Use the table of contents below to go directly to your most pressing question: What's so interesting about the Omega 8006 juicer? The Omega 8006, also known as the J8006 Nutrition Center is a low-speed juicer that processes at a rate of 80 rpm. High-speed juicers can run as fast as 1000 rpm which isn't always a good thing. You see, if you run at high speeds, healthy enzymes and nutrients can be destroyed in the process. Oxidation can also take place, meaning the juice will go wrong quickly. With a chewing style juicer like Omega 8006, you get the maximum amount of juice from your leafy greens, vegetables, fruits and wheat grass. Apart from being a juicer, this appliance can also be used to make nut butter, baby food, grind coffee and even chopped herbs. With Omega 8006, you get the following advantages: It's very quiet. Some say it's as quiet as a ninja. If you prefer to prepare juice in the morning, using Omega 8006 will not be a problem. It does not produce foam in the juice. Juice foam is icky and we always try to avoid it. Fortunately, with an Omega juicer, you don't have to deal with foam at all. It is very economical and efficient. This juicer uses a two-stage processing system that means you'll get more juice of the same size or volume of products compared to a centrifugal juicer. This machine doesn't just crush the ingredients – it also squeezes them for higher juice performance. It's versatile. As mentioned above, it's not just a juicer. You can also make nut butter, baby food, ground coffee and spices, and chopped herbs and garlic. You will also appreciate the fact that it comes with a 15-year warranty. While some juicers only have 1 year warranties, you will never have to worry if yours breaks even after several years of use. This extended warranty is also proof that the product is very durable and resistant. Watch the quick video below to see Omega 8006 in action! How to use Omega J8006 Juicer? This cold press juicer is very easy to work slow and steady. First you will have to prepare your ingredients before turning it on. The ON switch is on the back, along with the OFF and Reverse switches. Cut the vegetables and greens into sizes 1 to 2 inches, and cut your hard vegetables in quarters. Apples, carrots and other hard ingredients can be cut into 6s and 8s. Feed the food inside the feeder (but don't push). After a few moments it will come out in the plastic cup, while the pulp enters a separate cup. Depending on the amount of ingredients you will use, juicing should take no more than a few minutes. How to clean Omega J8006? Cleaning is easy. First, make sure the juicer is turned off and not connected. Then remove your head, and disassemble all your pieces. Use soap and water to rinse them (there are 4 of them) and then clean the metal screen. They can also be put in the dishwasher, except for the filter. Cleaning should not take more than 5 minutes. What do reviews of Omega 8006 say? The Nutrition Center has earned an average of 4.6 out of 5 stars on Amazon with nearly 3,000 reviews as of this writing. What most customers liked about this juicer is that it does a great job of crushing and pressing basically any ingredient that can fit into the chute. The juice tastes great too because this machine works on them slowly, retaining the flavor of the ingredients. With the right recipes, adults and even children will enjoy juicy every day. Many of those who bought this product have also commented that the engine is very reliable. Even with regular use, its juicer has shown no signs of malfunction. Ease of cleanliness is also one of the many things they like about the J8006, because it takes them only a few minutes to finish. For those who owned a centrifugal juicer before buying this one, they are especially happy with how easy it is to clean the 8006. Using it several times every day is never an election. Finally, the monster warranty has impressed many of those who bought this juicer. While most juicers have a 5 to 10 year warranty, they are nothing compared to omega 8006's 15-year warranty. But it is not without disadvantages. Some common complaints mentioned in Omega J8006 reviews include preparation time that may take longer due to the small size of the chute. You will need to cut large ingredients into much smaller pieces so they can fit in the tube. Others say the plastic components eventually broke down after a few months and Omega's customer service department has not been very helpful in providing replacements or assistance to them. Finally, for those who owned centrifugal juicers before buying this one, they complained that the juice takes too long. How does Omega 8006 compare? Let's now make a side-by-side comparison of Omega 8006 and its closest competitors: Omega J8006 vs NC900 The NC900 (which, note, is the same as the NC800) a 6th generation juicer making it a newer model. It is also a chewing juicer and uses a double stage extraction process working at a speed of 80 RPM. But unlike the J8006, it has Adjustable. You can make a variety of healthy snacks from it, and not just juices, nut butter and baby food. It has 2 juicy screens and 6 nozzles. You will also appreciate the larger feeding chute because it means your preparation time will be much shorter. It costs about $50 higher than the J8006 though. But if you adjust to your budget, go for it. Omega J8006 vs J8007 The J8007 is a fifth generation juicer. What makes it different from the J8006 is that it is BPA-free and has steel components (J8006 uses plastic/housing parts for the 1st stage of the juicing process). It may be safe to say it's heavier than the J8006. Surprisingly, it costs less than the older model if you buy it on Amazon. If the budget is limited, this is a good option. Omega J8006 vs