson once again became an official member of the U.S. senior team, allowing her to compete in international competitions. She that he wanted to return to competition later in 2011. In September 2011 Johnson was named a non-travelling deputy on the U.S. national team for the 2011 Women's World Cup.
