Two-tone acetate frames. Rectangular lenses. Bow detail in front of the frame. Logo detail in stamps. Tight hands. Imported.About the cover of a spate in New York: In 1993, former magazine accessories editor Kate Brosnahan created a sleek black handbag under the label cover spade in New York that became famous around the world. In 2007, Deborah Lloyd, formerly of Banana Republic and Burberry, took the helm of the president and chief creative officer, aiming to expand the line honoring her history. Craig A. Leavitt joined shortly there after that to realize the global potential of the brand, which now has dozens of retail stores, a thriving e-commerce business and boutiques around the world and has grown to include shoes, jewelry, fragrance, glasses, hosiery, table bench, paper and women's ready-to-wear.
