Level 2 - Standard luggage rain covers will add more protection from showers and splashes. They are sewn into highly coated rip-stop nylon and drapery firmly above the top and sides of the bags. Add protection by sealing the seams of your rain covers. Level 3 - Expedition Classic tank bags are sewn into waterproof vinyl and offer even more protection. The material of the bag is waterproof and the smart construction does a great job of inhibiting water, mud and dust. However, sewn seams can allow moisture inside in some conditions. Sealing the seams will help.  Safe packaging procedures To keep your belongings dry using any of these, try lining your luggage with garbage bag coatings or other sturdy plastic bags  Level 4 - Wolfman Waterproof Luggage 100% Our shipping series and Rolie bag series are 100% waterproof when in conditions and used correctly. These bags will shake off the heavier thunderstorms and deep crossings of the stream. They will also keep out mud, dust and odors. Wolfman is confident that our waterproof luggage can and will keep your equipment dry. For best results, follow these guidelines. To get the best results, turn the excess air, smooth any wrinkles, roll/fold the top of the bag 3-4 semi-rolls, then buckle. Do not let clothing or other objects move away in the roll area Rolling. They can absorb the water inside your bag. Make sure that the mounting straps pass through the various guides, buckles, rings or mounting patch AND AROUND THE BAG to support the weight. Never leave a bag hanging from a strap, buckle or mounting patch. WRAP THE STRAP around the bags and tighten them tightly to the bike. This can prevent tearing and other damage to the bag that could cause a leak. Worse, swinging bags can easily cause a loss of control of the bike which is generally less enjoyable than a loss. Do not pack sharp or abrasive objects or carefully buffer them to avoid damage to the waterproof material of the bag. If you pack wet items, they will still be wet when you take them and the water may have been distributed to other items. That's bad if it's your sleeping bag. This is good if your luggage is full of ice and frosty drinks. Pay enough attention to cacti, nails, sharp sticks and rocks, knives, predatory rodents and fast bullets. These and similar items can compromise the seal of your bags. If it is mortally important to keep an object dry (passports, cameras or memory cards, electronics, magnesium powder) it is probably a good idea to use additional levels of protection. Think Pelican cases, ziplocked bags, or even a small Rolie bag in larger luggage. Even when you use the best Wolfman waterproof luggage properly and any other secondary way to keep the water out, there's still a chance your things will get wet. This is just part of the Adventure of Life. Wolfman is not responsible for these extraordinary events. If you have any other questions, check out our educational video guides or contact us. If Wolfman Luggage has kept your equipment clean and dry under extreme circumstances, we would like to hear about it. Send us the story and photos and we will probably share your story on Facebook. We hope you use our luggage because you ride a bike and need to bring your own things. Great! Please realize that over time the bike may show wear and tear in the places where the luggage contacts the finish of the bike. Plastic surfaces, being softer, may be more susceptible to machling. Our luggage is designed to mount safely and minimize vibration and chafing. Soft and smooth material is used for bike/bag interface areas to minimize scratches at the bike finish. However, dirt and dirt caught between a bag and a finished surface can act as abrasive damage and accelerate the visible. Hierarchy of things we can all do help save the finish of a bike: level of effort technique those who do level 0 Install luggage. Around. Ignore. Some Level 1 cyclists Clean the bike before installing luggage and keep it clean Most Level 2 cyclists Wash & wax-coated surfaces to help provide a barrier to scratches Many Level 3 cyclists Use a transparent protective coating with plastic adhesive support. 3M paint protection film Some Level 4 cyclists wrap the entire bike in a plastic casing and and garage Non raccomandato In definitiva, l'uso di qualsiasi cosa comporterà usura. Guidare una moto si tradurrà in un accumulo di segni di sfregamento, graffi, ding e graffi che indicano tempo ben speso. L'FZR in particolare aveva un serbatoio d'acciaio a punta piatta che era il sedile catbird per la mia vecchia borsa magnetica. Se hai confezionato t-shirt morbide e undies in cima, era purrect appoggiarsi e sbilagiare i polsi. Magnetic è stato buono per me, dato che ero sempre in sella a biciclette diverse. Se hai una bici, una old-fashioned strap-on, invented before the magnet, is a little safer sure Motorcycle. Now that we've grown old and soft, and the bikes have become more specialized (I'm pretty sure saddle bags weren't an option on the ZX-11 as they are for the