J8008 The J8008 has a commercial grade engine and a nice chrome finish. While the J8006 has 4 parts to clean, this one has 6. It also has a larger feeding tube. But while the J8006 is made in South Korea, this model is made in China. South Korea is known for superior manufacturing, especially for juicer engines. Both come with a 15-year warranty that is the longest in the industry. They also have the same price. It's important to note that Omega J8008 has a 4.7 star rating on Amazon (compared to J8006's 4.6 rating). If you're not worried about where this product was made, the J8008 may be a better option than the J8006. Omega J8006 vs NC800 With the NC800, you get a much larger feed chute which means the preparation time will be shorter. The J8006 has a feeding channel of 1.5 diameters, while the NC800 has an oval chute measuring 2 inches by 1.5 inches. It has 5 adjustable configurations and an adjustable final lid so you can control the amount of pulp in your juice. If you're looking for a juicer with a large/wide chute, it's better with the NC800. It costs higher than the J8006 though but the price difference isn't really that significant. Omega J8006 vs VRT350 Omega VRT350 is another popular juicer of the same brand. But unlike the 8006 which has a horizontal design, the VRT350 HD has a vertical design. Both are chewing juicers that have a speed of 80 RPM. We believe the VRT350HD is best suited for juicy wheat grass and soft fruits, while 8006 is best for leafy greens and vegetables and hard fruits (to be cut into smaller pieces). Nor is it able to make nut butter, baby food and herbal mining that the J8006 can do effortlessly. The quality of the juice with the VRT350 is great though. If you're only interested in juicing and don't mind paying more, choose VRT350. Omega J8006 vs J8004 These are two juicy dual chews that the same characteristics and functions. The J8004 has a white house, while the J8006 is silver/chrome. If the J8006 is well above your budget, get the J8004 which is cheaper. Omega J8006 vs J8005 The Omega J8005 is a single gear chewing juicer in chrome and black. It is an older model of the Omega 8000 series. Like the J8006 it can also function as a mill, food processor and homogeniser. It costs a lot cheaper than the J8006 (the price difference is close to $100) but it has been noticed that the boom of the J8006 is much more durable and is able to better control the machine action. It can also be expected to last much longer, although this is not really guaranteed. Again, your choice could very well depend on your budget. Omega J8006 vs Breville JE98XL The two big differences between these two juicers is that the Breville JE98XL is a centrifugal juicer and costs half the price of Omega J8006. Many people agree that the chewing juicer is much higher than the centrifugal type due to the quality of the juice and nutrients it is able to retain. However, if you don't have the patience to cut and cut ingredients, or wait for the juicer to finish crushing and pressing, then a centrifugal juicer like the JE98XL may be more ideal. Omega J8006 vs Breville 80JEXL El Breville 800JEXL is another centrifugal juicer and has the same price as Omega J8006. The choice between the two really depends on what you want out of your juicer. If you're looking for a chew, go to Omega J8006. If you want a high-speed juicer, get the Breville 800JEXL. Omega J8006 vs Breville bjs600xl The Breville BJS600XL is a slow chewing juicer. It is about the same price as the J8006 although it is slightly larger and heavier. Also, it's not multifunctional – its function is only for juice. Many customers prefer the Omega J8006 over Breville's BJS600XL because of the differences in its characteristics. The 1-year limited warranty for the Breville juicer is also an autistic one. Omega J8006 vs Super Angel 5500 The Super Angel 5500 is a stainless steel juicer with two gears. It is also a chewing juicer and has been known to provide superior quality juice. It also looks great. You get more juice from everything you put inside it too and just like the Omega J8006 can make nut butter and soy milk, among other things. However, the Super Angel 5500 costs over a thousand dollars. It's a lot of money. But if money isn't a problem, you definitely can't go wrong with this one. Where can I get Omega 8006 spare parts? The best place to buy Omega 8006 parts is on the manufacturer's website. You can also check out eBay and Amazon that they can bring some parts and accessories for this juicer model. If you're interested in buying on Amazon, keep in mind that they change prices fairly regularly, so just make sure you check on any given day. Click here to see Omega 8006 on Amazon Which is the price for Omega 8006 and where can I buy it? On the manufacturer's website, you can buy this for $299.99. But you can get a much better price for it if you buy from Amazon that offers free shipping too. Verdict: Is this juicer for you? Being the #1 best-selling product on Amazon, it would be easy to conclude that this product is a good buy. However, it really depends on your reasons for buying a juicer. If you want a slow juicer chewing, this one seems to meet most of the requirements – it's easy to clean, easy to assemble, makes great tasting juices and has a very long warranty. On the other hand, if you can't bother with long preparation times and waiting several minutes for your juice to be ready - then what you need is a centrifugal juicer like the Breville JE98XL which also happens to be the bestseller under this category. Another option is to get a chew with a larger chute like the Omega NC800 or NC900 that may cost a little more, but these juicy ones greatly reduce the preparation time. Click here to see Omega 8006 on Amazon
