

I'm not robot

Continue

George washington academy jobs

Applications for 2020-2021 are now available to students in kindergarten through seventh grade. These applications are valid for students aged 5 before September 1, 2020. The 2021-2022 draw will take place on February 1, 2021. All applications received after January 31 will be added to the waitlist and applicants will be contacted when open spots become available. GWA Admissions Academic Studies is the only school in Morocco that offers ib diplomas, AP courses and American diplomas recognized by the Moroccan government. GWA educates everyone by getting their hearts in shape and building character: empowering students to serve Morocco and the global community with wisdom and compassion. Junior school diploma high school students perform extracurricular activities to countless clubs and organizations, including drama/musicals, First Lego League Robotics®, the World Robotics Olympics, the Model United Nations, the National Honor Association, speeches & debates, and more. GWA student-athletes compete for three seasons each year at the Malloch American School Athletic Conference (MASAC) for badminton, men's/women's basketball, men's/women's football, boys/girls athletics, boys/girls volleyball and swimming. If you like children and like working with them, it is a good place to work. It is a very nice facility. Was this review helpful? The best part was working with the students. It's rewarding to see kids doing well in the classroom. The curriculum helped teachers, did this review help? Teach classes, fulfill extra duties, and make plans. There were a lot of cliques among the staff and I didn't like it. Younger/newer staff were preferred to more skilled and experienced staff. Local employers (Moroccans) received significantly lower salaries, worked harder and were treated as second-class citizens. Unethical conduct overshadowed by the administration. I loved my students and my work, but was unfair/discriminatory treatment helpful, not in the environment? Did this review help that you could survive by paying bills in the US when the currency went the other way? I work very hard. I like to serve and give everything I need to help my students. I think it's a responsibility, passed down from ancestral teachers and mentors. The hardest part of my job is when I feel that my students couldn't get away with me, the fun moments are the daily salutes and Having a hand with my students, precious time is when you come to give a previous student a visit and hang cherished to you and tell you thank you! My growing experience at GWA has helped me with this review? Great opportunity for language and professional development. Culturally diverse, tri-language environments (English, French and Arabic). Was this review helpful? As a first-time overseas teacher, I couldn't land in a more supportive environment, both personally and professionally. I have made lifelong friends of both staff, teachers and students. I learned a lot about the country, its culture, its people and places. It was a truly wonderful and life-changing experience. Support * Cultural Exposure * Growth and Development Was this review helpful? Great culture and great school! Students and colleagues are excellent, leadership is supportive and you work hard to get what you need. Was this review helpful? After moving to St. George, Utah, and commuting to Meschite, Nevada, I wanted to teach at a charter school that was close to home and opened for the first time. It was great to get involved from the start and learn charter school ins and outs. In a way, it was hard to be in a big studio school. I love parent involvement, but it was hard with the management team and who was in charge. Who came first? principal, teacher, or guardian. Was this review helpful? I traveled all over Europe and North Africa. The website Facebook Twitter You Tube GWA is a PK-12 grade school with a multilingual program fully accredited by the Thing-State Association. The Moroccan metropolitan area of Casablanca offers innovative and affordable international Americans, preschool through high school education. Schools aim to be prepared and build character. GWA is the third largest private school in Africa. At GWA, you can use your talents and experience to influence others. From nursery to year 12, more than 880 young people attend GWA every day. GWA's student body is diverse: 60% moroccan, 20% American, and the rest of the students are made up of students from 36 countries around the world, including France, Saudi Arabia, South Korea, the Netherlands, Jordan, India and Syria. Many of our students are ready to take leadership positions in Morocco (and around the world) once they have completed their education. Graduates are accepted to more than 220 universities and universities in the United States, Canada, Morocco, Europe and Asia. GWA's 200 Plus staff is also international - 59% Moroccan, 33% American, The rest are from several other countries, including France, Canada, England