Their fourth single was released on April 11, 2018, with their fourth single out of their album Eat the Elephant. The song's title is taken from the Douglas Adams book So Long, and Thank You for All Fish, the fourth book in his The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy series, which in turn comes from a quote from the first book The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy. Background and composition The song was released as the fourth single from Eat the Elephant, after The Doomed, Disillusioned and TalkTalk. [2] April 2018 on BBC Radio 1, five days before the release of Eat the Elephant. [4] [5] The song's music was originally written by guitarist Billy Howerdel and was intended for his solo project, Ashes Divide. [6] However, he often presents music intended for the Ashes Divide to band frontman Maynard James Keenan to see if he has an interest in writing lyrics and vocal harmonies for songs to become A Perfect Circle material instead; Keenan chose to use the song because he felt that People is going to hate me for this one, so let's do it. November 2018 was directed by Kyle Cogan. Maynard summed up the concept as Welcome to the New Normal. Shot in black and white it begins with a voice-over from a US civil defense film about atomic explosions before going into a mock commercial. The scenes of a traditional 1950s landscape suburban home and white picket fence are becoming increasingly disturbing before culminating in a nuclear holocaust, adorned with footage from the 1955 Operation Cue nuclear test. [8] A limited edition version of the single was released for Record Store Day on 23. [9] Themes and composition The song's name comes from the name of the fourth book in Douglas Adams's The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy series, So Long, and Thank you for all the fish, though the song's lyrics touch more on the subject of death among celebrities. [3] The song makes allusions to many celebrity deaths in 2016, including Gene Wilder (known for his role as Willy Wonka), David Bowie, Muhammad Ali, Prince, and Carrie Fisher. [1] [3] In the writing lyrics, Keenan stated that he was inspired by the sarcastic nature of rip.M. the song it's the End of the World as We Know It (And I Feel Fine). [7] Lyrical was the song by Revolver as [poke] fun at the absurdity of modern existence. [10] Keenan said of the song: We all do the absurd in our own way. The Italian side of me produces and shares wine with friends to feel grounded and connected amid all the madness. But once the wine is gone, the drunk and sarcastic Irish side of me goes straight to the unreasonable carotid artery. [10] Musically, Spin described the song as an orchestral power-rocker of sorts, alternating sunnier, almost glam-like chord progressions with more traditional hard rock gestures. [3] The song was written with master key, and has a more upbeat pace than most songs by the band. [6] [11] [12] The song features drifting percussion, dark guitar parts and strings. [11] Reception Metal Injection praised the song, comparing it favorably to Disillusioned and concluded that it was a bit of an earworm, as at the end of the track I found myself singing the hook. [2] Louder Sound called the song one of the ten Key songs performed by Keenan and Howerdel throughout their careers, just one day after the song's release. Downloaded from Comments Share So long, and thanks for all the fish is a song sung by dolphins before leaving Earth. The texts are here. Appearances Dolphins So Long, and thanks for all the fish appear in the 2005 film The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy. The first version of the song So Long, and Thanks For All The Fish is a Broadway-style, lively version sung by dolphins before leaving Earth. The second iteration plays the late credits, and is in the style of 1950s male singers. Behind the scenes The song was written by English composer Joby Talbot, conductor Christopher Austin, and director Garth Jennings and performed by the Tenebrae Choir. Neil Hannon, founder and lead singer of the Irish pop group Divine Comedy, lent his vocals to the version of the song, which was played in the late credits. The song, in its bouncy, opening version, was translated into and performed in Spanish for the Latin American Region 4 DVD release. The last word fish should preferably be stored for 20 seconds. The song's lyrics influenced by the deaths of celebrities in 2016 and 2017, including David Bowie, Gene Wilder, Muhammad Ali, Carrie Fisher and Prince. I think it was a great curveball for a lot of people to have that concentration of celebrities, people who are iconic, exit. I'm sure it's happened in previous generations - all of a sudden, an exodus - but the immediacy of social media made it more impactful with more of a rapid fire to be able to see this list every day of people that you were familiar with over the years. And at the age of 53, you start to take it pretty seriously. Maynard James Keenan. Keenan.
