Spanish shoe brands are among the countries' main exports. (As well as Spanish food and wine) Spanish shoes are made of soft leather, they are comfortable and usually long lasting. As admitted shoe addict I thought I'd share some of my latest finds with you. Travel shoes must be good otherwise your trip will not go well. The newspaper clip above is me in a pair of suede sandals Bimba & Lola (super comfortable) climbing the hills above Montefrío. I didn't know we were going camping. This bad shoe choice was so bad that it even did the local press. Even if you're not hiking the mountains, in the office all day it's the same story. I remember moving from Barcelona to Granada and realizing that my shoes were wrong. Barcelona is a busy city with smooth sidewalks and city streets. Granada has slippery marchers, cobble streets and even some streets with stairs. Leaving Barcelona behind, Granada's would now be negotiating uneven streets every day. You can't do that in heels. Spanish Shoe Brands oven hot summers are also heavy feet. It's amazing how much difference it is between your shoes. So initially granada I had some scratches and blisters to deal with. Now I know what shoes I have to wear around here. I've stuck with the same Spanish shoe brands over and over again. Here are twelve shoe brands that I've bought over and over again. Many are online stores where they ship internationally. Others are stockists in many different places. There are also factory stores and outlets that are these brands. Madrid Las Rozas Outlet is one of the largest. I've been to the Designer Outlet la Roca near Barcelona a few times too. These are both good opportunities for both Spanish and international labels. Or of course, if you travel to Spain you can make the most of your trip and buy real leather shoes when you are here. I've even taken an old pair of shoes with me on my travels so I can leave them behind and come back with new ones. (minimum weighting) Panama Jack Boots - Made in Spain Good for hiking, Walking long distance and cold weather These practical blue boots are very comfortable for winter travel. I traveled to the U.S. this fall on vacation and knew walking every day was going to require good shoes. Panama Jack boots were comfortable to be going all day. They kept my feet warm and dry. Even in the blustery Boston weather. Now I am back in Spain I use these boots from my days in alpujarra and Lecrin Valley. Also on cold winter weekends in Granada my jeans. Panama Jack now has a wide range of shoes all year round. Light sandals for daylight saving time and lots of great boots for winter in colorful designs. Based in Alicante, they have been running since 1989. Their online store delivers many different countries and also has good social media channels. UNISA – Made in Spain Good looking smart in hot or cold weather I have UNISA winter boots and sandals too. Summer sandals I am long lasting and great value. I have couple pairs now. (UNISA summer sandals seen in the photo above) Why not buy my Amazon store option spanish shoe brands? Photo Credit UNISA Facebook Spanish Leather My Black winter boots have a black fur cuff (like a leg warmer) around the top, you can fold it down over the calf or miss it up. The boot can have an ankle boot with fur trim or a long normal leather boot with fur inside the extra heat. The mid heel height makes them good looking in design, but comfortable too. Non-slip soles are also excellent on winter days. I remember wearing them in Camden Lock on a cold December day. Good test for those leas. Soles are quite harsh for good even in icy conditions. I got them 2 years ago and I get a lot of wear out of them still. Lodi Shoes - Made in Spain Good medium heel height, comfort still elegant. If I'm invited to a Spanish wedding, I know I need a shoe strategy. Spanish weddings are usually 24-hour affairs. The last time I went I left my house at about 11.30am and couldn't get home until 5am the next day. From my group, I was the first to leave... Occasion Footwear So I always go to weddings, special events or parties in Lodi shoes. I like them because they are sparkly dressy shoes with medium heel heights and sometimes hidden on the platform. They look elegant, but they don't hurt at all. I also have some simple blacks for work too. Lodi is one of the most popular Spanish shoe brands they have made in Alicante. Find them in specialist shoe stores and corte ingles. Chie Mihara Good for everything and everything. Chie Mihara, this Japanese-Brazilian designer, has her factory located in Alicante, Spain. His shoes remind me of little girl shoes decades ago. They have a vintage feel to them and his designs are clearly distinctive. Many of her shoes are Mary Jane style, but I also have court shoes and ankle boots too. In Alicante, they have a small factory. You'll find your stock there with generous reductions if you've ever converted to that area. There are also some Chie Mihara shoes on Amazon online When I visited Elda Alicante it was like a kid in a sweet shop. Basically, the whole city dedicated to