new Ninja 1000), the old tank bag hasn't seen much action lately. But I couldn't help but notice that the new Z900 tank looked perfect for a tank bag, and if you're a robust old-fashioned person who wants to go to places quickly and less burdened, a good tank bag is still an indispensable accessory. Here are seven great to start your shopping. PS: If you're worried about your paint, a layer of transparent protective coating with adhesive backrest like 3M Paint Protection Film isn't a bad idea. Summary Chase Harper makes a shed-sack of tank bags; this 800 is a medium-sized and ergonomically expandable tank bag with a circumferential hinge that allows it to expand from 10.4 to 17 liters. It is made of urethane-coated ballistic nylon for tearing and water resistance, sealed with large YKK black metal hinges. A non-slip rubberized polyester material covers the bottom and magnetic wings to avoid scratches, which is full of neodymium magnets for safe mounting (a belt-mounted version is also available). It converts into a backpack, there are pockets on the net, a detachable map envelope sensitive to touch for the use of maps, mobile phones or tablets, yada yada yada... Very nice. Bottom Line/Big bag for the dollar If you're on a really bare bike and moving to a good clip, something a little safer than magnets is in order. SHAD people have designed an innovative Pin System that fixes bag to bike by replacing 3 or 4 of the original screws of the gas cap with pins, for a positive mechanical connection that can be installed in a few minutes. There are applications for over 180 motorcycles and counting. The E16-P is Shad's largest bag, expandable from 11 to 15 liters and equipped with all the features you'd expect for the price, including a touch-screen-optimized smartphone compartment and pass-through port for your charging cable. Bottom line / Increased safety for bicycles without windshield GIVI has its own Tanklock system, similar to others, which provides a raised ring offer that also bolts into the holes of the tank filler and eliminates the need for magnets or straps. Natch, GIVI produces a plethora of luggage and looks like nine different Tanklock bags on its site. The ST602B is a smaller 4-liter work, thermoformed in EVA 1000D laminated polyester for an aerodynamic design. Waterproof hinges, a waterproof bag, a shoulder strap and an internal pocket for carrying the phone are included, although the current flange of bf series is sold separately. Bottom Line/ Maintains its shape also in milk Another in the gas assembly category, would be the LINE of SW Motech bags, using SW's proprietary mounting system. This Daypack EVO, expandable from 5 to 9 liters, is located on the smallest side offers, of which there are a myriad, including bike-specific bags for tons of motorcycles and the EVO 2.0 Engage electric bag in our lead image. Everyone can be attached to the EVO tank ring with one hand and just as easily removed for refueling. Ballistic nylon construction is durable and handle and shoulder strap are included, along with connectors for GPS support, map stand, and a drybag phone or tablet. It can also accommodate a cable lock for anti-theft protection. Produced in Deutschland. Bottom Line/Teutonic Engineering I've never owned a Wolfman tank bag, but I still use the Wolfman tail pack I have during the Clinton administration, and it's still in great shape. The Blackhawk WP is Wolfman's largest tank bag, with 10 liters (610 cubic inches), and sticks to your bike with a classic four-point snap harness. The yellow bungee on top is for storing gloves while gassing, or a layer of jacket when you're not. There is a clear removable pocket, along with a removable waist belt bag. The #8 YKK waterproof main hinge seals the ballistic nylon shell quite cozyly, and a rain cover is included (like all of these, I think). Bottom line / Built to last This is available magnetic or strap-on, with a non-slip and scratch-proof mounting base in a perfect shape to lean on. Built from ballistic polyester and Jacquard jacquard in 1800-denanarii twill, with multiple mounting options including for you with backpack straps, this 12-liter expandable bag is one of many Cortechs designed in the United States. It comes with a removable map case that's great for things besides maps, along with a built-in sip tube and headphone ports. It's not even Nelson-Rigg's first rodeo; have been making bags for 30 years. Trails End's V-shaped non-slip base is designed to fit off-road motorcycles, dual-sports and adventure, with a main compartment of 12L x 7W x 9H with increased expandability to 16.5 liters if needed. The UltraMax polyester construction gives the bag maximum UV protection and a new quick release system allows quick mounting and replenishment. Reverse coil hinges are said to keep dust and dirt out. You have your own comfortable side pockets for smaller items for easy access and a clear pocket for touch-screen maps. What could go wrong? If anything, NR provides a lifetime warranty.
