To see Savuvuoriti, choose a cottage rental in nearby Gatlinburg, Gatlinburg, Tennessee is one of the best places to rent a cottage to tourists who want to see the Smoke Mountains up close. Visitors to the western border of Great Smoky Mountians National Park can be outside through the front door and in a park heading for one wooded hiking trail in less than five minutes. This is where the outdoor adventure is on your doorstep. 800 miles of trails pass through the park, many of which lead to views of waterfalls and mountain peaks, as well as zippering, snowboarding and riding. Gatlinburg also has plenty of live music, but if that's not enough, Dolly Parton's famous Dollywood theme park is a short drive away. While in Gatlinburg, it is almost mandatory to try one of the local barbecue facilities. Don't like coming past the pancake house, too. If south-style dishes aren't your favorite, there are several cafes, steakhouses and Italian eateries in the area. Travellers visiting Gatlinburg should consider renting a comfortable cottage. If you're going into town for a romantic get-to-know-you holiday, stay in one of the small, double cabins, such as those available in Honeymoon Hills. These log cabins are on private property but still offer modern amenities such as Wi-Fi and spa pools with private decks. They also have delightfully tasteless, bright red, heart-shaped jacuzzis. For families or even a group holiday in Gatlinburg there are several larger cottage rentals and cottages. In addition to wooden walls that give a real log cabin feel, the cottages are decorated with accents flattering the location of smoky linings: silhouettes of black bears are popular as well as warm, wintry blankets that keep guests comfortable up front Hemlock Hills cottages are especially popular with visitors. The two-bedroom Cabin Fever rental is perfect for a small family holiday. For something a little bigger, try the three-bedroom Truly Blessed cottage. It has a hot tub, fireplace, charcoal grill and several TVs. They even let you bring your pet on holiday. Everything you need to know when visiting Pão de Açúcar, Brazil. Rio de Janeiro's famous beaches are surrounded by mountains. On one side stands Corcovado Mountain, best known for its 30-foot-high statue of Christ the Redeemer, which stands guard over the city. On the other side is Sugarloaf Mountain (Pão de Açúcar). Sugarloaf Mountain soars 400 metres into the air and offers bird views of Guanabara Bay and the city of Rio. Here's how to visit this famous place: Sugarloaf Mountain is open all year round, but whenever you're going to visit, expect some lines as it's one of the most popular places in Rio. If you want to avoid the heat of the day, head up either early in the morning (the first car leaves at 8.m) or at 4pm .m. If possible, drive your arrival into the sunset. Cable cars that take visitors to the Sugarloaf peak depart from Praia Vermelha (Red Beach), one of Rio's residential areas known for its eclectic architectural mix and beautifully landscaped gardens. It is a great place to walk before or after a trip to Sugarloaf. Tickets to Sugarloaf are sold at the cable car station on Avenida Pasteur in Praia Vermelha (Red Beach). The entrance fee includes both cable car back and forth services. The cable car service runs from 08.m:00 to 21.m, when it departs approximately every 20 minutes. The last cable car to the top of sugarloaf leaves at 7:50 .m. Be sure to keep your ticket handy as you have to show them that they come to every car up and down the mountain (that's four times). The journey to the top of Sugarloaf is divided into two parts. The first takes you to the top of Mount Urca, from where the second car takes sugarloaf to the top. After buying your ticket, line up on the tram. Although there are no (or few) places, the trip only takes three minutes. The first leg takes you to Mount Urca, which is a mile away and offers incredible aerial views of the bay, Copacabana beach and the Christ the Redeemer statue. Another cable car takes you to the top of Sugarloaf, which offers 360-degree views of the area around Rio. Sugarloaf's food options aren't particularly noteworthy, but if you're looking for a snack, soft drink or Caipinha to enjoy while viewing the view, there are a few options. Both Urca and Sugarloaf have a few fast food options, as well as vendors selling ice cream and drinks. When eating, be careful not to feed the monkeys. They're cute, but they can be aggressive when you serve ice cream! Both Urca and has souvenir shops filled Brazilian tchotchcs and postcards. Urca also has a Havaianas store for all your flip-flop needs. If you enjoy a good hike and want to avoid a crowded cable car, it is possible to walk to Mount Urca, which takes you halfway to Sugarloaf. It is about a 25 minute hike through the jungle and is a moderately easy walk. The end of the path is located in the forest on the Path of Praia Vermelha and Sugarloaf. While you're in Urca, buy a tram ticket to the top of Sugarloaf to complete the climb. The truly adventurous can sign up to climb Sugarloaf, but it's only recommended for those with lots of rock climbing experience, their own equipment and an experienced guide that can help navigate the many complex, intertwining paths that lead to the mountain. For those more interested in walking than mountaineering, there are several short trails leading from Mount Urca through the jungle to observation sites overlooking the hills and beaches.
