Jarvis landry contract extension

Mike Ehrmann/Getty ImagesThe Cleveland Browns and wide receiver Jarvis Landry officially agreed to a contract extension on Friday.Ian's report to NFL Network reported Thursday the two sides were locked in on a deal. The report added the country will receive $75.5 million over the course of the agreement, with $47 million guaranteed. Landry, who Cleveland acquire from the Miami Dolphins for a 2018 fourth round pick and a 2019 seventh-round selection, already signed the franchise tag that would pay him nearly $16 million in 2018. If he doesn't agree with a new contract, he would be able to test free unrestricted agencies. Instead, the country appears to be an extended stay of Cleveland.Sa volunteers stick around is great news for the Browns, who now have an ideal complement underneath the vertical threat of Josh Gordon. Arguably the most polished league inside route-running, Tendri has established himself as a possession receiver in the highest order since making his NFL debut in 2014. Over the past four seasons, the 25-year-old has posted 400 layers for 4.038 yards and 22 touchesdown while racking up a 570 target. According to Pro Football Reference, Landry, Antonio Brown and Julio Jones are the only players with at least 400 receptions and 4,000 yard receiving dating back to 2014. It's very difficult to find, Scenery said of video quality slot back in January, per The Palm Beach Post's Joe Schad. I think being in the place, it's not so much like being a good place receiver. He has the instinct for the game. When you know your insurance like the back of your hand. Understand that you will have to cache contacts, because you're there in the mix. While the country will not change the complexion of Cleveland's offense alone, it should allow head coach Hue Jackson to diversify the scheme and pressure defensive pressure in creative ways. After that, he'll provide another weapon in the passing game for the team's quarter, whether that ends up being veteran tayrod Taylor or a rookie Cleveland pick during the upcoming NFL draft. The Cleveland Browns will finalize a long-lasting contract with recently accumulated wide receiver Jarvis Landry, according to ESPN's Josina Anderson. The NFL Network's Ian Network reports that Landry was set to receive a five-year contract for $75.5 million, with $47 million guaranteed. If the reports stand true, Landry would join the Cincinnati Bengals stopping A.J. Green as the fifth-highest paid wide receivers. The only players who do more in average than the former Miami Dolphins receiver are Antonio Brown, Mike Evans, DeAndre Hopkins and Sammy Watkins, according to more than the Cap. The former LSU star has put $15.98 million on the franchise tag, but the new deal will cover this number. In four seasons with Miami, Scenery recorded 400 receptions for 4.038 yard and 22 touchdown. He did Pro Bols and never missed a game with the Dolphins. The Browns have traded their 2018 fourth-round pick and 2019 seventh-round pick to Miami for India at the start of the league year. The country will avenge $15.1 million a year on its contract. He's the fifth highest paid receiver in the NFL in terms of average cap salary, with only Antonio Brown, Mike Evans, Deandre Hopkins and Sammy Watkins ahead of him. In 2020, all $13 million in base land will become fully guaranteed if he's still in the team for the fifth day of this year's league. From 2020-2021, Country will earn a $46,875 bonus for each game it's active for. As Spotrac put it, if Landry was a disaster for some reason or Cleveland just didn't want to pay him any more, his contract comes down to being 2 years, $34 million guaranteed. After that, the team may, in essence, opt out (as is the case with many NFL contracts). Newly acquire Jarvis Landry's 5 yr, $75.5M extension is essentially a fully guaranteed 2-year, $34M deal, after #Browns have a easy exit. Cleveland signed sales for Jarvis Country daytime to a five-year contract extension, the Browns announced Friday. Per NFL Network Insider Ian Report, the deal is worth $75.5 million. The massive payment comes capped with a stunning $47 million guarantee, an unexpected mountain of cash for a slot receiver with roughly $9 million more in guarantees than Mike Evans nettes out of the Buccs. You can bet this news just got Odell Beckham out of bed. I'm excited for the trip with my new equipment and my building, one the day at a time, starting with the offseason program on Monday, Landry said in a statement. Let's have great Cleveland. Laundry was previously scheduled to play out the year under the $15,982 million franchise tag, but the Browns were expected to work an extension all together. Jarvis Landry is the kind of football player we want from this team for a long time, general manager John Dorsey said in a statement. Obviously, he's an accomplished playmaker, that's why we went after him in the trade but in his short time as a brown we can already see what kind of leadership and competitive he will bring to his team. We are very pleased that we were able to secure him in a long-term deal. Whether India is worth this kind of cash will certainly elite strong views from self-style twitter flashes — taken in the weeks and months forward. The Browns are sitting high in the rest of the NFL with $70 million in cap space, but landed there in strict bookkeeping with a rash of jettisoned veteran contracts. Dorsey has a reputation for big payments, and only reinforces that with this beef contract for Landry, who led the NFL in cache last season but managed just 8.8 yards per reception, relating to 108th league-wide. Country is under pressure delivered in a rush for a group of Browns who have been extensively coach Hue Jackson. The first Arrondissement of Appendage cannot get out of its own way, while Josh Gordon's return -- which feels like a dream -- is always considered with an eye of suspicion. With Taylor Tyrod under center, the Browns finally have a karterback boasted a dose of starting experience. Plot gives them something similar to but the price is exporting. Browns fans better hope Dorsey is on something with this incredible deal. Land has become one of the most dangerous slot receivers since entering the league, getting more receiving yard out of the slot every year. In 2016, he led the league with 65 reception and 856 receiving yard while lined up inside. 2.25 yards the country per route run ranked seventh last season, while his 2.33 yards were getting gained per route run from second place ranked behind only Julian Edelman. Land became the most efficient route during his career as he saw his production per route running both inside and split wide. Earning a top-10 grade among the buffet the past two seasons, Landry will continue to improve while he's waiting today. Read more PFF All News & Analytics
