He've read the schedule wrong with his one eye! - Mike, in the teaser trailer for Michael Wazowski also known as Mike, is the main character of Monsters, Inc. and the main character of its prequel Monsters University. He is a lime green spherical monster with one big green eye, two small horns on his head, and thin arms and legs attached to both sides of his body. Monsters, Inc. In the first film, Mike is Sulley's best friend and work partner at Monsters, Inc. He supports Sulley as their number one scarer, and both are enemies of Randall Boggs. He is also Celia Mae's friend and seems to have watched with Roz, who is waiting for his papers. While harryhausen's on Celia's birthday, Sulley appeared out of nowhere to tell Mike that he was creating a human girl into a monster world. Putting him in a monsters, Inc. sports bag, Sulley tried to show him, but the human girl got out of the bag and wreaked havoc throughout the restaurant. The two secretly took him out before the CDA found him and disinfected the entire restaurant. When Mr. Waternoose throws Sulley and Mike into a frozen wasteland, a gap forms between them after Mike gets mad at him for listening to Waternoose instead of him. When they learn that Waternoose and Randall are in for a scam to snoound baby screams, Sulley tricks Mr. Waternoose into confessing to his plan and he is Randall's employer, while Mike records confessions and smugly replays it to watch CDA agents. Immediately, the CDA turned on Mr. Waternoose and arrested him for his crimes. When Boo is back in his room, Mike restores her door that cda destroyed so Sulley was happy again. Sometime after the movie, Mike's low-budget company plays Put That Thing Back Where It Came From or So Help Me that he has starred, written, directed, and produced coming in front of the audience. Mike's Mike's Auto At a glance, Mike is now the hero of his story. He has brought a new six-wheel drive car, and wants to show it to Sulley. When they both get into the car, Sulley accidentally ruins a brand new car and injures Mike. Eventually, Mike kicks Sulley out, speeds off and wrecks the car completely. Monsters University Mike as he appears at Monsters University Mike again appeared in the prequel as a hero. He looks smaller and wears royalty. [1] Mike Wazowski is first seen as an elementary school student attending Ms. Graves classes while attending Monsters, Inc. as part of a field trip. During the field trip, Mike tries to get a look at the scare floor, while other students push him aside, telling him he doesn't belong there. Mike walks past the security line and follows a scarer named frightening Frank McCay into the Human World. Mike watches Frank scare the baby, then follows him back through the door. Frank is not only surprised, but impressed with Mike for sneaking unnoticed, giving him his Monsters University cap. This incident suggests Mike become a scarer and visit MU. The first day of college, now 17-year-old Mike's roommate has revealed that Randall Boggs (she and Sulley allegedly archenemy) made a friendly against Mike. When he sees Randall's invisibility at work, Mike encourages him to use more, telling him to lose glasses that won't turn invisible. Attending Scaring 101 at Professor Knight's class, Mike sees gets his first look at Sulley (Mike's likely friend), who, despite his natural talents, is lazy and arrogant. Dean Hardscrabble, the school principal and famous scarer then flies into Prof. Knight's classroom and tells all students that they all had to complete the final exam at the end of the semester, which will determine whether they remain in the program. Mike immediately commits to learning hard. Sulley then comes out the window having stolen Archie Scare Pig (rival school's Fear Tech mascot). Archie steals Mike's hat and goes off. Mike catches him, but Sulley gets credit for it, striking Roar Omega Roar president Johnny Worthington III and sparking a rivalry between Mike and Sulley. Finally, the two monsters get into an argument, and they accidentally knock over Hardscrabble's scare can. Although she is calm about it, she uses the incident to fail Mike, telling him he's not scary. Sulley has also washed out the program because of his recklessness. Mike decides to participate in university scare games, teaming up with a fraternity consisting of rejected monsters called Oozma Kappa composing Don Carlton, Terri and Terry, Art, and Squishy. Sensing the possibility, Mike baits Hardscrabble into accepting money; if OK wins, she lets the fraternity into the scare program; but if they lose, Mike has to leave the MU. Sulley joins the team that Mike must accept as they are six and