Hatfield House is a 223-room Jacobean estate built by the first Earl of Salisbury, Robert Cecil, in 1611. Today, it is the private residence of Robert Gascoyne-Cecil, seventh Marquis of Salisbury, a Conservative British politician and former member of Parliament, and his wife, Hannah Ann Stirling. They live in a wing, and all private areas are off limits to filming, says Hatfield Park’s visitor operations manager Helen Landau, but staff and any film crews still have to plan around just shy of the 100,000 tourists who visit the property each year. In addition to the main house, Hatfield Park includes 42 acres of picturesque gardens, Anglican Church of St. Ethlgeda, nearly 200 residences available for rent, and a brick structure known as the Old Palace.Hatfield is home to two very famous portraits of Queen Elizabeth I, including the Ermine Portrait of 1585 (bottom center). Photo: Tony French/Alamy Stock PhotoBuilt in 1485, this medieval palace belonged to Henry VIII in the 1500s. Two of his children, Elizabeth and Edward, spent their childhood there, and Elizabeth famously learned that she was going to become queen while sitting under an oak tree on the property at a point now referred to as Elizabeth Oak.So while history buffs can visit to see the place where her legendary reign began, film lovers will also recognize some distinct architectural details in Hatfield. Remember the poster for the 1992 film Orlando, where Tilda Swinton stands in a male Elizabethan garment on a black and white plaid floor? This is the floor of the marble hall of Hatfield House, a large room once used for globes and banquets with intricate wooden sculptures covering most of the walls and ceilings. In Rebecca, Lily James’s character admires the same space that arrives at the home of her new husband, played by Armie Hammer. In the 2019 video for Jonas brothers song Sucker, band members Nick, Joe and Kevin Jonas serenaded their ladies —Priyanka Chopra, Sophie Turner and Danielle Jonas, respectively—in the same room. (Later, put on what looks like a library and, for some reason, splash around in bathtubs placed in one of the gardens.) The other famous portrait of Queen Elizabeth I on site is the Rainbow Portrait, which hangs in the Marble Hall. Photo: Jane Tansi/Alamy Stock PhotoYou may recall that the favorite is full of shots of Emma Stone, Olivia Colman, and Rachel Weisz in rooms completely coated in wallpapers and Portraits. Some of them were added by production designer Fiona Crombie, but many were original to Hatfield, and the estate’s vast collection of paintings is sometimes a draw. Hatfield only has layers and layers of character and amazing portraiture, says Greenwood. And in Rebecca’s case, that reinforced the idea that Lily James’s character was being examined. He watched wherever he went. And because the house is privately owned-as opposed to being part of Britain’s National Trust-crews are allowed to do some redeployment. We have expert selectors and conservators working with us to transport objects into the house, explains Landau. It’s a very flexible house that lends itself to getting dressed, says Greenwood. They’re susceptible. I’ve tried a handful of movie-list apps, and they generally range from the comically bad to the simple competent. This app from Flixster, simply titled Movies, puts all other apps to shame. Attractively designed, Movies has a smart interface that allows the user to find out what moves they’re playing, and includes many other neat features, too. Browseable categories include box office, theaters, upcoming, DVD, and my movies. Simple box office entries allow you to browse with the movie title. You see the score of each movie on the popular Rotten Tomatoes review site, the main actors, the rating, the length of the film, and how much money the film has generated so far. If you click on any specific title, you can get even more information such as showtimes, a video link to the trailer, photos, a summary, an expanded list of cast, critic and user reviews (you can add your own review, as well as links to other movie websites. On the Theatre tab you can search for theaters in your area either by name or remotely by your zip code within a 30-mile range. It can load theaters into Google Maps, too. The upcoming tab allows you to watch movies that come out soon. Both this tab and this one for new DVD releases are as easy to browse as the Box Office entries tab is, and include similar information. The My Movies folder lets you personalize the app with lists of your favorite movies, reviews, pictures, and the like. It can also connect and collaborate with sites like Facebook, Flixster, and Netflix.The app isn’t flawed. Occasionally the loading time for monitors is a touch on the slow side. The app is also known to have problems with some phones, such as HTC Hero. Still, overall this is a huge app that does a lot of things right.
