In this section we will examine famous inventors and their wonderful ideas. Advertising Ad Ad Keep up with the latest daily buzz with the BuzzFeed Daily newsletter! When acclaimed pop artist Andy Warhol wrote in a 1968 program for an exhibition of his work that in the future, everyone will be world famous for 15 minutes, he failed to predict that a select few would be allowed to extend their 15 minutes of undeserved fame to years of media coverage. The perpetual news cycle that characterizes electronic media always needs new material, which has helped feed America's unhealthy obsession with celebrities, even when these celebrities are mostly known to be featured on tabloid covers rather than doing some of the note. These seven celebrities are only known to be famous - if you can even call their modest level of celebrity famous. 1. Kim Kardashian Kim Kardashian Leaves the Place of Storerroom for DASH | Timothy A. Clary/AFP/Getty Images More than any other form of media store tabloids themselves, reality shows are particularly guilty of driving unspectacular, often annoying privileged people to international fame. Kim Kardashian, the big star of E! s popular series Keeping Up with the Kardashians, has used its sensual appearance and general vapidness to remain at the forefront of tabloid news for at least half a decade now. Her first big break came from a leaked sex tape, but recently she has remained relevant as the wife of rape's most tantrum-prone star Kanye West. Funny enough, she first got attention as a friend and stylist of another talentless celebrity... 2. Paris Hilton Paris Hilton is a daughter of privilege, the great-grandson of the founder of Hilton hotels, who had the media infamously handed over to her on a silver platter shortly after signing with Donald Trump's modeling agency as a teenager. The buzzed-about socialite gained international fame for starring in both a sex tape and reality series The Simple Life with fellow privileged celebutante Nicole Richie, a show that found humour in spoiled the couple's inability to perform low-paying jobs. She wrote a best-selling book, starred in a few more increasingly ridiculous reality shows (including Paris Hilton's Dubai BFF), and failed to start an acting career before a very public fall from grace that gave David Letterman one of his finest moments as host late at night. She still rakes in cash as a celebrity DJ and the face of her own fashion line today. 3. Tila Tequila Thien Thanh Thi Nguyen - better known by the stage name Tila Tequila - manipulated social media to make himself a celebrity for no apparent reason, except to be attractive. She became the most popular person on Myspace and followed the logical path of talentless celebrities, scoring a reality series on MTV titled A Shot at Love with Tila Tequila in which men and women competed for her affection. She had success as a model, but was unable to find success as a recording artist. Since her 15 minutes (more like 10 years) of fame flickered out, she has been featured in several sex tapes, gone through several legal battles, confessed to being bipolar and having multiple personalities, endorsed a large number of conspiracy theories, made anti-Semitic/pro-Nazi claims online, and been pronounced unrehabilitatable by Dr. Drew of Celebrity Rehab. 4. Kevin Federline Guys can be famous for nothing too. Kevin Federline married into fame after wedding pop singer Britney Spears, with whom he previously worked as a backup dancer, in 2004 after just three months of dating. Their toxic relationship and Federline's manipulation of Spears were preserved in amber in the home video reality series Britney & Kevin: Chaotic. Around the time of his divorce in 2007, Federline launched a career as a rapper and cornrow enthusiast, releasing the much-despised Playing with Fire. He has just barely managed to stay in the spotlight since (what else?) appears on reality shows, WWE campaigns, and play bit parts in film and TV. 5. Bristol Palin Alaska Governor Sarah Palin enjoyed a rapid ascent to political notoriety as the ill-informed pick for John McCain's running mate in the 2008 presidential election. Stranger still, her eldest daughter became a celebrity in her own right, not in political circles, but instead in tabloids for a teen pregnancy during her mother's failed bid for vice president. She appeared on dozens of talk shows as a kind of ambassador for teen pregnancy and prevention. Couple for the course, Palin later wrote a memoir and starred in her own reality series, the one-season docudrama Bristol Palin: Life's a Tripp, which only seemed to confirm suspicions that Bristol Palin isn't interesting enough to deserve her level of fame. 6. Jenny McCarthy Jenny McCarthy's career in adult entertainment started well enough, but since becoming Playboy's Playmate of the Year in 1993, McCarthy somehow became a consistent presence on both reality and scripted TELEVISION, and then an outspoken advocate for autism rights and against vaccination. None of her film or TV work has been popular or even – the film she wrote and starred in, Dirty Love, even received the Golden Rasperry Award for Worst Picture – but it hasn't stopped her from becoming a talk show regularly and entirely by the uncomfortably illogical anti-vax movement.