Randall has joined the ROR in giving up Mike. Well just makes it through the Toxicity Challenge because Jaws Theta Chi was disqualified. Mike then takes responsibility for the team and instructs them to do as he does. For the next challenge, they have to get through the library without getting the librarian's attention, regain their flag, and run away. Sulley's impatience almost cost them, but Squishy somehow got the flag in the sassing, deepening to the next round. That same night, they are invited to the ROR house for a party, but get badly humiliated. Well be ready to call it quits, so Mike takes them to Monsters Inc., showing them that they can still become scarers if they use their differences to their advantage. It also sparks changes for both Sulley and Mike, and they're starting to respect each other. OK trains even harder under Mike's new leadership skills, making it through the next two rounds using his actual talent. Ok is pitted against the ROR for the final round, in which both teams try to scare each other by using simulators to set it to the highest level. On Sulley's suggestion, Mike goes last, pitting him against Johnny. In the simulator, Mike remembers all the contempt and ridicule against him in his life, unleashing his frustration at one mighty scare, and with this OK wins scare games to everyone's surprise. Mike later discovers that the simulator was rigged so that Mike could get the highest score. Sulley admits that it was he revealing his lack of confidence in his friend. Mike decides to go into a human world where he tries to scare a little girl, but he ends up in summer camp that teams up with her bunkmates. The other kids don't find him scary, forcing him to run. Minutes later, Sulley arrives to rescue Mike and must escape the forest rangers who mistake him for the bear. He finds Mike by the lake, worrying about his failure. Both claim that they both discharged their frustrations. They end up patch things up with each other and make their way back to the door, but Hardscrabble deactivates it. With rangers nearby, Mike believes they can generate enough energy to activate the door of the human world. Using Mike's knowledge of scare tactics, Sulley scares adults who not only activate doors, but overload every scream in the drum room as well as the door itself. Mike and Sulley do it back, but are expelled for their actions. The two say their goodbyes to the OK brothers, who tell them that Hardscrabble was impressed with their performance in the game and allowed them to scare the program. For the first time, Mike has no plans, however he states that he's good just to be right. Mike gets on the bus to leave the MU, but Sulley stops him, telling him not to settle for it well, indicating that everything that led to the OK joining the scare program was due to Mike's efforts. Hardscrabble arrives with school showing them they gave the front page. She tells them that they surprised her, something she considered impossible. Although she can't do anything about their expulsion (despite the fact she is the one who banished them), she wishes them both luck and tells Mike to keep amazing people. Sulley points out an ad paper from Monsters Inc., giving them the opportunity to work for a scare company. They start the mailroom, then get promoted to the stewards, kitchen assistants, and then can wranglers. Finally, Sulley enters the company in open tryouts, becoming a scarer with Mike as his assistant. He and Sulley became rookie of the year. Party Central short film party Central Mike appears at Oozma Kaapa Party when Sully and Mike decide to visit them. Mike then used a busy door to get monsters out of the Roar Omega Roar party to show up at a party for Oozma Kaapa. When the party is over, Mike was last seen leaving the house. Personality Mike and Sulley argue and/or fight sometimes; However, it's usually Sulley who annoys Mike first. He is funny, cute, brave, but can sometimes fail to see the obvious situation. He has a very strategic mind, and he is by nature a thinker, starting very quickly with conclusions. He is also gracious and has very smooth conversations with his girlfriend, Celia. In addition, he is sarcastic and popular. Mike is also qualified by words; he has been shown several times to come up with a witty comeback to Randall and anyone who gets on his nerves but can falter when asked a question under pressure. Mike has also shown a positive outlook in situations that seems disappointing, despite being disappointed, but quite happy it happened. It is particularly noble if his image is contained in some kind of media, such as television, magazine covers and school ici. An