Bundesliga giants Borussia Dortmund have no shortage of young talent in their ranks. In fact, the club has some of the most talented youngsters in the world, including the likes of Jadon Sancho and Erling Haaland. The Signal Iduna Park-based outfit are set to introduce another sensational talent in the first team that has wreaked havoc on the youth team - Youssoufa Moukoko. Read also | Borussia Dortmund and ISL club Hyderabad FC have announced a historic two-year partnership deal with Champions League news: Borussia Dortmund include Youssoufa Moukoko According to reports in Germany, Borussia Dortmund have decided to include 15-year-old Youssoufa Moukoko in the Champions League squad this season. Although the club has already submitted a 25-man letter for a European club competition in which it has not been included, there is provision for a B-list as well and he remains eligible to be included. The Champions League B-list is reserved for young, indigenous talent and Youssoufa Moukoko could easily break into the list. Borussia Dortmund sporting director Michael Zorc, while in an interview with Bild, confirmed the news, yes, it's true. Youssoufa will sign up for the Champions League through a B-list, he said. Read also | Jude Bellingham snubs Man United on the red carpet, agreeing £22.5million move to Borussia Dortmund Who is Youssoufa Moukoko? The youngster could make his debut against Club Brugge in November, but under Champions League rules, Youssoufa Moukoko will have to wait until he turns 16 to be included in the B-list. Interestingly, the young star turns 16 on November 20 and will be eligible to play Borussia Dortmund's home game against Belgian side Club Brugge in the next four days. If Youssoufa Moukoko manages to bag minutes in a Champions League match on November 24, he will become the youngest-ever player to play in the competition. Former Chelsea defender Celestine Babayaro currently holds the record for the youngest player in Europe's top club competition. Read also | Borussia Dortmund makes $52M loss amid viral Champions League pandemic news: Youssoufa Moukoko trains with first team In addition, Youssoufa Moukoko also holds the record for being the youngest player to play in the UEFA Youth Europe League when he made his debut against Barcelona last September and at the same time became the youngest scorer in the competition after his goal against Inter Milan. Despite being 15 years old, Youssoufa currently trades with the under-19 squad from Borussia Dortmund. He has also been training with first-team giants bundesliga overseen by Lucien Favre but is yet to make his debut in the domestic league, citing a 16-year eligibility.
