Whether they are smoothie bars or just juice bars, you are sure to find something you like! Buying your fresh juice all the time though can quickly start adding up. Therefore, if you love to drink fresh juice but want to try to save some money, then buying a manual citrus press juicer can make all the difference. In this article we will look at how to use a manual citrus juicer! Hopefully this will help you use one to the best of your ability, and you will be making juice in no time! Manual Citrus Juicers Manual Citrus juicers are perfectly designed to extract juices from small grapefruits, oranges and lemons. Manual juicers have been around for a long time, as long as people have turned citrus fruits into delicious juices. Their unique design has been present for centuries, and the first trace of this apparatus use is known to go back to 18th century Turkey. Today, manual citrus juicers are almost everywhere and are super easy to find. If you check out your local home and kitchen store they are easy to get your hands on for as little as $50. There are a variety of prices depending on which brand you choose to buy from. The most popular brands of manual citrus juicers are Nutripress, ROVSUN, ORVIS, Olympus and Jupiter, and countless others. How to use them Automatic citrus juicers may seem like the most convenient kitchen appliance, especially for restaurants and home use. But not all of them are designed for constant everyday use. This means that the engines will not be able to take the daily use that would be required. Good quality manual citrus juicers, on the other hand, are much better for everyday use and don't require any electricity! That's why you really need a high quality juicer that will be able to withstand a lot of use, whether in a restaurant or simply at home. Using a manual citrus juicer is quite simple. Most devices come with a handle that you pull down to squeeze the fruit so that the juice extract easily and without too much effort. This pull down method is repeated 2 or 3 times until the juice is completely extracted and the fruit is empty. When you are satisfied with the amount of juice you have, simply lift up the handle or lever and take your juice tray out to taste or to pour into a storage bag for freezing. The leftover fruit can then be thrown out. Manual citrus juice pressers also have rubber stops underneath them, meaning they will remain on the surface you work from without moving. This is an important feature that you don't want a machine that isn't strong and that falls under too much pressure from juice. Manual citrus juicers can handle larger even when used nonstop. This is because there is no engine which means no burnout; The amount of energy you put in is entirely up to you! Using a manual citrus juicer on a regular basis will certainly give you stronger muscles as the lever movement can quickly work up a sweat. We will look at Olympus and Jupiter Manual Citrus Press Juicer as an example. Olympus and Jupiter Manual Citrus Press Juicer The manual citrus press from Olympus and Jupiter is designed with a strong stainless steel and cast iron construction which means that it resists corrosion from citrus acids. It is said to be one of the best juice pressers on the market and one that is perfect for juice-lovers out there, as well as restaurants and juice shops in the food industry. The Olympus and Jupiter presser can last a lifetime thanks to its design that allows many to press without too much effort. You won't have to worry about it dying anytime soon it's fully manual and no electricity is needed. Another of the best aspects is the appearance of the product. Unlike many other juice pressers, this one has a modern aspect and doesn't seem too clunky. It certainly looks like it would belong in a modern kitchen. Other than its heavy construction, its durability can also be attributed to the design. All iron sections are painted with an extremely protective coating, which means that no rust will occur unless the fur is peeled or damaged. The section dealing with fruit crunchis is also designed with high quality materials, which means that there are no weak points in this product. This appliance is really easy to use and also to clean making it ideal for families who enjoy making large batches of fresh citrus juices on a regular basis. With an ergonomic handle made of strong rubber, it is also quite easy to grip, ensuring the perfect extraction of every last drop of juice from the fruit. The following video shows exactly how easily this manual citrus press juicer can be used. To Manual citrus juicers are great for making fresh juices every day. If you really enjoy drinking healthy drinks and saving money, then buying one of these handy appliances is sure to be beneficial in the long run. The best part is that you are able to also freeze your juice to make it last longer. When you buy a fresh drink in a store, you need to consume it immediately, and do not have anything for later. That's why having one of these manual pressers is ideal as you can always do batches and drink them whenever you wish.