example of this is when he saw that his picture on the magazine cover was blocked by a barcode, his reaction at first seemed sad, but he turned out to be happy he appeared on the cover regardless. Unlike Sulley, who needed some adjustments to his personality, Mike didn't change much from his MU days, aside from boosting his ego. Being insecure and accepting just being OK thanks to Sulley, Mike realized that he also has his own good qualities. Trivia Mike's full name, confirmed by Celia, Ms. Graves, and the bespectacled elementary school student is Michael. Mike was used in the Slingshot Challenge game for new games on September 10, 2019. Mike was #23 of Empire Magazine's 50 Best Animated Movie Characters. In an early animated test, Mike was believed to have no weapons and would have picked things up with his feet. He would also wear a cowboy/Texan hat. [1] At Monster University, mike had braces as a child. As a teenager, he was a retainer. As revealed in the early cut-scene, Mike originally assistant, not fungus. Mike has been renamed robert bob razowski french dub. Mike's brief cameo, swimming past scuba gear while searching for Nemo's credits, returning favor. so to speak, after being Nemo's cameo at the end of Monsters, Inc. The gear he was wearing was what he wore to protect himself from Boo monsters, Inc. Mike appears at the end of the credits of Cars as a small car. This car version of him also appears briefly in Tokyo Mater with Sulley when Mater drives through the building. He also starred in Tomorrowland's attraction, Monsters, Inc. Laugh Floor, with Roz. Mike's drum is seen on WALL-E. In the original pitch monsters, Inc. Mike did not appear in the movie. [quote required] Mike also wears a contact lens that is said to be the size of a pizza, given that he has very poor vision given he cyclops. Mike has his own spell card for disney world attraction, wizards of magic kingdom called Mike's Grand Entrance. Whenever Mike Wazowski is seen on the national media or most merchandising, such as Monsters, Inc. in a commercial or magazine cover, his face is often covered with text on these media (such as Monsters, Inc. M eyeball logo marketing and barcode on magazine cover). Also, the DVD (and possibly Blu-Ray Disc) for the movie seems to make this even more, taking a DVD of artwork and a hole in the middle of the DVD used to secure it in place when the inside dvd player is both positioned so that the hole is actually placed over Mike's face. A similar case occurred during Monsters University, where Mike's ID card has his head out of view. His face gag is blocked happening throughout the two films, and the acting joke is that he has completely forgotten his face is being obscured. This joke is subverted by the first issue of Monsters, Inc.: Laugh Factory, as the end of the commercial fungus is produced, Mike's face is fully viewed, while Sulley's is hidden behind the company's logo. In Monsters University, Mike is 18, which means that monsters, Inc., he's about 28. Despite this, Billy Crystal was about 52 during the production of Monsters Inc.& around 64 during the production at Monsters University. As pointed out by Dean Hardscrabble, Mike Wazowski can never become a scarer, so in the original movie he ends up becoming a comedian instead. The character's surname Wazowski recalls the name Lebowski from the movie Big Lebowski, which is the film where two actors from Monsters, Inc. Steve Buscemi and John Goodman, had appeared. Mike and Frank McCay both share the same birthdays under their Scare Cards. Despite being clearly meeting first-time Monsters University, Mike notes at one point in Monsters, Inc., that Sulley was jealous of his looks since fourth grade. In addition in the trailer for the movie, Sulley mentions that they were in a Geography class together in 5th grade. Interestingly, the film from the prequel wanted to make the fourth grade line a reality, but felt it was necessary for Mike and Sulley's rivalry to work if they just met. So one can imply that Mike was just making a joke in the fourth grade line. This and what happens in pixar trailers is not always a canon in real film. In Monsters, Inc., 90% of all monsters are mike's tongue. [2] The scream Mike makes when Rose closes his office door on his hands is the same scream he makes when Baby Smitty bites his hand. He and Sully are two employees in the scaring department of the company with no degrees. In the early trailer for the movie, Sulley mentions that Mike had a childhood crush named Suzy Boyle. This time he later became one of the most popular memes on the Internet, but his face was switched to Sulley's. Gallery Less Talk.
