A few days ago we tried to play. Everything was pink and black checked and the game crashed over and over again. I ended up being able to work if I deactivated City's texture pack. I noticed that in natural texture packs there are certain things that have the same pink and black patterns (such as where bars are hungry) but it won't really crash games. Just last week (ish), I didn't have this problem with texture packs. Last night I spent hours looking at different texture packs and world templates to surprise kids with new looks. I bought a world template called Building Your Truck. Half-time it won't load. Once it (after I deleted it from the in-game storage settings and it redownload) it was odd, the loading bar was on screen, and it eventually crashed. Also deleted natural and Urban texture packs from within the game storage, and reload them. I'm not sure if I'm going to have the same issue still. I will update it when I know. I got SUPER irreled and walked away today. My next step is to actually uninstall and reinstall, but I don't want to do that and lose everything if it doesn't fix the issue. Anyone who experiences this? Anyone has any suggestion to fix it, or am I just stuck waiting for an update to fix the bug? Currently using PS4 Slim with 7.02 system software version. Using digital purchases Minecraft version 2.01. I created the world and at the tip allowed natural texture. The natural texture pack has worked from the time I made it in the world and started playing in it. When I dominate the console and choose the world, it is under active mode before I load the world. When I chose playing, the system offers to download another 10mb natural texture packs. I have to do this every time I turn on the console. Is there a problem with something about my preparation? Is Minecraft configured in such a way now that every time I turn on my console, it is necessary to download every mode pack that I will use again from the server otherwise I have to go completely vanilla? Does it no longer store any texture packs to the hard drive? Why in the world is asking to download every time I turn on the console? Page 2 19 comments