producing fabulous Spanish shoes. I have five or six pairs of Chie Mihara shoes right now. They are so comfortable and I love that you don't see too many people in them. This is one of my favorite Spanish shoe makers because they are ergonomically designed to be comfortable yet also use high quality skin and have great designs. Spanish Shoe Brands Alicante This is one of the most innovative Spanish shoe brands, a new line has just been introduced called ChiE which has high heels with added upholstery for extra comfort. Not so long ago I had endless boxes of shoes and boots. I've changed a little bit now. I prefer to be less of a pair of shoes, but better quality. They tend to last longer, too. I'll check too. regular trips to the egg echo. The cobble streets in Granada are good for cobble streets. (Heel caps are often damaged between the egg-laying) I usually take all my shoes at the start of each season to get anti slip soles put on and heel tips updated. Pikolinos Since 1984 this Spanish brand is designing big shoes and can easily be found on Spain's main street. My last purchase is a pair of Leather Blue Lisbon ankle boots they are really lightweight, like trainers, but are much warmer. I also have some Pikolinos Mary Janes (seen above) in big wearing dresses with yet still solid heel if not caught on the cobblestone. The other mark in the Pikolinos family is Martinelli. I have a beautiful pair of burgandy ankle boots for this brand. The Yokono Summer sandals that I bought this year were super comfortable. As I got them neutral blush color they also matched everything. I bought them online from Yokono Shoes. Brought directly to me from Alicante. They store them in Corte Ingles, but they didn't have my size. Buying online was actually the same price. Love the logo, this bright red ladybird. This company has been running since 1981. Gioseppo My Gioseppo suede boots are very comfortable and I love the glitter detail heel. I found them at the Gioseppo store in Madrid in January 2017. On Calle Claudio Coello 38 Good Price vs. quality these are the only Gioseppo shoes I have so, but I look at my summer collection this season. In business since 1991, it is now an international brand, although it starts in Spain. Camper Spanish brand Camper is known both in Spain and internationally. Founded in 1975 in Mallorca in 1975, the traditional brand has a modern line in its designs. I have at least three pairs of these summers. See above is a pair of black leather heeled sandals that I wore all summer. Find a Camper in most Of Spain's high street stores. I bought them at a good price in La Roca Village (a short drive from Barcelona) nordikas Long-lasting slippers. I've lost count of how many pairs of them I've bought over the years. Nordika has been a wonderful Christmas and birthday present for many of my family and friends. I usually hand leather ones to men because they are smart and heavy on rides. They last for several years. For a warmer climate, they also have summer versions of their slippers that are worth taking care of. I've bought them from El Corte Ingles or regretting shoe shops in Spain, but you can also find them online too Munich Trainers Munich barcelona trainers are colorful yet understated. Love these casual wear and wandering around Barcelona too. Mine are dark blue and bright orange. I've had them for a few years now, but they're still strong. They have a store in La Roca, but I bought my trainers from a small store Because they are light and thin, they are ideal for spring and summer. Spanish shoe brands tend to specialise in weddings and daily wear, but this is the only coach brand I know so far. Bimba & Lola's well-known name now on many high streets of Bimba & Lola can be found in most Spanish cities and some internationals too. Although they are mainly stockings clothes, their footwear lines may open up some goodies too. They also have a lot of leather bags too. I've bought sandals in my stores for a few summers. It's worth checking your sales with good exes. Shown in the photo below are my beige sandals that were so good I bought two exactly the same pairs. I've been carrying them until they're completely exhausted. So comfortable and easy to match summer colors. Manolo Blahnik His impossible to write Spanish shoe brands without mentioning Manolo Blahnik. Although I don't have the pair yet. They're on my wish list. These Spanish designer shoes are equipped with Harrods, Nordstrom and many other prestigious locations around the world. The Art of Shoes is becoming more recognizable when they were used in Sex and the City these beautiful shoes have been crafted since the 1970s. Born in Santa Cruz de la Palma, the Spanish designer is now a UK resident. The flagged shop this iconic Spanish shoemaker is in London. There is also a store in Barcelona Paseo de Gracia 38-40. The Art of Shoes exhibition has been in various locations around the world and is also a book too. This is my personal experience of shoes and travel. Shoes.. One of my passions. I could write for days. Why not pin it to save later?