and South Africa. GWA hosts six variation sports, fine arts fairs and several cultural events each spring. Our dedicated 5 hectare campus is located on a hill overlooking the sea. The campus features more than 60 classrooms, two science labs, a state-of-the-art computer lab, elementary school playground facilities, legally sized trucks and a full-size lawn soccer field. Construction of the Library Media Technology Center is underway. The GWA campus is located on the south side of Casablanca, a city of 5 million people, 5 km from Morocco Mall. Casablanca is Morocco's largest international city, offering countless opportunities from dining and entertainment to surfing, sports clubs, service and volunteer opportunities. Living in Morocco has its own advantages, close to the cultural richness of ancient cities such as the sea, the High Atlas Mountains, the cedar forests of Azrou, Fez, Marrakech and Meknes. The minimum qualifications for faculty members are: Bachelor of Education or Related Field Education Certificate or license 1-2 years classroom experience 2 years of class experience, 2 years commitment to GWA candidates who are native English speakers and have experience in the American curriculum, teacher benefits George Washington Academy is a unique educational community with clear advantages. Our staff and teachers have the opportunity to influence this next generation of Moroccan and international leaders. GWA's location is unique, and will it be possible to work in a place where the East meets the West and the old world meets a new world where cultures, religions and customs coexist? Annual travel refunds offer international insurance coverage plus more! The campus features more than 60 classrooms, two science labs, a state-of-the-art computer lab, elementary school playground facilities, legally sized trucks and a full-size lawn soccer field. Construction of the Library Media Technology Center is underway. The GWA campus is located on the south side of Casablanca, a city of 5 million people, 5 km from Morocco Mall. Principal Dr. Audrey C. Menard (Head of School Curriculum PK-8) will take mandatory coursework in English, French and Arabic. High schools require four credits of English and four credits in French or Arabic to prepare students through language learning and other rigorousFor admission to secondary education in the United States and other countries (including honors and advanced placements). Foreigners migrating to Morocco are greeted by scenic beauty, bustling market locations and colorful lands that characterize delicious food. Most expatriates travel to the capital Rabat, Casablanca, or the red city of Marrakech. Morocco's expatriate population is still relatively small, but it is steadily increasing. Foreigners may have reservations about moving to Islamic State, but you're seeing that Morocco is much more liberal than most expatriate destinations in the Middle East. Morocco is at a crossroads in Europe, Africa and the Middle East, and elements of these different cultures are visible in everyday life. Moroccans tend to open their minds and are interested in learning about new people and other way of life. In addition, privacy in the home is important, so there is little concern about what foreigners do behind closed doors. Arabic is the official language of Morocco, but foreigners discover that French is more commonly used in business, and brushing up on their language skills will help them communicate with locals and read road signs. The constant use of hustlers to provide directions or sell a variety of goods can be a problem in Morocco, especially for foreigners and women in the West. However, this is rather annoying than a real danger, and expatriates generally feel that Morocco is a safe place. The cost of living in Morocco is relatively low, especially compared to Western Europe and North America. Property prices are incredibly reasonable, so most foreigners choose to buy a house over rent. According .com xpatulator, Casablanca is the most economically important of all Moroccan cities. Since domestic assistance in Morocco is readily available and affordable, foreigners will find that they have more time for leisure activities. When it comes to outdoor pursuits, for outdoor purposes, hiking and cycling in the Atlas Mountains and swimming in the Mediterranean are just some of the exciting activities Morocco has to offer. Food is also the center of Moroccan culture and the country is said to be a food lover's dream. Ultimately, foreigners migrating to Morocco should do so with a sense of adventure. For those who can overcome language barriers and elements of culture shock, life in Morocco is a rewarding and enriching experience. George Washington Academy your comments will appear here if you want to add a comment about this school please email you to admin@leopardiish.com. All comments will be moderated and no defamatory or abusive comments will be posted. Leopard fish reserves the right not to post comment comments